The designation of Gen. Pershing as Ambassador to France would be a mere formality—he is.

* * * *

The discussion of Gen. Dawes in connection with the post at St. James may be without authority, but it is based upon a sound, if unconscious, psychological insight, for Dawes, the most versatile man to have appeared in a major role in American public life since Roosevelt, proved himself a master of diplomacy when he coordinated Allied supply during the war, working with tact but inflexible American firmness for the perfection of the economic corollary of centralized military command. Two big men are needed to perpetuate the memories of Herrick and Page.

"At Learning's fountain it is sweet to drink,
But 'tis a nobler privilege to think."

It is heartening to realize how much broader use is being made of the great Library of Congress today than was the case 30 years ago, and the significant service that has been rendered by Herbert Putnam lies in the more widespread availability of the rich treasures which he guards, and which, to so considerable an extent, he has gathered. A unique tribute is paid to a unique personality on his thirtieth anniversary as Librarian of Congress—or thereabouts, for John Russell Young died on January 17, 1899, and Dr. Putnam was appointed to succeed him on March 13 following. He has made it possible for the student to read—and think.

* * * *

The year 1899 was an important one in the literary annals of Washington, for only a few days before Dr. Putnam's advent, Andrew Carnegie made his munificent gift, which established the Washington Free Library.

* * * *

Who remembers when the Public Library was at 1326 New York avenue, and when anybody wanted a book in the old Library of Congress, in the Capitol, Ainsworth R. Spofford would put down the one he was reading and go get it for him?

* * * *

We remember in the old library one day asking Edward Eggleston, the historian—not knowing who he was at the time—what he thought about Trilby. "Son," he said, giving us a terrible look, "I never read a book until it has been out of print for twenty years," and it's a darned sensible plan, that keeps the brain from becoming cluttered up with trash.

* * * *

It is encouraging to note that the Nats have got one bad ball game out of their systems.

* * * *

Mr. Hoover naturally favors an airport for Washington—it would indeed be absurd for the President of the United States to be obliged to make his landing in Baltimore and finish the trip by automobile.

* * * *

The mystery of the good ship Nomad is partially cleared up, but it is still a matter of conjecture that the missing log was drunk by the bo'sun's mate by mistake.

* * * *

The smooth-shaven Populists of Congress, who resemble Senator Peffer in everything except whiskers, have pretty nearly decided on the kind of a bill best calculated to soak the city consumer in the interest of the so-called farmers of the country. With roast beef 55 cents a pound and nearly all bone, in the Washington markets, this looks like a good time to invent a $300,000,000 revolving fund for the clerk, the stenographer and the mechanic.

* * * *

The only revolving fund the city man knows anything about is the dizzy whirl the pay envelope gets going from the cashier's cage to the dinner table.

* * * *

It's hard to tell whether Southern patronage should be classified as a bargain sale or a rummage sale.

* * * *

With a snowstorm raging in Venice, Rome shivering and a cold wave headed for the Washington violets, the old world appears to be tipping slightly on its axis. The State Department should hang on to Antarctica—we may be wanting to move down there some day to get warm.

* * * *

It's getting so serious nowadays in Senatorial circles that jackpots are said to be governed by precedence instead of openers.

* * * *

President Hoover is going fishing today and we hope the Madison County rattlers aren't so pepped up by a premature Spring that they'll catch anything important.

* * * *

Wall Street wishes that Mr. Hoover's idea of "excessive zeal" could be applied to the stock market the same way it is to prohibition.

15 DEAD, SCORES HURT AS TORNADOES STRIKE 4 STATES IN MIDWEST

TWO CHILDREN AMONG VICTIMS IN WISCONSIN

Minneapolis Is Hardest Hit, With 2 Killed and 25 Injured.

RADIO STATION WRHM IS WRECKED BY WINDS

Detroit Menaced by Flood; Colorado Is Swept by Gale and Snow.

(Associated Press.)

Fifteen known dead, scores injured and heavy property damage was the toll of tornado windstorms that broke suddenly over Nebraska, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota last night, following a premature heat wave.

North Minneapolis and the adjacent Lake Minnetonka district, where two fatalities occurred and 25 other persons were reported injured, apparently was the hardest hit. A tornado there demolished scores of buildings and paralyzed wire communication. Most of those reported injured were struck by flying debris.

Six deaths were reported at Rice Lake, Wis., where scores of farm homes were blown down. Two children were killed at Reeves, Wis.; a man and an unidentified woman were killed near Forest Lake, Minn., and more than a score of persons injured.

Two Farmers Are Killed.

A farmer was killed when struck by the falling roof of an outbuilding near Little Rock, Iowa. Another farmer was killed in a similar manner at Taylor Falls, Wis.

Barns were blown down, farm buildings destroyed and wire facilities wrecked by a tornado over a 15-mile path in the vicinity of Hudson, Wis. Communication with Roberts, Wis., was cut off and it was feared loss of life and heavy damage occurred there.

A small twister at Worthington, Minn., leveled farm buildings but no one was reported injured. In the Pipestone, Minn., region severe dirt storms wrought havoc.

Property Damage Is Heavy.

In Nebraska, where the wind attained less velocity, no casualties were reported, but property damage was heavy. Motorists were blinded by dust whipped about by a 40-mile gale at Hastings, and numerous collisions resulted. Wheat crops were leveled generally over the State and telegraph and telephone communication crippled.

Duluth, Minn., April 5 (A.P.).—Ten were killed in a tornado which struck north Wisconsin this evening and scores of others injured. Two others were killed in Minnesota at Forest Lake.

The dead:

C. F. Bryan, Taylor Falls, Minn.

Two children of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pittman, Reeves, Wis.

Martha Raswe, 25, and sister; Mr. and Mrs. Basil Traiscoms and Marie Buhro, Mrs. Lewis Reed, all of Rice Lake, Wis.

John Salmon, Clayton, Wis.

A man named Lindgren and an unidentified woman at Forest Lake, Minn.

Two Killed Near Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, Minn., April 5 A.P.).—At least two persons were killed, more than a score were injured, several probably fatally, and thousands of dollars of damage was done by a tornado which struck the Minnetonka district, west, north and northeast Minneapolis and New Brighton late today.

Andrew Hanson, 45 years old, was killed on a farm north of Minneapolis, and a woman was killed in her home.

Hoover Favors Port As 2 Radio Speakers Call Capital Air Hub

President Sees Necessity For Field Facilities in Near Future.

Sees Valued Connection With Plane Systems of South America.

President Hoover is keenly interested in the establishment of an airport in the Capital. It is absolutely essential that there be one, in his opinion, because Washington is to be one of the four or five great air terminals in the country.

Particularly will it be an important center with the development of airways connecting this country and South America. These airways have been launched under the auspices of the Government and the Government will take full advantage of them in the transaction of business.

Aside from the South American development, it is the President's view that the Government already makes such extensive use of airways in this

John Hays Hammond and W. W. Everett Heard On Post Program.

Both Urge Development of Terminal to Be World Model.

The National Capital is destined to become a highly important junction for airplane traffic, John Hays Hammond, noted mining engineer, and W. W. Everett, president of the Board of Trade, predicted last night over Station WRC. Both men urged the establishment here of a municipal airport that would be a model for the world.

Mr. Hammond and Mr. Everett spoke under the auspices of The Washington Post, which, in conjunction with the National Broadcasting Co., the Board of Trade and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, is seeking to awaken Washington and the Nation to the need of a real airport here.

Tonight's speakers on The Post-WRC airport program will be Senator Hiram

RUTH BRADLEY OUT OF MURDER INQUIRY

Maryland Authorities Lose Interest in Her as Green Gables Suspect.

"POLACK JOE" IS SOUGHT

Because Lynn Dalton turned out to be "Hot Shot" Ruth Bradley, Maryland authorities investigating the Green Gables murder last night said they are not particularly anxious to obtain custody of her from Washington police, who last night charged her with disposing of property held under a chattel mortgage.

With the development that Lynn Dalton is a woman instead of a man, Maryland police are centering their search for a man known to them only as "Polack Joe," who, they are convinced, is the slayer of Wesley Poutra, one of the victims in the Green Gables shooting.

"Polack Joe," police have been told, is one of the Philadelphia gunmen-racketeers who shot up the Maryland roadhouse as a climax to their brief but sensational activities in the National Capital and nearby Maryland.

The man known as "Polack Joe" was last seen in Washington at Ninth and E streets northwest several hours before the fatal shooting. Police in all Eastern cities have been furnished with a lookout for him.

Police hold as "silly" the original theory advanced that the murder of Poutra and the serious wounding of Joe Hauser was caused by a dispute over a "blonde" or a "red-headed" woman. As the investigation progresses interest in the theory that the murder was the direct result of a double-cross in a racket becomes more and more pronounced.

"When you get the true story about Poutra's murder you'll find the whisky racket figured prominently in it," one investigator remarked early in the investigation.

Recently, however, investigators have received information which leads them

NAVY TO GUARD U.S. CITIZENS IN MEXICO

Ship Goes to Topolobampo at Stimson's Request; Rebels Again Warned.

FREE FEDERALS INTERNED

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Stimson took energetic action yesterday to protect Americans in the State of Sinoloa by requesting the Navy Department to send a destroyer to the Port of Topolobampo.

The Secretary of State asked Secretary Adams to dispatch the destroyer to protect American and other nationals, whom Mr. Stimson declared to be endangered by the retreat of Mexican rebel forces in Sinaloa.

The Navy Department announced late yesterday that the request of the State Department for a destroyer had been received and the Robert Smith, now at Tobari Bay, Mexico, would be ordered to Topolobampo. It also was said that a destroyer from San Diego would be sent to Tobari Bay to take the place of the Smith.

As another measure of protection for Americans in Naco, Ariz., Mr. Stimson requested the Secretary of War to convey to rebel leaders in Sonora an additional warning that their airplane pilots must refrain from dropping bombs into the American city when they raid the federal forces in the Mexican town of Naco across the border. The Secretary requested also that the War Department direct the American military commander at Naco to see that the warning is "effective."

The rebel forces in Sinaloa who attacked Mazatlan and were defeated there, have been retreating northward since that time. Secretary Stimson said yesterday that as they retreated the rebels increased the danger to foreigners and the American authorities considered that the presence of the destroyer Smith at Mazatlan was not sufficient to protect American interests. Therefore he requested the Navy to send another destroyer to Topolobampo, which is on the Gulf of California, about 200 miles north of Mazatlan. Rebels there are reported to have seized property of Americans.

Vice Consul John E. Jones, at Agua Prieta, reported to the State Department today that on Thursday night rebel airplanes had continued to bombard Naco, Sonora, and that the rebels were drawing their lines closer to the

STATE OFFICIAL WILL NOT MOVE IN DE KING CASE

Attorney General Holds Raid Charges Are Out of Jurisdiction.

PROSECUTION GIVEN TO LOCAL ATTORNEY

Defense Counsel Protest Against Decision and Plan Battle.

INVESTIGATOR FACES COURT AS PERJURER

Dry Spy Clings to Story of Acting Under Orders; Fails to Make Bond.

Aurora, Ill., April 5 (A.P.).—The attorney general of Illinois, Oscar Carlstron, today notified the Kane County officials he would not conduct the investigation into the killing of Mrs. Lillian De King, the injuries received by her husband, Joseph, and the shooting of a deputy sheriff, Roy Smith, by the 12-year-old son of the couple, in a recent prohibition raid.

In a letter to Circuit Court Judge John K. Newhall, two reasons were given for the refusal. First, Mr. Carlstrom said, neither the court's request nor the application of State's Attorney George D. Carbary asking the attorney general to serve were in compliance with the law.

The second reason was "that the character of the charges which might arise from the evidence as it was produced before the coroner are ordinary criminal charges and would not seem to require intervention of officials not usually called into ordinary criminal situations."

Defense Attorneys Protest.

When informed of Carlstrom's decision, Carbary said:

"I'll go before the grand jury to be impaneled on April 25 and will do my duty without fear or favor."

Attorneys Robert A. Milroy and Albert J. Kelly, representing the De King family, declared, however, that they will seek the appointment of "any special prosecutor" to remove the case from Carbary's jurisdiction, on the grounds that he is disqualified.

Meanwhile, Eugene Boyd Fairchild, whose alleged purchase of a pint of "moonshine" resulted in the fatal raid, was arraigned on a perjury charge. He had no lawyer and the hearing was continued until Monday to give him time to get legal representation. His continuance bond was set at $1,500. Unable to make it, Fairchild was returned to jail.

A coroner's jury decided Fairchild had sworn falsely he bought liquor from Mrs. De King, which was the basis for the perjury charge.

Says He Was Told to Flee.

The night after the inquest, Fairchild said, he was routed from bed in Geneva by Ole Nelson, a deputy sheriff, and Walter Millar, chief dry investigator for State's Attorney Carbary. Millar, Fairchild said, gave him $15 and advised him to get out of the county for at least 30 days.

Fairchild insisted Millar and Carleton Shultz, assistant State's attorney, knew that he had not bought the liquor at the De King home personally but had told him to "go ahead and sign the affidavit."

A coroner's mittimus charging Deputy Sheriff Smith with manslaughter was served on him in a hospital at Elgin, where he was receiving treatments for a gunshot wound in the leg inflicted by the son of the De Kings.

Hoover's Fish License Is Issued By Virginia

PRESIDENT WILL CURB OVERZEALOUS AGENTS IN DRY ENFORCEMENT

Does Not Believe They Have Overstepped Legal Limits.

SINKING OF I'M ALONE EVIDENTLY APPROVED

Federal Officers Work Under Strict Rules on Firearms.

HOOVER WOULD ACT UPON ILLEGAL RAIDS

16 Killed in 15 Months, but Lowman Maintains All Slayings Justified.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover will not countenance excessive zeal in the enforcement of prohibition, and since he has assumed office he does not consider that any has been used.

Inasmuch as the I'm Alone incident, the seizure by the local police of liquor consigned to the Siamese Legation and the recent boarding of a yacht belonging to Stuyvesant Fish in New York Harbor have occurred in the one month of his administration, his view that no excessive zeal has been shown presumably includes them.

Of course the legation incident was precipitated by the local police. Federal prohibition agents having nothing to do with it, and it may be that the full report of the boarding of the Fish yacht has not been brought to his attention, but his view undoubtedly applies to the sinking of the Canadian rum runner I'm Alone.

This is important, too, in view of the fact that the Canadian government has decided to make an issue of the incident. Formal protest, it has been known, has already been forwarded to the State Department. This was the case in which the Coast Guard cutter across the I'm Alone, it contends, was in the 12-mile treaty limit, pursued the vessel for 200 miles and then sank it, causing the death of a French subject.

De King Local Issue.

The killing at Aurora, Ill., of Mrs. Lillian De King in a prohibition raid upon her home has been brought to the President's attention. Inasmuch as the raid and killing were done by State officers, however, it is no business of the Federal Government, either for comment or action.

There is every reason to believe that there would be action should there be such an occurrence, with the facts as reported, under Federal jurisdiction.

At present Federal officers are working under an order issued a year ago, which ruled against the use of firearms except in self-defense or to prevent the commission of a felony. In this order the Federal agents were told that they would be strictly accountable for the use of firearms.

No further orders along this line have been issued since Mr. Hoover assumed office, but it is believed he is prepared to go even farther, to the point of taking definite action to prevent illegal seizures or raids or steps that strike at the inviolability of the home. Strict injunctions in this regard are not unexpected. The Aurora incident has rather put the administration on its guard to see that no such happening occurs within its purview.

16 Killed in 15 Months.

Despite the positive order bearing on the use of firearms there have been sixteen persons killed by dry agents and coast guardsmen within the last fifteen months, according to Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman. But in each instance, he asserts, it has been proved either by coroner's jury, other established investigating bodies or to the satisfaction of the Treasury itself that the killing was justified. Some cases are still not definitely settled, however.

There have been no killings in the one month of Mr. Hoover's administra-

Philadelphia, April 5 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The sealek Nomad and her sea-worn crew of three came to the end of act 2 in the hearing room of United States Commissioner Howard Patterson here today in a fast and loose prohibition comedy. But there was an overtone of stark tragedy.

Leland H. Ross, wealthy sportsman of New York and Jersey City, marched from the stand through the audience with a smile on his ruddy, round face. He passed two men and a woman who had sidled into the room to hear the tragic tale of the fate of their brother, Capt. John Schofield, of Cape May, N. J., who for 25 days was master of the Nomad.

GERMAN DEBT FIXED AT $9,500,000,000

May Be Whittled Down to $9,000,000,000, or Even Less, It Is Said.

SCHACHT ABLE BARGAINER

Paris, April 5 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The bill which Germany is asked to pay in final liquidation of her war obligations, was presented piecemeal today by Germany's principal creditors in a series of private conferences with Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the German delegation. Totalled up, it amounted to about $9,500,000,000.

Dr. Schacht has proved himself an able negotiator, having obtained what amounts to a firm offer for a compromise without telling what Germany is willing to pay. This places him in a strong position at the beginning of the week or ten days of bargaining which it is now believed will result in a unanimous report by the Young committee as a whole.

During the bargaining period, Dr. Schacht has a good chance of whittling the total Germany is to pay down to $9,000,000,000, perhaps even less. At present the negotiations have narrowed down to bargaining over what will be about one-eighteenth of the total Germany will pledge herself to pay.

This correspondent confirms from an excellent authority the information cabled earlier—that Dr. Schacht has tacitly accepted the allied demand that Germany meet the allied war debts to America year by year by depositing

SUBMARINE RESCUE DEVICES APPROVED

Only Three of 4,971 Suggestions Found Practicable by Naval Board.

353 SEEMED PROMISING

Of the 4,971 plans suggested for rescuing the personnel of sunken submarines as a result of the S-4 disaster, only 3 were considered of practical merit by the Board of Submarine Safety and Salvage in its report which Secretary of the Navy Adams has approved.

These are the "lung" recently developed by the Navy Department; the escape chamber, which would be let down into the ocean and fitted over a "manhole" in the submarine and "lifting eyes" on the submarine, by which the damaged craft could be drawn to the surface.

To enable the salvaging crew to locate the submersible, the board also recommended that buoys capable of carrying a light wire to the surface, through which communication can be secured, while serving the purpose of a marker," be placed on board the submarine.

The board was appointed following the S-4 tragedy to investigate submarine safety and salvage, with S. W. Stratton, W. R. Whitney, T. A. Scott, Rear Admiral Joseph Strauss and Rear Admiral D. W. Taylor as members.

After considering all plans submitted by the public and by experts for preventing disaster, for salvaging the craft and for saving the men, the board reported that "all efforts possible should

Pershing's Name Mentioned As Possible Envoy to Paris

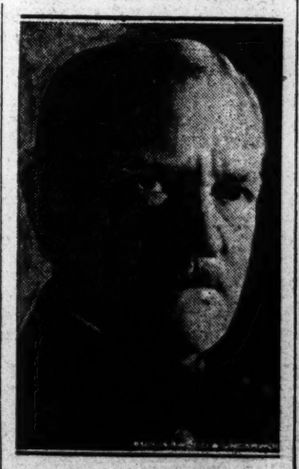

World War General, Now in France, May Get Herrick's Post.

(Associated Press.)

The name of Gen. John J. Pershing, World War hero of America and France, crept mysteriously yesterday into the speculation over the successor of the late Myron T. Herrick, Ambassador to Paris.

This rumor seems to have been born abroad, but it was without denial or confirmation last night in official circles. It was learned at the White House and the State Department that no decision has been made on the important French post and so the name of Gen. Pershing took its place in speculation along with those of Dwight F. Davis, former Secretary of War; Henry P. Fletcher, Ambassador to Italy;

Capt. J. J. Cheatham Gets Post as Naval Paymaster

Major General Is Pleased as Brother's Promotion Causes Liaison.

When Capt. Joseph J. Cheatham, Supply Corps, U. S. N., takes office as paymaster general of the Navy and chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, April 29, he will find himself in close cooperation with his brother, Maj. Gen. B. F. Cheatham, quartermaster general of the Army. His appointment was announced yesterday by the Secretary of the Navy.

Capt. Cheatham, who is now in charge of the naval supply station, naval operating base, Hampton Roads, Va., will succeed Rear Admiral Charles Morris. The Navy Department has not yet announced Admiral Morris' new assignment.

Maj Gen. Cheatham expressed himself as being highly pleased yesterday when he heard of his brother's ap-

The Munargo arrived from Nassau yesterday.

Secretary Wilbur Quits Pacific Body

Official Duties Are Given as Reason for Retiring From Institute.

New York, April 5 (A.P.).—Dr. Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, resigned tonight as chairman of the Pacific Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations, composed of one representative each of Great Britain, Australia, China, Canada, Japan, New Zealand, Hawaii and the United States. His resignation was read at a meeting of the board of trustees of the institute's American council.

"It is with the greatest regret that my present official connection with the Government of the United States makes it impossible for me to continue, as chairman of the Pacific council or as chairman of the American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations," Secretary Wilbur stated in a letter read by Miss Ada Comstock, president of Radcliffe College, who presided at the meeting.

"Public control over diplomacy is on the increase. Only through an informed public can wise decisions be made. As an instrument of international education I consider the Institute of Pacific Relations of supreme importance."

Slain Girl's Head Sought by Police

Torso, Found in Suburb of Los Angeles, Severed by an Expert.

Los Angeles, Calif., April 5 (A.P.).—Few clews that might lead to a solution of the mysterious slaying of a girl whose dismembered torso was washed to the bank of the Los Angeles River near Compton, a suburb, were found by police today. An autopsy disclosed that the young woman was not an expectant mother, as had at first been believed, but that the body had been subjected to mistreatment after death, which probably came two days ago.

Investigation was divided into three phases:

A search for the head and limbs, which the autopsy revealed had been severed by an expert, and which might lead to identification of the body; a search through the records of the missing persons bureau, and the pursuit of mysterious "tips" which led searchers for a "fiend slayer" to the stock yards district and to the motion picture colony in Hollywood.

Juan Manriquez, who, with his son, discovered the torso near the bank of the Los Angeles River when it bobbed up before the lights of his car last night, was held pending investigation.

HOOVER FAVORS CUT ON EARNED INCOMES

Believes No Action Possible Before Many Months Pass, However.

SEES PENALTY ON THRIFT

(Associated Press.)

When tax revision legislation can be undertaken by Congress, President Hoover believes thousands of people who pay a Federal levy on earned incomes should be the first to receive relief.

In his opinion, however, it will be at least six months before the subject can be discussed with a view to direct action, because of the fact that the extent of Government expenditures under recent legislation first must be determined.

His suggestion that the tax on earned incomes be the first to be reduced is in line with recommendations already made by Secretary Mellon of the Treasury Department.

The President feels that a sufficient distinction is not made between earned incomes and incomes which fall into the unearned class, such as returns from investments. As he views it, savings for future use must be provided by the former while no such use must be made of unearned income and he regards the tax on earned incomes as placing a penalty upon thrift.

The extent of reduction must depend, he believes, on both the prosperity of the country and the total of Government expenditures. The latter has increased in recent months, with disbursements for flood control, the Navy and many other purposes, and just ahead it is expected that appropriations will be made for farm relief.

Until these expenditures have been combined and their effects upon the budget determined, Mr. Hoover feels that it is impossible to speak of tax reduction in positive terms. To offset these outlays to some extent, he hopes to effect economies by reorganization of Government bureaus and a consequent elimination of waste and duplicated effort.

Executive Office Bids On Alteration Opened

The bids for making alterations in the basement of the west end of the Executive office were opened yesterday.

The N. P. Severin Co., of Chicago, had the lowest bid, $15,225. This company had charge of the reconstruction work on the roof and third floor of the White House in 1927. The Arthur L. Smith Co. had the next lowest bid, $17,137. The basement will be turned into an office. It is at present used as a storage room.

Man and Woman Held Here After Holdup in Maryland

Louis Johrden, Post Staff Photographer.

LORRAINE PRICE,
of Baltimore, Md., left, arrested here last night in connection with the investigation of a number of Maryland holdups, en route to the House of Detention in custody of Miss Caroline Alexander, policewoman, right.

Pair Seized in Auto as They Inquire About Directions South.

Within 40 minutes after Washington police had received a lookout from Maryland State police for a man and a woman who held up a gasoline station and lunchroom at Lipin's corner on the Washington Baltimore boulevard, two persons were arrested and held as fugitives from justice.

The two arrested gave their names as James Startt, 25 years old, and Lorraine Price, 20, both of Baltimore. Detectives O'Dea and Cullinane, who investigated the case, say they answer the description and that their car bears the tag number sent by Lieut. R. E. Raleigh, of the Maryland State Police.

Startt and Miss Price were arrested by Harold D. Johnson, of the Traffic Bureau, who reported that the man drove up to him and asked him which road went south. He says he became suspicious and apparently showed it, for, he reported, the woman reached for a pocket in the automobile door. Johnson then covered them with his pistol, he reported, searched the car and found a revolver in the door pocket.

After questioning, the woman was removed to the House of Detention and the man to the First Precinct.

O'Dea and Cullinane said that the two are also wanted in Baltimore in connection with a number of hold-ups there.

According to information received by Washington police, Edward Lipin and his brother, Raymond Lipin, were the victims in the Lipin's corner holdup. Edward Lipin told police that he went to a parked automobile and that the man at the wheel told him to "get away, or I'll shoot you." Shortly after he arrived at the lunchroom and gasoline station, in charge of his brother Raymond, he reported that the man in the parked machine came in with a pistol and held them up. He was assisted by a woman dressed in black, young Lipin said approximately $15 was stolen.

The woman arrested by Policeman Johnson also was dressed in black, police said.

Man Convicted by Jury For Illegal "Cure" Use

Barnett Rubin, operator of the Rubin Health Institute, of 1475 Irving street northwest, who claimed he could conquer rheumatism, arthritis and similar ailments with a miraculous "72-hour cure," was found guilty of practicing medicine without a license yesterday by a jury in Police Court.

Rubin was committed to the District Jail by order of Judge Gus A. Schuldt to await imposition of sentence on Tuesday. He has been arrested on several previous occasions on similar charges, according to police, but never was convicted.

Radio Man Is Arrested In $175 Theft From Girl

Charged with stealing $175 from Miss Helen S. May, of apartment 3, 3023 Fourteenth street northwest, William Pollard, 28 years old, an employe of a radio dealer, was being held by Tenth Precinct police last night on charges of grand larceny.

According to Miss May her apartment was entered with a duplicate key between noon on Monday and 8 o'clock Wednesday morning. She told police that Pollard had visited her apartment, having brought a radio for testing and then taken it away.

MRS. GANN'S STATUS WORRIES DIPLOMATS

Difficulty Found in Avoiding Offense to State Department on Curtis.

CHILE DINNER WATCHED

(Associated Press.)

Diplomacy will be needed by socially distraught Washington while waiting for a decision from Secretary Stimson on the social standing of Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister and officially designated hostess of Vice President Curtis.

This diplomacy ordinarily would be a cautious avoidance by members of the foreign missions of entertaining at the same dinner party Mr. Curtis and his sister and members of either the Diplomatic Corps or the Senate.

Members of the corps yesterday indicated that it would be an offense to the State Department, which has already ruled that Mrs. Gann ranks below the wives of ambassadors and foreign ministers, to put Mrs. Gann ahead of any of these, and an offense to the Vice President of the United States, who has publicly protested the department's rule, to place his sister below the diplomats.

Chile Dinner May Be Test.

But there is one social function on the calendar which may bring the question to an issue quickly. Carlos Davila, Ambassador from Chile, who has already sent invitations for a formal dinner party for 200 guests at the Pan-American Union on April 11, the only function on the social books so far where the question can be put to a test, has announced that unless Secretary Stimson reverses the ruling of former Secretary Kellogg in the meantime, he will be obliged to abide by the present ruling and ignore the protest that Curtis has registered.

He is averse to offending the Vice President, but pointed out that decisions from the State Department are equivalent to official requests to the Diplomatic Corps.

Members of the other foreign missions are breathing rather audible sighs of relief that they did not commit themselves to entertainments before the question of precedence arose. The view has been expressed by many that it will have to be a very particular occasion to warrant a party comprising the warring factions before the State Department issues a statement regarding the Curtis protest.

Question of Mr. Gann.

The matter of precedence in official Washington circles is undergoing a thorough verbal overhauling as a result of the delicate vice presidential hostess problem. Many are talking about who sits next to whom.

The question of Mr. Gann has been a perplexing one to hostesses who have entertained in honor of the vice president since inauguration. He is entitled to no official social rank. In some circles the opinion is expressed that the State Department has already made a concession in giving the vice president's sister rank over members of the House of Representatives and those lower down the precedence scale.

One foreign minister said he would not be surprised to see the whole matter of precedence receive an overhauling, with a change in many of the rights of rank now accepted in this country. In every other country, he pointed out, foreign ambassadors and ministers rank immediately below the ruling powers of the government or, in the case of a monarchy, directly below the royal family. In this country the Chief Justice, the Cabinet, and the Senate rank ahead of the ministers.

Dredge Destroyed In Blast; 6 Escape

Fuel Tanks Explode as Fire Attacks Craft Off Massachusetts.

Scituate, Mass., April 5 (A.P.).—The flounder dredge Chisa, Capt. Joseph Denino, jr., out of Boston, was destroyed 4 miles east of Humarock Beach tooday after her two fuel oil tanks had caught fire and exploded. Her crew of five men, who had fought a fire below deck for more than an hour, had abandoned the vessel. They reached shore in a dory, landing near the Naval Radio station at Fourth Cliff.

So terrific was the force of the explosion that nothing remained after the blast but bits of wreckage. The tanks each had a capacity of 300 gallons. The craft was valued at $10,000 by her owner, Antonio Bellance of Boston, who was a member of the crew.

CRASH HURTS FATAL TO CAPITAL UMPIRE

Thomas Crooke, 45, Injured in Cornell Bus Wreck, Fails to Rally.

FIVE OTHERS RECOVERING

Thomas Crooke, 45 years old, of 1302 D street southeast, widely known baseball umpire, died yesterday at the Marine Corps Base Hospital at Quantico, Va., from injuries received Thursday night when a bus carrying 37 persons, including members of the Cornell Baseball Team, plunged down a 10-foot embankment on the Quantico-Washington boulevard.

Crooke's hurts, which included internal injuries and a fractured thigh, were more severe than those of the others in the accident. Funeral arrangements will be made today. Members of the local baseball umpires' organization plan to attend the funeral in a body.

Five others whose injuries necessitated hospital treatment yesterday were reported to be recovering. They are Frank Sheehan, 50-year-old trainer of the Cornell Baseball Team, at Emergency Hospital; John Haddock, coach of the team; John Russel, student manager; H. W. Faggert, bus driver; F. Silles, relief driver of the bus, all treated at the Marine Hospital.

Crooke was widely known as a baseball player. He once wore a Washington uniform and played for several seasons on various minor league teams. He was best known as an umpire, having served in the International, Pacific Coast and Old Virginia Leagues. During the last few years he has officiated at many Capital baseball games.

Noted Woman Spy Placed in Asylum

German Beauty Famous in War Work, Confirmed Narcotic Addict.

Berlin, April 5 (A.P.).—Vossiche Zeitung today says that a beautiful woman of magnetic personality who was high in the German espionage service during the World War has been confined in an asylum here as a confirmed narcotic addict.

She was "Mrs. Captain Heinrichsen" to the English and "Mademoiselle Docteur" to the French while she played her dangerous part. She was fascinated with the work as a young girl and developed great ability of judgment in military matters. One of her secretaries, a Greek national, Constantine Coudoyanis, was executed at Vincennes in 1916 and three border guards who attempted to prevent her reaching Switzerland on one occasion were said to have been found each with a bullet in his heart.

Col. Nicolai, titular chief of the German military intelligence service, in his book "Secret Powers," paid tribute to the astounding ability of the woman to draw the innermost secrets from men.

Mercury Soars to 82 After Morning of Rain

Washington experienced one of the freak temperature changes for which it is noted yesterday when the thermometer as recorded at the Pennsylvania avenue kiosk climbed from 58 degrees at 6 o'clock in the morning to 82 degrees at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The cold rain of the morning maintained the temperature in the neighborhood of 60 degrees until at noon the sun peered from the raincloudsand forced the temperature up.

The average temperature for April 5, according to the Weather Bureau kiosk is 42 at 6 o'clock in the morning and 62 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The temperature registered at the Weather Bureau is slightly lower than that registered at the kiosk.

Stable's Trap-Door Bares Rum Cache

Backyard Fence Is Stormed by Crowd During Raid; Two Men Arrested.

After more than an hour's search for liquor in a stable in the rear of 1239 First street southeast, Sergt. O. J. Letterman, aided by Detectives Richard J. Cox and George McCarron, uncovered a trapdoor under a stall, which led to a cache of 49 half-gallon jars of corn whiskey buried in the backyard under a large pile of lumber.

Virgie Ford, 23 years old, of the same address, was arrested and charged with possession. Alton Washington, 21, colored, who gave his occupation as huckster, and who keeps his horse in the stable, was also held. An Army automatic, with two loaded clips, and another revolver were found in the house.

A crowd of about 350 persons, mostly colored, gathered about the house, many of them hanging over the back fence smacking their lips as the jars were taken from their hiding place.

Sanders Will Fight For Indians' Claim

Seeks to Recover $17,000,000 From U. S. for Land Under Treaty of 1851.

Havre, Mont. April 5 (A.P.).—Everett Sanders, secretary to the President during the Coolidge administration, will lead the fight of the Assiniboine Indians of Montana to recover $17,000,000 they claim from the Federal Government.

Three representatives of the tribe from the Fort Belknap and Fort Peck Reservations appeared before Judge C. B. Elwell in district court here yesterday to sign the contract with Sanders.

The claim represents the value placed upon land the Indians assert was granted them under a treaty of 1851, but which was never received. The tract lies between the Yellowstone and Missouri Rivers, west of the Musselshell, in central Montana. The Government claims the grant was extinguished by a later treaty, but the Indian leaders assert that the later treaty never was ratified.

James W. Good, Secretary of War, was the Indians' representative until he became a member of the Hoover Cabinet. Sanders succeeded him.

27 Killed in Wreck On Roumania Road

Train Plunges Down Snow-Covered Embankment; 65 Are Injured.

Bucharest, Roumania, April 6 (A.P.).—The Bucharest-Jassy express train jumped the track today, killing 27 persons and injuring 65. The accident occurred near the town of Bezeu. A number of those injured were expected to die.

Traveling at high speed through the dark, snowy morning, the locomotive went headlong down a steep, snow-covered embankment, dragging with it the first and second class coaches, which soon were a mass of burning wood and twisted metal. A faulty roadbed was believed to have caused the wreck.

It was several hours before physicians reached the place, many of the victims meanwhile suffering terribly as they lay pinioned in the wreckage. Even when doctors and other help arrived, it was almost impossible to accomplish anything, the darkness and deep snow combining to conceal the victims. Of the 27 killed, it was possible to identify only 7, but it was established that most of the travelers were Roumanian business men and soldiers.

Inman Placed Dictaphone To Entrap Her, Says Wife

Was "Heartily Ashamed," She Testifies, When She Found Instrument; Collapses at Trial as She Tells of Marital Rifts; He Explains Tax Statement.

Reno, April 5 (A.P.).—A dictaphone once was used by Walker P. Inman in an attempt to obtain damaging evidence against his wife, Mrs. Helene Inman, she testified today in the contested divorce action brought by the wealthy New Yorker.

The witness said that when she discovered the dictaphone in the Inman apartment and called her husband's attention to it, he admitted having placed it there and said he was "thoroughly ashamed" of what he had done.

Newspaper photographers ran into a concert of objections this afternoon when they attempted to take pictures of the principals in the trial. Counsel for both Mrs. Inman and her husband, heir to the Duke tobacco millions, strenuously objected to the cameramen's presence and their objections were sustained by Judge George A. Bartlett. At recess, however, the photographers were successful in getting negatives.

Following the close of Mrs. Inman's testimony, during which the attractive young woman collapsed several times while relating marital difficulties, Inman was called to the stand and declared that the reason for many conflicting statements in his testimony was because he had a "very poor memory."

The much-altered deposition Inman is alleged to have made at the beginning of the divorce proceeding was subjected to fire by George B. Thatcher, Mrs. Inman's chief counsel.

Mrs. Inman said that Inman had paid $47,000 in Federal income tax returns, but that he, his mother and his sister had filed their returns collectively, Inman paying his pro rata of the tax.

"Emanuel Cohen, who arranged the settlement with Mr. Inman for me,' said Mrs. Inman, "never showed me Walker's financial statement and never even mentioned it to me. I never knew of the agreement until I was virtually forced to go down the day I signed it."

The trial, which has been in progress three weeks, was said by attorneys to be rapidly nearing its close.

BANDITS GET $15,000 IN HOLDUP OF BANK

Three Employes of Maryland Institution Driven Into Vault by Robbers.

OUTLAW GANG ESCAPES

Baltimore, April 5.—Fifteen thousand dollars was taken from the Farmers & Mechanics National Bank of Westminster, Md., near here, today by three men, who appeared in the bank with drawn revolvers, herded the employes into the vault and walked off with the money.

About $250 was in gold coin, $150 in silver and the rest in notes.

W. Carroll Shunk, assistant cashier of the bank and the senior of the three employes who were present at the time of the holdup, told the following story of how the holdup occurred:

"We were all out in the bank. I was standing at one of the teller's windows. Charles Gelman, teller, was at another window. Mrs. Ralph Leister was working inside the bank. There were no customers in the bank.

"I heard a man say, 'Hands up!' and looked up to see a man pointing a pistol at me. Others were pointing pistols at the others.

"Our hands went up, of course."

Employes Driven into Vaults.

"Then the men drove us into the vaults, where the greater part of the money was in the form of notes. They took the money from the drawers near the tellers' windows and from the vault.

"They worked in silence except that one man said once to his companions, 'For God's sake, hurry up!'

"They were in the bank for only a few minutes. None of us had ever seen any of the men before. They were not masked, but there were no outstanding features, like scars or gold teeth or anything like that which would identify them.

"When they left we were in the vault. They told us to stay there, but they did not close the vault doors on us.

"We came out almost immediately, but there was no trace of the men."

Baltimore Detective Sent.

Immediately after the hold-up men had left a call was flashed to Baltimore. Captain of Detectives Charles H. Burns was asked to send men to Westminster to aid in the search for the men. He sent four detectives—Cornelius Roche, William Feehly, James Manning and Frederick Harbourne.

These Baltimore men were on their way to Westminster within a few minutes after the call reached Baltimore headquarters. At the same time all police officers in the city were notified to look out for the men.

The fact that the license number of a strange car seen in the town before the hold-up corresponded with the license number of a car reported stolen in Baltimore led to the belief that the men went from Baltimore to make their attack on the bank. The car stolen in Baltimore was the property of David Medoff, of Brooklyn, who was visiting his cousin, H. D. Miller, 3120 Oakfield avenue. It disappeared about 1:30 a. m.

Sheriff George P. Fowbel, of Westminster, reported the license number of the strange car in Westminster.

Stock Market Victim Hangs Himself to Tree

Kenosha, Wis., April 5 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Henry C. Latham was about ready to buy a home this spring. He had $2,300 and lacked $500. He got a tip on the stock market. He lost the whole $2,300. Today he hanged himself on a tree.

The sheriff notified Mrs. Helen Latham, his wife, who said that the act was brought on by despondency over his losses.

REBEL GUNS DOWN TWO MEXICAN FEDERAL AIRMEN

U. S. SHIP OFF TO MEXICO

town. He reported that more bombs had fallen just within American territory, but they had done no damage. Gen. Topete, leader of the rebel forces, has again apologized to the American authorities.

Topete Fails to Attack.

Naco, Sonora, April 5 (A.P.).—While he continued to shift small groups of cavalry about in the hills and more trucks of supplies for troops behind his lines, the rebel general, Fausto Topete, today made no attempt to move upon the federal trenches here.

This morning a single rebel airplane staged the regular bombing raid over Naco. There were no casualties.

Speculation in this federal town was rife as to the possible effect of events in Chihuahua on Topete's plans. The rebel general apparently has been waiting for something before making his attack in force. Aside from aerial bombing, Topete's hostile moves on Naco to date have consisted of one cavalry demonstration which left the situation unchanged when the rebels withdrew. The rebels today had prepared an airfield near the Topete troop train, slightly more than 2 miles from the Naco trenches.

American travelers returning to Nogales, Ariz., from the west coast of Mexico told of the desertion of Culiacan by the rebel commander, Gen. Francisco Manzo, and his occupation of San Blas, Sinaloa, with less than 1,500 troops. They also said a federal ship was believed to be taking federal soldiers from Mazatlan to Guayamas.

A federal statement that San Blas would be occupied by the end of the week was denied by the rebels at Nogales, Sonora.

Escobar in War Council.

Juarez, Chihuahua, Mexico, April 5 (A.P.). — Gen. Jose Gonzalo Escobar, commander in chief of the Mexican rebel forces, met with his military aids in Chihuahua City today to devise plans for continuation of the revolutionary movement.

"We shall conveniently reorganize and reequip our forces, and very soon they will be ready to continue the struggle and punish the enemy, which boasts of its war materials but fails to know how to use them properly," Gen Escobar's message declared in a long statement sent to the Associated Press.

The next maneuver by the insurgent commander, whose forces were routed from their base at Jimenez, was expected to be decided upon at the conference.

In his message to the Associated Press Gen. Escobar accused the federal forces of firing on wounded rebel soldiers in ambulances at Jimenez and declared the revolutionaries would avenge themselves.

Juarez Ready for Attack.

Reiterating his attack on Gen. P. Calles, federal secretary of war, Gen. Escobar termed the former president "the most abominable tyrant Mexico ever had," adding that "all over the country grows and propagates and organizes itself the movement that will bring about his punishment."

Losses of the insurgents in the fighting at Jimenez were light compared to the government's, Escobar asserted.

Meanwhile, in Juarez today there were reports that a band of 800 federal sympathizers was being organized at Guadalupe, 28 miles east of here, to attempt to retake Juarez from rebel control. Insurgent forces dug trenches and threw up breastworks in preparation for an attack, although the rebel leaders believe there was no possibility of such a move by the federals at th's time.

About 40 wounded soldiers, both rebel and federal, were brought to the hospital here from southern Chihuahua.

Interned Federals Returning.

El Paso, Tex., April 5 (A.P.).—A special train carrying 295 Mexican federal soldiers who had been interned here since their unsuccessful defense of Juarez, Chihuahua, against a rebel attack on March 8, left El Paso at 6:50 tonight for Naco, Ariz. They will cross the border at that point into Mexico to reinforce the federal garrison, which is defending Naco, Sonora, against insurgent forces.

Aboard the train were 295 soldiers, 46 women, 33 children and 37 horses. The announced destination was Eagle Pass, Tex., but officers aboard said they were going to Naco, which point they should reach between 5 and 6 a. m. tomorrow. Gen. Ignacio Flores was in command. The train was a Southern Pacific special.

Ten coaches, one baggage car, a flat car loaded with trucks and two automobile cars carrying horses formed the train. Federals in El Paso said they had obtained permission from Arizona officials allowing the clearance of the horses without awaiting the usual five day detention period. Ammunition, which had been boxed for loading, was left in Fort Bliss where the soldiers had been interned.

Rebel Treasurer Captured.

Presidio, Tex., April 5 (A.P.).—Reports were received through reliable sources tonight that the acting governor and treasurer of the rebel state of Chihuahua were captured this afternoon about 20 miles south of Ojinaga, Mexico, while attempting to cross the Rio Grande to American soil. They are being held at Ojinaga, the report said.

Mexico City, April 5 (A.P.).—Secretary of War Plutarco Elias Calles, in reporting to the government tonight, expressed the opinion that the military problem of the State of Chihuahua has "completely disappeared" in view of the fact that the remaining rebels are entirely disorganized.

He declared that the federal army had only to march on Chihuahua City and border towns in order to occupy them without opposition. He reported that Rebel Gen. Gonzalo Escobar and Gen. Marcelo Caravero now were in Chihuahua City, where they have ordered five railroad trains to be made up to carry them with the remnants of their forces toward Casas Grandes. From there it was believed that they would follow the road through Pulpito Canyon toward Agua Prieta, Sonora.

The rebel commander in chief was said to have "dismissed the foreign correspondents who have been with the rebels in Chihuahua—so that they would not learn of the magnitude of rebel disaster."

Sinaloa Revolt "Over."

Official reports from the Pacific Coast were that the troops of Gen. Lazaro Cardenas had occupied the town of Quila without resistance and that "tomorrow the federal cavalry will make a triumphant entry into Culiacan, to continue then to the northward with the hope of overtaking the enemy at San Blas in order to liquidate the military problem in the northwest in the same manner as it was done in Chihuahua."

Lieut. Col. Pablo Sidar, commandant of the federal air squadron in Sinaloa, and Lieut. Jorge Llerenas today arrived from Mazatlan after a nonstop flight of five and a half hours. Lieut. Llerenas expressed the opinion that the rebellion in Sinaloa was "over with." He said that in flying over Culiacan yesterday morning he had not been able to observe any of the enemy.

Suspect in Holdup Caught Near Scene

Cry for Help of Lunchroom Aid Results in Capture; $25 Taken.

A charge of robbery will be placed against Odell Knuckles, 29 years old, colored, 1724 U street northwest, police say, in connection with the holdup of the Workingmen's Lunch, 1704 U street northwest, last night about 9 o'clock.

Knuckles was captured by Patrolman E. P Hallman, colored, of the Eighth Precinct, near the restaurant, after Stamatios Valindras, counter man, shouted for help following theft of $25 from the cash register.

Valindras told police that the colored man threatened him with a pistol. Knuckles was treated at Freedman's Hospital for bruises on the head, the result, police say, of resisting Patrolman Hallman's effort to arrest him.

Thirteenth Precinct detectives are checking on Knuckles to ascertain whether or not he may have had any connection with the holdup of Sol Buckner, 401 O street northwest, Wednesday night, in which one colored robber was killed, while a second escaped.

Whitaker Will Meet All-Comers at Chess

Norman T. Whitaker, Washington chess player of note, will make his first appearance in the Capital in some years tonight when he meets all comers in the blue room of the City Club, 1320 G street northwest, at 8 o'clock. Simultaneous play will be the rule.

In a recent tour of South Carolina, Florida and Georgia, Whitaker played 85 games against a variety of opponents, losing only one, while last week he won the Pennsylvania State chess championship in tournament play.

Two Witnesses Are Held At Trial of Ellers Case

Chicago, April 5 (A.P.).—Two State witnesses were taken into custody on charges of perjury today at the trial, for election kidnapings and terrorism, of thirteen henchmen of City Collector Morris Eller and his son, Judge Emanuel Eller.

Alvin Curley, negro, was arrested when he admitted that testimony he gave before Judge John M. O'Connor last fall was false. Another negro, John Freeman, was ordered placed in custody after he confessed that testimony he gave on the stand today was not true.

Fliers Dog-Fight in Mexico; Find Out Each Is American

Both Out of Ammunition, Goggles Are Lifted and Federal Proves Grinning "Gringo;" Airmen Depart With High Sign of Their Craft.

New York, April 5 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Two aviators dog-fought in the air with machine guns and each ran out of ammunition, then each pulled up his goggles and disclosed the face of an American. A few moments later two grinning Americans gave each other the high sign and parted their ways, one going homeward to the territory of the Mexican federals, the other flying to the territory of the revolution.

The flier who nosed his machine into the land of the rebellion is in New York now, a disillustioned revolutionist, but as full of yarns as any soldier who ever came home from the wars. He spun a few tonight after producing papers showing that he was a commissioned captain in the air forces of Gen. J. Gonzalo Escobar. His name he forbade to be disclosed, lest he get into trouble with the United States Government which has frowned upon the revolution.

Plane Hardly Trustworthy.

"I was out in an old bus I had taken down to the border to get into the revolution with," he said. "It was such a weepy old whoopeecack that I tried to keep out of everything except bombing and scouting, but after dropping a few gas-pipe and dynamite bombs on some federal camp fires just before it began to get bright in the morning, I bumped into this federal job.

"You see, this plane of mine had a double-X six motor that was out of date in 1920 and the plane itself was so old that you could look out and see the wings going up and down, almost. It didn't have but about 100 horsepower and it wasn't much to trust against the planes the federals had with 400 and 450 horsepower.

"But I got into this fight, and we poured at each other for about fifteen minutes, off and on. I had a Thompson submachine gun that I fired over the side, while this guy had two Lewis guns going through the propeller. When I put my last can of bullets on my gun and wasted a few of them, I decided to take one last crack and go for the ground.

"So I got things lined up to where I could take a shot at him from the side, and I went at it in a sort of dive, but couldn't get him, but that didn't keep me from keeping on going down.

Federal Flier Grins.

"Then he started after me in a dive, with his motor going, and I thought about going home to mother, but he knew I was out of bullets because I had swung my gun into the cockpit onto my lap, and when he got close to me he jerked out an ammunition belt and threw it away to show that he was out of ammunition, too.

"He motioned to fly alongside, and I kept away for a few moments for fear that he was going to get me flying close by and then pot me with a pistol. Mexicans go in for that sort of stuff. But we got close together, and he must have seen that I was an American, because he jerked his goggles up on his forehead, and he was an American.

"His face was dirty, but he was an American, and he had a big grin. We grinned at each other and made signs, and after running along together a while we gave each other the high sign and aired out for home."

This federal captain was G. K. (Buzz) Morrison, of Reno, Nev., who was captured by the rebels at La Natia, Sonora, March 23, and sent in safety to the American border.

CARDINAL GASQUET, NOTED WRITER, DIES

English Prelate, Archivist of Church, Was Historian and Antiquarian.

HEART ATTACK IS FATAL

Rome, April 5 (A.P.).—Cardinal Gasquet, archivist of the library of the Holy Roman Church, who was created a cardinal in 1914, died today, aged 83. England's lone representative among the "cardinals of the curia" suffered a heart attack two days ago when attending the funeral of his colleague, Cardinal Lucidi.

By this morning he had developed pneumonia, and then came another heart attack, which soon ended in death.

Changes in Curia.

With the death of the learned English Benedictine, the number of cardinals of the curia, composing the Pope's permanent court who speak fluent English, was reduced to three—Cardinal Merry Del Val, who was born in London, though of Spanish lineage; Cardinal Lepicier, of France, who has long been occupied with Catholic missions in India, and Cardinal Cerretti, who has just returned from Australia and America, and who for eight years was auditor of the apostolic delegation at Washington.

Cardinal Gasquet, who was born in 1846, was created a cardinal by Pope Pius X in 1914. He was a member of a number of executive pontifical commissions and committees, among which were the congregations of the affairs of the religious, of propagation of the faith, rites and ceremonies, and of the Oriental church.

The cardinal was also liaison prelate for many Americans, being the only English cardinal resident in Rome. He was protector of the Sisters of Charity of the Incarnate Word of San Antonio, Tex., the Franciscan Sisters of the Third Order of the Holy Family of Dubuque, Iowa, and of the Sisters of St. Joseph in Carondelet, St. Louis.

Only Fifty-eight Cardinals Now.

The cardinal's death leaves the Sacred College at the low ebb of only 58 of the usual 70 members. The Italian cardinals now number 26 and the foreign 32 This is the lowest representation Italy has had since the fourteenth century.

The cardinal's passing leaves the order of cardinal priests, to which he belonged, at 48 members, 2 below the usual 50. It is considered virtually certain now that Pope Pius at the next consistory will create possibly six or seven cardinals, both Italians and non-Italians, probably during the second half of May.

Cardinal Gasquet was born in London October 5, 1846, and was educated in England. He was the author of many books on the history of the church, particularly in England, and was an authority in many fields of church history and the preservation of ancient manuscripts. He visited the United States in 1913.

ANTARCTIC CLAIMS STIR LATIN AMERICA

Chile and Argentina Both Have Interests Centering About South Pole.

NATIONS MAY SCRAMBLE

(United Press.)

Anglo-American disagreement which is developing regarding sovereign rights in the south polar region created much interest in Latin American circles here yesterday. The British claims and pending American counterclaims to sovereignty in the Antarctic may, it is believed here, start a scramble among other nations with aspirations or rights based upon early explorations.

After reading the United Press account of the diplomatic incident developing over Antarctic claims, Ambassador Carlos Davila, of Chile, said he would request immediately from his government information regarding possible Chilean claims in the south polar region.

Julien Encisco, Argentine Charge d'Affaires, prepared a report upon the newspaper disclosures for transmission to his government. Encisco described the Antarctic question as "very important."

It was recalled here that Argentina claims the Falkland Islands, held by Great Britain, and maintains a weather station in the South Orkney Islands. No other Argentine claims in the Antarctic regions were known to officials here. They do not conflict with American claims.

Ambassador Davila intimated Chile must be alive to the importance of the polar region because aerial development makes it possible that the most direct future air route between Chile, Australia and South Africa may be across the South Pole. Chile also has extensive whaling and fishing interests in the Antarctic.

The State Department confirmed the fact that a British note had been received on the subject of Commander Byrd's Antarctic expedition that had referred to the British imperial conference of 1926, where, at the suggestion of Australia, Britain made claim to sovereignty over vast Antarctic tracts A reply, had been prepared by the department and had been submitted to Undersecretary J. Ruben Clark and to Solicitor Green H. Hackworth, but has not yet been passed upon by Secretary of State Stimson.

4-Alarm Blaze Stops Carnival of Firemen

Havana, April 5 (A.P.).—Havana firemen, dressed in their smartest uniforms for the reception of 75 visiting Florida firemen, put on an unexpected exhibition today. Four alarms sent them flying to the warehouses of La Vinagrera Nacional, vinegar manufactory, to fight a fire which did $100,000 damage.

ROSS, WRECKED YACHTSMAN, LIBERATED ON RUM CHARGE

the hearing. Instead there were lengthy dialogues and monologues about liquor, whether there were 40 or 90 bottles, whether it was wine or whisky, and whether it was intoxicating or insipid. Therefore, the play may be resumed tomorrow or Monday in the office of the district attorney here when these three demand further explanation of the death of their brother.

The facts as adduced about the Nomad and her sensational journey from Charleston, S. C., beginning March 5, to a point about 20 miles off Cape May yesterday are strange and conflicting and on the whole unsatisfactory to Joseph F. Greene, customs agent in charge in Philadelphia.

Owner Found Helpless.

The Nomad was sighted Wednesday evening off Five Fathoms Lightship, near Cape May, by an ensign on flying rum patrol. Eventually it was towed into Cape May by a Coast Guard patrol boat.

Boatswain Bernard Meluh, in charge of the patrol boat, reported to his commander, Henry Ulke, that he had found Richard J. French and Henry G. Bush, two sailors, exhausted in the cabin and had found the owner. Ross, incapacitated below. In the cabin 40 bottles, some full, some empty, sloshed about on the floor.

Ross' explanation today was that he had been overcome by weariness and lack of food.

Another Coast Guard boat, with Customs Agent Luther Sterner in command of the prisoners, last night brought the Nomad to Philadelphia. Her mainmast was splintered, her decks a confused mass of soggy, tattered sail and uncoiled lines, her 4-cylinder auxiliary engine water-soaked, her stove in a similar condition, and the only sustenance aboard were canned tomatoes and Scotch whisky.

Early today, although guards prevented Mr. Ross from entertaining any other visitors, James S. Schofield, of Roxborough, a Philadelphia suburb, was at the pier at the foot of Chestnut street, with a photograph of his brother, Capt. Schofield.

Mr. Ross told him a story of heroism at sea that ended in death. The Nomad he said, after a three-month trip to the West Indies, had made her way back to Charleston. He decided to change masters, and, accordingly, wired for Capt Schofield to come and take charge.

Story of Schofield's Death.

With a crew of two men, Capt. Schofield chose to resume the trip to New York. Mrs. Ross, formerly Miss Muriel Clairmonte, of Washington, who had been with her husband on the whole trip, left the ship and continued by rail to New York. She was not in Philadelphia today.

The day after they left Charleston, the Nomad encountered storms. She was crippled. The four men huddled in the cabin. Determination came to Capt. Schofield.

"I got you into this mess," Ross told James Schofield his brother had said. "and with the help of God, I'll get you out." He climbed out on a boom to repair an eyelet in a sail. Ross was at the helm. He heard a cry of distress, and, lashing the wheel, he rushed to where Schofield had been. He was gone. Ross said he tossed a preserver into the water, but he could not see the missing man.

This is the story of the death of Schofield as told by Ross and corroborated by the two sailors. On March 30, in the sheaf of papers that passed for a log, Ross wrote:

"Schofield lost."

Soon after the visit of James Schofield, Ross and his attorney, Francis S. Laws, appeared before Commissioner Patterson.

Smuggling Charge Denied.

Assistant United States Attorney Mark Thatcher was present to prosecute. Two warrants, signed by Customs Agent Luther Sterner, charged Ross with smuggling liquor and transporting it.

Mr. Greene testified to having found a permit aboard the Nomad entitling the master to nine bottles of "spiritous liquors." There followed a long argument as to the exact number of bottles found, and no definite number was determined, although the warrant specified 40.

Then followed another of those long controversies between Mr. Laws and Mr. Thatcher as to the alcoholic content of the liquor. Mr. Laws then fired another load:

"There is nothing to show there was any attempt to smuggle liquor. The liquor was really brought in by the Coast Guard, because the Nomad was towed in by the Coast Guard boat."

To this Commissioner Patterson subjoined:

"I am convinced there has not been sufficient evidence produced here to warrant holding this man for court. I discharge him."

No charges whatever were made against the two sailors.

Immediately after this the Department of Justice denied that it would pursue the death of Capt. Schofield further.

"There is nothing to show that he met death by violence."

The district attorney's office was of somewhat the same mind.

Relatives Not Satisfied.

Mr. Greene made an ineffectual effort to wrest the Nomad from Ross on a forfeiture, but this failed. Then, as he was preparing to end his day and go home, two men and a woman came into his office. They were Seville and James Schofield, brothers, and Mrs. Mae Schofield Fox, his sister, all of Philadelphia.

"We're not satisfied," they told Mr. Greene, simply.

All three agreed that they would immediately take the matter up with a district attorney, and Mr. Greene agreed that he would help all he could.

As the Schofields talked to Mr. Greene, Ross showed reporters the log of the Nomad. There was an entry:

"March 5. We just cleared Charleston. Everything seems to be going fine."

On March 30 the log records the death of Capt. Schofield. "We were running before the wind with a stay sail," Ross recorded. "Capt. Schofield asked me to take the wheel while he repaired the reef and mainsail.

Final Entry of Log.

"He insited on going to the very end of the boom to fasten a block. I protested and asked him not to go.

"'It's safe,' he said. He set the compass for me and was off on his mission. My back was turned to him Then I heard a cry and saw the captain in the water. I threw him the vit of the main sheet and the life buoy from the port rigging and at the same time called for the crew.

"They came on deck and we tried to get the boat around. This was impossible, as only the staysail was set."

Entries for March 31 and April 1 indicate that Ross and tl. two sailors tried bravely to keep mastery of the ship.

Then follows this amazing entry:

"April 2. We don't land fall. 2:30 p m. Blowing a gale again. We are sailing a general course northwest. We are nearing the lightship. We pass it close, with our engine laying upside down in the rigging. I went to the bow and hailed the lightship. It was the Northeast End lightship. I reported our boat in distress and asked that they send a Coast Guard boat to assist us. I set our course toward Cape May The Coast Guard boat was dead ahead at dawn. We sailed toward them and were towed to the dock at Cape May."

All of this is under the entry of April 2. That was Tuesday. The Nomad was not sighted until Wednesday evening by the flying ensign. The Coast Guard boat did not reach it until early Thursday morning when Boatswain Meluh boarded it. He found Ross inert below. Ross last night could not explain the discrepancy.

Ross had nothing to say about the dissatisfaction of the Schofields.

CANADA SENDS U. S. I'M ALONE PROTEST

Note Will Charge Sinking of Rum Boat Violation of International Law.

TO CLAIM COMPENSATION

Ottawa, Ont., April 5 (U.P.).—Canada formally communicated with the United States Government today over the sinking of the Canadian schooner I'm Alone by a United States Coast Guard craft.

The contents of the communication, which was lengthy, were kept secret but it is known definitely that it was in the nature of a protest against the sinking of the craft and the subsequent loss of one life.

The note was forwarded by the government to Vincent Massey, Canadian Minister to the United States, who will hand it to the United States State Department.

It is understood here that among the various contentions chapters of the communication are:

Three Canadian Contentions.

1. That the sinking of the I'm Alone was a violation of international law.

2. That the sinking was beyond the provision of the treaty between Great Britain and the United States.

3. There is no admission that the I'm Alone was in waters in the territorial jurisdiction of the Unted States.

It was understood here that the British government was in agreement with the Canadian attitude on the matter and that also France agreed. France's interest comes through the fact that the seaman drowned with the sinking of the craft was of French nationality.

It is expected that the communication will be received in the United States tomorrow.

(United Press.)

The Canadian government's protest against the sinking of the rum-runner I'm Alone by the Coast Guard patrol boat Dexter in the Gulf of Mexico March 22 will be presented at the State Department Monday.

The Canadian Legation has received from Ottawa voluminous instructions upon which a note is being drafted.

The position that pursuit of the I'm Alone and sinking her on the high seas was unjustified even if she was first hailed within the area in which America has the treaty right to search suspected vessels, will be taken, it is understood, by the Canadian government. The master of the I'm Alone, Capt. John Randall, claims to have been further than one hour's sailing distance from the shore when first sighted by the patrol boat Walcott, but this is disputed by the Coast Guard.

Compensation to Be Asked.

Compensation for the loss of the I'm Alone, which was a schooner of Canadian registry, will be asked and the jurisdiction of an American court to try the captain and crew on conspiracy charges will be questioned.

Although Randall admits having transferred liquor to American agents on previous voyages and acknowledges that was his purpose on the voyage on which he lost his ship, it is contended that no liquor had been transferred on the last voyage and that no one can disprove his claim of having remained outside the treaty's limits on all previous voyages.

The Canadian government is prepared to insist that the United States must respect the right of Canadian vessels to transship cargo at sea, outside the treaty limits, regardless of the cargo's nature, and regardless also of its ultimate destination.

Roark Dead at 53; Rival Seeks Post

Representative Succumbs to Nervous Attack at Louisville.

Bowling Green, Ky., April 5 (A.P.).—John W. Moore, Democrat, former representative from the Third Congressional District, today authorized an announcement that he will seek return to Congress in the special election to fill the seat made vacant by the death of C. W. Roark, Republican, who defeated Mr. Moore in this normally Democratic district last fall. Mr. Moore went to Congress first after a special election which followed the death of Representative R. V. Thomas. He was reelected once.

Louisville, Ky., April 5 (A.P.).—C. W. Roark, 53 years old, representative-elect from the Third Kentucky Congressional District, died at a hospital here today of a nervous disorder that followed his campaign last November. His condition had been made worse by an attack of influenza.

The fact that Mr. Roark was seriously ill and might not recover became publicly known yesterday afternoon, and doubt was then expressed by his physician, Dr. Sam P. Myer, that he would live to be sworn in at the special session of Congress, starting April 15.

Lewis Stevenson, 61, Is Dead at Illinois

Bloomington, Ill., April 5 (A.P.).—Lewis G. Stevenson, son of Adlai Stevenson, Vice President of the United States during Cleveland's second term, died here today. Mr. Stevenson had been ill for two weeks, following a heart attack. He was 61 years old.

He was boosted for nomination as Vice President on the Democratic ticket at the Houston convention last year, but withdrew his name in the interest of party harmony. He is survived by his widow, a son, Adlai, Chicago attorney, and a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Stevenson Ives, wife of the first secretary of the embassy at Constantinople.

RITE SET FOR PHOTOGRAPHER

Former New York Herald Man Dies Here at Age of 57.

Funeral services for Arthur W. Mueller, 57 years old, former Washington photographer for the New York Herald, who died yesterday, will be held at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon from his residence, 422 Tenth street northeast. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Mr. Mueller was connected with the New York Herald until about eight years ago. He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Mary Mueller; a son, Albert Mueller; a brother, Amuel Mueller, and a sister, Miss Flora Mueller.

Rites for Mrs. Rose J. Coleman.

Funeral services will be in the chapel at Greenmount Cemetery, Baltimore, at 2 o'clock this afternoon for Mrs. Rose Jones Coleman, widow of Thomas C. Coleman, a resident of Washington for the past 15 years. Mrs. Coleman died Thursday at her home here, 2026 R street northwest.

Man Held Under Jones Law.

Charged with transporting and possessing 44 quarts of liquor, Arthur Saunders, colored, was bound over to the grand jury in $2,000 bail by Judge Ralph Given yesterday in Police Court. He pleaded not guilty. Saunders was arrested Thursday night by Eleventh Precinct police. The charge against him is covered by the Jones liquor felony law.

TO DIE MAY 16

ALVIN E. MERRITT.

WOMEN'S CHARGES DOOM MAN TO DIE

A. E. Merritt Is Identified by Eight Alleged Victims of Atlanta Attacks.

WIFE HEARS SENTENCE

Atlanta, Ga., April 5 (A.P.).—Alvin E. Merritt, young married man and alleged "Northside fiend," was convicted by a jury in Fulton Superior Court here late today and sentenced to death for criminal assault. The jury returned its verdict of guilty within 20 minutes after it retired to deliberate.

Merritt, his mother, sister and his wife, with an 8-month-old baby in her arms, who were seated with him, took the verdict calmly and with only slight indications that they had heard. Date of execution was set for Thursday, May 16.

Merritt was specifically charged with attacking a young married woman, who yesterday identified him from the stand and described the attack, saying her assailant forced her to do his bidding by threatening her with a pistol. Judge E. E. Pomeroy today ruled that evidence in other crimes for which Merritt is under indictment could be admitted and the State called seven alleged victims to the stand who identified Merritt.

Merritt, who was indicted on a score or more counts of criminal attack and robbery in a substantial residence section several months ago, previously was convicted on a similar charge and sentenced to from 13 to 16 years in prison.

Merritt's defense was his unsworn statement, similar to that of his previous trial, and recited his life from birth to his arrest, early in February.

"I never saw any of those young women," he said. "They are all making a horrible mistake. I am not the man."

be made toward lessening of the danger of collision, explosion and such other mishaps as may lead to the accidental submersion of submarines.

Nearly All Found Wanting.

"The principal remedy for faults in this respect will lie in the careful selection and training of the personnel, although we believe that this has been carried to a high degree already. But no degree of selection and training will ever wholly eliminate the fallibility of those, charged with the operation of submarines and other vessels.

"Furthermore, no method of construction or scheme for rescue or salvage will assure in all cases the rescue of the crew or the salvage of the boat."

The board began its task last June 29 by selecting those plans that seemed "promising." There were 353 of these. Nearly all, however, were later found to be wanting in some essential feature.

The "lung," the report held, "is small and light, and one could easily be stowed for each member of the crew without unduly encroaching on weight and space. * * * From the reports of this apparatus read by us, it is evident that a crew could escape to the surface from a sunken submarine at depths of at least 200 feet without aid from the surface.

Good Physiques Necessary.

"To use this appartus to the best advantage the men should have good physiques, be good swimmers and be thoroughly trained with the apparatus in the practice of escape. Training tanks should be provided in which candidates for the service could be carefully drilled in a process closely simulating actual escape from a submarine."

In their investigations the members of the board discovered that more than half of the submarines lack "structural arrangements," such as exit hatches, that would make the "lung an effective means of escape." However, the board suggested these "minor changes" be made in all submarines.

The "escape chamber" was said by the report to be "sufficiently promising to warrant a trial."

Discussing the "lifting eyes," the third recommendation for rescuing submarines, the board said "the idea is not a new one, having been employed on our earliest boats and later abandoned as their displacement increased. The disaster to the S-4 gave rise to a great number of suggestions that such lifting eyes be fitted. Prior to our appointment the navy yard at Portsmouth had already designed a padeye which seemed promising. These padeyes were to be holdfasts for each end of a pontoon capable of lifting 80 tons—that is, there was to be static strain of 40 tons on each padeye.

If in actual test this device would withstand a load of 160 tons, it would be sufficient to take care of all probable loads that would be put upon it in salvage. The Portsmouth Navy Yard padeye has been tested in practice and successfully withstood the operation of raising one end of the S-4 with a load of 90-ton pontoon and in a simulated test to destruction at the Bureau of Standards, has survived a pull of more than 160 tons called for.

Some of the plans the board held more or less impracticable were the "detachable escape chambers built on to the submarine, the diving bell, magnets, and others. The board said that it would be possible to provide a detachable escape chamber, but it has so many objectionable features that the question must be asked, 'Is there no better way of releasing the entrapped crew?'"

Bloedorn Suit Is for Support.

The Post was in error yesterday in stating that Mrs. May Howard Bloedorn had sued her husband for divorce. Mrs. Bloedorn sued her husband, Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, retired naval surgeon and now a member of Gallinger Hospital staff, for adequate support and maintenance.

NEXT ARMS SESSION WILL BE HELD HERE

Movement to Advance Date to Early 1931 Meets With No Opposition.

PART PREPARATION PLAYS

By ALBERT W. FOX.

The next international conference on limitation of naval armaments will probably be held in Washington, and President Hoover will be expected to issue the call next year, especially if the meeting is to take place in the spring instead of the autumn of 1931. The United States Government has sounded out the interested powers relative to advancing the date.

The prospective Washington meeting adds extra interest to the meeting of the League of Nations preparatory commission on armament limitations, which is scheduled to begin at Geneva on April 15 next. The American delegation to the league conference leaves New York today for Geneva.

Hugh S. Gibson, American Ambassador to Belgium, accompanied by Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, a delegate, and Commander H. C. Train, technical adviser to the delegation, have received final instructions from President Hoover and from Secretary of State Stimson.

President Hoover is understood to believe that there is some misunderstanding as to the work to be done by the preparatory commission. This commission will deal with methods to be employed in reaching a hoped-for solution of the arms limitation problem rather than the main problem itself. The question of whether naval strength should be considered in terms of tonnage alone or whether fighting ships should be considered by categories, armor, &c., will be one of the all-important matters taken up. There are other questions, including problems affecting land armaments, &c., in which the United States Government is not particularly interested.

Cruiser Issue Still Issue.

The Geneva preparatory conference is not part of the prospective Washington conference. But advance settlement of methods for measuring naval strength would naturally be helpful to the Washington conference or to any other international conference which might be convened.

It now appears improbable that there will be an international conference called in advance of the Washington meeting. The British government has been encouraging the idea that something definite might be proposed after the British elections this year but there has been no evidence of agreement between Great Britain and the United States on the cruiser issue which brought about the collapse of the Geneva conference two years ago. No useful purpose would be served, according to the consensus, in calling another arms limitation conference without thorough advance preparation to insure agreement and in point of time it now looks as if the scheduled Washington conference would be the earliest practicable date.

President Hoover is pledged to call such a conference year after next and the call by the President of the United States might be made sooner. The date for the meeting of the conference to be called by President Hoover is set forth in article 21 of the Washington Five Power Naval Armament Treaty, as follows:

Date Fixed by Treaty.

"In view of possible technical and scientific developments, the United States, after consultation with the other contracting powers, shall arrange for a conference of all the contracting powers which shall convene as soon as possible after the expiration of eight years from the coming into force of the present treaty to consider what changes, if any, in the treaty may be necessary to meet such developments."

The five power treaty went into effect on August 17, 1923. This sets the date of August 17, 1931, as the time controlling the meeting of the conference to be called by President Hoover. The United States has consulted the other interested powers with respect to the suggestion that the conference be held early in 1931. There has been no opposition so far expressed to this suggestion.

In case marked progress in the preliminary work should be made at the Geneva meeting this month, there might be an incentive to bring the powers together next year instead of the year after. This would raise the question of whether it would be more practical to advance the date of the Washington meeting or hold a conference in Europe so close to the scheduled treaty conference. In many respects it appears more practical to delegate the real task of dealing with the naval limitations problem to a meeting at Washington.

But the work to be done at Geneva may be beneficial to the next conference in any event.

Missouri Seeks Absentee Votes

Aid on Legislation Is Asked of Capital Residents by State Group.

"We want an absentee voters' law adopted by the State of Missouri," Edward R. Williams, chairman, declared last night at a meeting of the absentee voters' committee of the Missouri Society at the Washington Hotel, "and if this is to be accomplished we must have a united and organized plan of handling the two bills introduced in the State Legislature."

There can be no doubt, according to Mr. Williams, but that 1,500 Missourians living in Wasington should have the opportunity of registering and voting by mail in all elections. Thirty-four of the 48 States, he pointed out, have absentee voters' laws, and it is time Missouri joined them.

The committee, after talks by Mr. Williams, A. E. Chaffee, reading clerk of the House of Representatives, and others, adopted several resolutions pertaining to the law sought, one of which was that former Senator James A. Reed and C. A. Newton be requested to appear before the election committee at Jefferson City in behalf of advocates of the law.

Cruelty and Desertion Charged in Wife's Suit

Vincent dePaul Maguire, employed in the Supervising Architect's Office of the Treasury Department, was sued for separate maintenance yesterday in the District Supreme Court. Charges of cruelty and desertion were made by the wife.

The petition, filed through Attorney Thomas H. Patterson, stated that the parties were married at Norfolk, Va., on January 3, 1923. In December, 1927, the wife declared, "her husband assumed a repellant attitude toward her, treated her with indifference and abuse, continually nagged and brow beat her" and on February 15, 1927, deserted her. A reconciliation was effected last July, but in September, she declared, he deserted her again. She asked the court to compel him to pay her $100 a month maintenance.

GERMAN "SABOTAGE" DURING WAR DENIED

Agent of Teuton Government Describes Methods Used to Hamper U. S.

LUSITANIA SINKING CITED

(Associated Press.)

Methods by which Germany sought to curtail United States munitions production before the war, in violation of international law and this country's neutrality, were described yesterday by Karl Von Lewinski, as its agent in the hearings being held before the German-American Mixed Claims Commission.

While conceding that strikes were incited, he denied that his country ever planned destruction of American munitions and said Germany had striven to prevent "irritation" which might bring the United States into the war. From this, he said, it followed that the German empire was not responsible for the disasters on which are based the $24,000,000 sabotage claims now before the commission.

Earlier he offered to have submitted to the commission the records of Germany's army and navy, her intelligence divisions, and orders and correspondence to individuals covering all of her activities in the United States during the period of American neutrality.

This offer he said, met the charge of American Agent Bonynge before the commission that Germany had withheld certain documentary and other evidence in an effort to evade responsibility in the claims.

Dr. von Lewinski outlined the measures Germany took, both through its foreign office and its military and naval authorities, to restrict exports of American munitions before the United States entered the conflict, including forgery of passports by German Ambassador von Bernsdorff, plotting of enterprises to destroy Canadian railways on American soil, and distribution of announcements that it was against German law for German nationals to work in American munitions factories.

These activities, the German agent said, were a part of "German warfare," and so was the sinking of the Lusitania, he added; but he could see no connection, he continued, between these acts and the assertion by the American agent that "Germany was willing to do anything to carry on the war successfully."

GERMAN DEBT FIXED AT $9,500,000,000

the exact equivalent of what America's war debtors must pay her in the international bank to be created by the experts to handle all reparations transactions.

It apparently is also accepted by the German experts that it will be more advantageous for Germany to continue payments over a 58-year period, corresponding to that for which the war debt payments continue, commencing with an initial annuity of $100,000,000 and running up in the terminal years to $400,000,000.

The German delegates are accredited with believing that those last years are too far off to worry about and that in return for accepting this arrangement they can get important reductions from the allies on the payments they must make for actual reparations.

Held as Advantage by Germans.

Payment of $6,500,000,000 on account of war debts is a formidable figure; but it remains a political debt, which is an advantage in the eyes of the German delegates.

The portion of Germany's total indebtedness which is to be commercialized is that which will be applied to paying for actual reparations. Today's allied bill for this is about $3,000,000,000; but $500,000,000 is believed sure to come off in the course of negotiations. France has already cut her original claim for reimbursement for the cost of restoring her war-devastated regions by two-thirds, from $4,680,000,000 to $1,560,000,000, and the range of bargaining has been limited to questions of discount and interest.

Emile Moreau, governor of the Bank of France, insisted to Dr. Schacht today that whatever France gets—about $1,500,000,000 being the figure under discussion—it must be clean money for the French treasury and not be further reduced by the necessity of selling German bonds against it at a discount.

Provides Cost of Marketing.

He wants $1,560,000,000 over a period of 37 years with interest to cover the cost of marketing. If these bonds were sold on the world market it might be necessary to figure their present-day value at the equivalent of 7 per cent interest, the French experts are reported to have argued, whereas Dr. Schacht considers the current 4½ per cent interest on government bonds too high.

There is plenty of ground for compromise, however, as the allies are willing to accept large payments in kind—practically covering their reparations bill—for the first years.

From the present outlook the final compromise will be for average payments over 37 years of from $408,000,000 to $432,000,000 and maximum payments thereafter to meet the war debts exclusively of $384,000,000 annually.

In short, the bill presented to Dr. Schacht today was for an average of about $480,000,000 for 37 years, from which he expects to clip off at least $50,000,000 annually.

Fire Truck, Bus Crash; Dozen Escape Unhurt

A dozen persons narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday afternoon when No. 5 Fire Truck, returning from a fire at 1224 Congress court northwest, collided with a Washington Railway & Electric Co. bus at Thirty-third and Q streets northwest.

Private Scott Valentine, 34 years old, of 624 Elliott street northeast, driver of the truck; Eldridge Wood, 29 years old, operating the bus, and several passengers and firemen on the truck were shaken up but otherwise uninjured. Both fire truck and bus were damaged.

Henry Kreitzer Indicted As Slayer of Friend

An indictment charging murder was returned yesterday against Henry Kreitzer, of Bowie, Md., by the Prince Georges County grand jury now in session at Upper Marlboro. Kreitzer was released on $5,000 bond.

The charge grew out of the fatal shooting of Melvin Ryon, civil engineer, of the Bladensburg Suburban Sanitary Commission, January 18, at Kreitzer's home.

Worker Badly Injured By Bucket of Cement

Samuel Marville, colored, 41 years old, of 401 Oakdale place northwest, was critically injured yesterday morning when struck in the head by a bucket of cement while working on the Arlington Memorial Bridge, now under construction.

Marville was taken to Emergency Hospital and treated for a fractured skull by Dr. Leon Gordon.

HOUSE GROUP READY TO DRAW FARM BILL

Closes Its Hearings; Senate to Wind Up Preliminary Inquiry Next Week.

M'NARY'S PLAN IS GUIDE

(Associated Press.)

With administration leaders confident of the support needed to write a new farm relief bill acceptable to President Hoover, congressional hearings on farming conditions were all but closed yesterday and the Senate and House agriculture committees started preparations to draft a measure for consideration by the special session of Congress.

The House committee completed the taking of testimony late yesterday, but the Senate committee still has a few witnesses to hear before it gets down to business in executive session. These are expected to testify within the next few days.

The task of writing the new bill on the House side will fall to a subcommittee, a majority of which has expressed a desire to prepare a measure in line with administration views.

Senate Group to Act as Unit.

On the Senate side, the new bill will be written by the full committee, and, here again, Chairman McNary is satisfied that he has sufficient support to bring out a measure in accord with recommendations made by Secretary Hyde.

As the hearings approached a close yesterday administration leaders were convinced the new bill would follow closely the one introduced last fall by Senator McNary, indorsed at that time by the then Secretary of Agriculture, William M. Jardine, and this week by Secretary Hyde. Some changes are contemplated, but their scope is considered of only incidental importance and not such as will alter the general plan proposed by the McNary bill.

Board May Have 12 Members.

Under this measure the monumental job of regulating the vast industries on the farms in such a way as to bring more efficient methods and a resultant increasing income, would fall to a Federal farm board of six members and the Secretary of Agriculture. Some committee members believe the board should consist of twelve, but whether this increase will be suggested in the bill brought out at either side of the Capitol has not been made clear.

The board would be provided with a revolving fund of $300,000,000 from the Treasury to make loans to stabilization corporations with which to buy, store and sell crops, so as to prevent a surplus from lowering the price, and commodity councils would be created to advise the producers of the various crops on efficient and economical principles of production and marketing.

15 DEAD, MANY HURT IN TORNADOES' SWEEP

Severest damage of the storm centered in north Minneapolis and in the territory outside the city limits in the New Brighton and Brooklyn center area.

As soon as the height of the storm passed, rescue efforts were started by residents of the areas struck. These were rapidly augmented by Minneapolis firemen and police who rendered first aid and began the task of removing the known injured out of the storm area and searching for additional injured.

Radio Station Is Razed.

The transmitting station of radio station WRHM, near Dridley, 10 miles from here, was leveled to the ground by the wind and the operator of the plant, Thomas Edmunds, narrowly escaped with his life. The loss is estimated at more than $25,000.

Edmunds ran down into the basement when he saw the storm coming and told officials of the station that he was forced to hang on to furnace pipes to keep from being blown out.

A school in Brooklyn Center was reported blown over and several houses and barns were wrecked in the vicinity of Humboldt and Fifty-eighth avenues north.

Nearly all telephone pole lines running out of Minneapolis to the north were put out of commission by the storm.

Floods Menace Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., April 5 (A.P.).—Torrential spring showers, falling at widely separated points over Michigan, tonight had created serious flood menaces in Detroit and along the Tobacco and Tittabawassee Rivers, between Gladwin and Midland, Mich.

Three hundred families in Midland were ordered from their homes late this afternoon as a smashing crest of water in the Tobacco carried away two small dams of the Consumers Power Co. near Gladwin and a report reached Midland that a large reservoir dam at Sanford, on the Tittabawassee River had failed.

The Tobacco flows into the Tittabawassee at Sanford and it was feared that when the two torrents converged there a serious flood might result.

10,000 Persons In Peril.

In the territory which would be affected by any sudden rush of water are approximately 10,000 persons and the villages of Sanford, Beaverton, Edenville and Averill would be directly in its path. A fourth dam at Edenville, north of Sanford, was reported weakening tonight, with the Tobacco River crest still approaching.

A heavy rain fell all afternoon, and storm clouds supported the prediction of the Weather Bureau that more rain would be added tonight.

Durango, Colo., April 5 (A.P.).—Floods and snow and landslides menaced the San Juan Basin country today in the wake of a severe storm yesterday. Railroad traffic was paralyzed and communication was hampered. In some sections the storm continued today.

ELIZABETHTON HAILS OUSTED LABOR MEN

A. F. of L. Officials, Cheered by Workers, Defy Threats; Others Menaced.

CAROLINA STRIKE GROWS

Elizabethton, Tenn., April 5 (A.P.).—Edward McGrady, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, and Alfred L. Hoffman, Southern organizer of the United Textile Workers of America, who reported they were kidnaped by a band of men yesterday, returned to Elizabethton today. Escorted by two score union workers, among them many girls in automobiles, they paraded through the streets.

McGrady and Hoffman said they were approached at their hotel rooms by men flourishing revolvers and were told they were to be "taken for a ride." Outside the city limits, McGrady said, he was told "we'll fill you full of holes if you ever return to Elizabethton." Then, he continued, he was placed in charge of the driver of one of the several automobiles and taken to Bristol, Tenn.-Va.

Hoffman declared that as he was left at the North Carolina State line the men told him that "if you ever come back to Elizabethton, you'll leave in a box." He said shots were fired at him as he drove off in his car, which had been driven by one of the men.

"We're back to remain until this trouble is settled," McGrady asserted today.

Other Threats Reported.

Sheriff J. M. Moreland reported today that several local union leaders had received threats over the telephone and had been told to leave Elizabethton tonight. Police protection was promised them, the sheriff said.

Five of the Elizabethton men facing charges in connection with the reported kidnaping declined to discuss the matter today. Nat Perry, retired business man, the sixth held, denied any connection with the affair.

Three thousand textile workers and sympathizers applauded McGrady and Hoffman tonight at a protest meeting, at which speakers demanded prosecution of the "kidnapers" of the labor leaders.

It was reported that McGrady and Hoffman had identified eleven citizens in addition to those already under arrest, and additional arrests were expected tomorrow.

Announcement was made tonight that President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, would address a mass meeting here Sunday afternoon.

Ordered From Homes.

Charlotte, N. C., April 5 (A.P.).—Five thousand textile workers continued idle in North and South Carolina today without any immediate prospect that the several strikes in textile centers were near an end.

At Gastonia officials of the Loray Mills, distributing the last pay to about 1,000 of the strikers, circulated notices that those not desiring to continue in the employ of the company must vacate the mill houses and property.

At Union, S. C., the refusal of officials of the Monarch and Ottaray Mills to abrogate the "stretch out" system against which workers had walked out was conveyed to the strikers by a committee which had conferred with the executives.

J. A. Latimer, secretary to Gov. Richards of South Carolina, planned a conference with the strikers' committee at Greenville, where no incident marked the strike. Latimer is making a personal investigation of the general situation for the governor.

While the Gastonia strike was called by a local of the National Textile Workers Union, whose representatives declared that strikes would occur at other mills in the Gastonia section "at the right time," the South Carolina workers were reported to be unorganized. A committee from the South Carolina House of Representatives, which is investigating the textile situation, found the workers were not members of any union and blamed the mill operators for the strike.

They explained that the "stretch out" system protested by the strikers increased too greatly the individual work of employes without any commensurate increase in pay.

More than 1,000 workers were on strike at Anderson, S. C.

Guardsmen Remain on Duty.

Alfred L. Hoffman, textile labor representative, who charged he had been kidnaped and forced to leave Elizabethton, Tenn., after he had interceded in a wage dispute, started back to the Tennessee town with an escort today, prepared, he said, to identify at least twelve of his abductors.

Gov. Horton of Tennessee replied to a protest from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, by saying that the "Elizabethton episode was unfortunate, and the State constabulary is putting forth every effort to apprehend the offending parties." Edward F. McGrady, legislative representative of the American Federation of Labor, was at Bristol, Va., after, he said, having been forced to leave Elizabethton in the same manner as Hoffman.

Ordnance Unit Shifted From Curtis Bay Post

The Fifty-second Ordnance Company, at Curtis Bay, Md., has been ordered transferred to the Savanna Ordnance Depot, Ill., it was announced yesterday at the War Department.

This change of station is being made because of the transfer of large amounts of high explosive ammunition from other depots to Savanna for redistribution of certain types of amrestorage, in accordance with plans for munition. The activities and ammunition stocks at Curtis Bay have been reduced, while the increased activities at Savanna demand more personnel, it was said.

Sodality Union to Hold Annual Mass Meeting

The annual mass meeting of the Sodality Union will be held tomorrow in Gonzaga Auditorium, 45 I street northwest, at 8 o'clock. Archbishop Michael J. Curley will be the principal speaker.

Other speakers will include the Rev. Charles J. Hennesey, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, LaPlata, Md.; Katherine J. Fisher, president of the Sodality Union of Baltimore; and the Rev. Joseph V. Buckley, spiritual director of the Sodality Union. The annual report of the organization will be made by Mary Mattingly, president.

Chillum Heights Group Aids W. McK. Clayton

William McK. Clayton was indorsed for membership on the Public Utilities Commission by the Chillum Heights Citizens Association last night at the John R. Keene School. The Cramton bill regarding the proposed George Washington Parkway was approved.

Dr. George C. Havenner, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, outlined the history of the City of Washington and discussed its development.

Foes of Long Hasten Vote on Impeachment

Baton Rouge, La., April 5 (A.P.).—Advocates of impeachment of Gov. Huey P. Long sought late today to force a vote of impeachment in the House of Representatives on a part of the counts filed against him, but the governor's supporters forced a brief recess to discuss plans.

After the recess Representative Heintz, of St. Tammany, announced the subcommittee had agreed that tomorrow morning one or more resolutions would be submitted and that a vote would be taken on each charge and that at least one, if any are sustained, will be sent to the Senate not later than 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

Committee on Chest's Administration Named

All possible economies in operation of the Community Chest will be sought by a special committee on administration, with Clarence A. Aspinwall as chairman, it was announced yesterday. Other members of the committee are Robert V. Fleming, John Poole and George Hutchinson.

The committee, according to Frederic A. Delano, president of the Chest, will work directly with Elwood Street, director. "This committee will bring wide experience to bear on the specific problems of management," Delano said. "It will relieve the executive committee and board of trustees of general consideration of policies."

CRUISER, WITH BODY OF HERRICK, AT SEA

Swift French Warship Cuts Down Speed; Due in New York Saturday.

FINAL HONORS TENDERED

Brest, France, April 5 (A.P.).—The cruiser Tourville, newest and finest of the French navy, tonight was bearing the body of Ambassador Myron T. Herrick back to his homeland. Amid a salute of nineteen guns the cruiser steamed out of this port at 11:30 a. m. and headed for New York at a speed timed to bring her there a week from tomorrow.

The cruiser was already 100 miles out on the gray Atlantic when William Schott, third secretary of the embassy, who is the only American accompanying the body, radioed, "Words can not express the gratitude that Mr. Herrick's family and myself feel for the godspeed of France."

Rear Admiral Pirot, commander of the Port of Brest, sent a message in reply saying:

"The ambassador was one of us. He lives forever in the history of France."

Honors Paid to Body.

The body of the ambassador arrived by train early this morning from Paris, where yesterday the most eloquent tributes were paid the man who before 1914 and after had brought them the friendship of a sister nation and who had refused to abandon his post in the face of the dangers of the early days of the war.

The Colonial Infantry Battalion Band played "La Mort Dase." As the cortege, headed by a platoon of mounted Republican Guards, started toward the harbor, a stop was made on the Avenue President Wilson, where a navy band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" with muffled drums and muted instruments.

Again the American anthem and "Aux Champs" were heard at the pier as the body was taken aboard the gunboat Dolmen. As this vessel stood out across the harbor the soldiers on the pier saluted and civilians bared their heads while the crew of the Tourville formed on deck.

Captain Receives Body.

Commandante J. M. C. Abrial, captain of the Tourville, accepted his charge with the words:

"In the name of my country I salute the body of a friend of France. He is now in my charge and will reach America safely."

As the coffin was deposited on the deck of the cruiser the ship's band changed from Chopin's funeral March to the Star-Spangled Banner. Six French sailors bore the coffin into the "chapel ardent," where it will be under continuous guard by two French sailors until New York is reached.

The cruiser will proceed at half speed so as not to reach New York ahead of the liner Aquitania which will bring Mrs. Parmley Herrick, daughter-in-law of the ambassador, and some of his friends.

Services in Cleveland.

Cleveland, April 5 (A.P.).—Tentative plans for services for the late Ambassador Myron T. Herrick when his body arrives here from New York April 14 were announced tonight by Rollin A. Wilbur, vice president of the Herrick Co. He said services probably would be at 10:30 a. m. April 15 at Trinity Episcopal Church.

The body will be taken from the Union Station to the Episcopal Cathedral by the First Squad of the 107th Cavalry. Burial will be at Lakeview Cemetery. Wilbur tonight was unable to name the pallbearers, and it is possible that there will be none in order that the services be as simple as possible. The statesman's body will be accompanied here by his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Parmely Herrick, and their son Parmely, jr.

President Hoover yesterday said:

"Very great honor and courtesy have been shown by France to the United States in the arrangements they have made for the return of the body of a most distinguished American citizen—Ambassador Herrick.

"I have asked the Navy to make arrangements for a reception fitting to Ambassador Herrick's great public service and the feeling that I know our people have entertained toward him."

The Secretary of the Navy has ordered two cruisers from Guatemala to join the Herrick funeral party on the French cruiser as an escort. The cruisers were not named, but will be designated today.

The Navy and State Departments will complete the arrangements for the reception of the body of Ambassador Herrick when they arrive at New York. Details of the program should be announced today, it was said at those departments last night.

Dinner Guest's Slayer Is Sentenced to Chair

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 5. (A. P.).—Harry McConarty, alias T. Southworth, of Quincy, Mass., convicted of the murder of Horace M. Wells, wealthy Southampton, Long Island, automobile dealer, during a dinner party holdup here last February, today was sentenced to death in the electric chair. Sentence was passed after Circuit Judge C. E. Chillingworth had denied a motion for arrest of judgment and a new trial.

McConarty was ordered held in the county jail here until Gov. Goyle E. Carlton sets the date for his execution. He previously had been sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment for the robbery of six dinner guests at the fashionable home of Mrs. Vincent Hall, where Wells was fatally wounded. He accepted the death sentence without comment or display of emotion.

Munson Line Engineer Held Suicide at Sea

Havana, April 5 (A.P.).—The name of George Gommell, of New York City, chief engineer of the Munson liner Munardam, was today stricken from the rolls of that ship and his disappearance at sea two days ago was attributed to suicide.

Capt. R. D. McAlpine told the press here today he saw Gommell Wednesday night and that he noticed nothing abnormal. He left Gommell on deck. Yesterday Gommell did not appear for breakfast and thorough search of the ship failed to reveal trace of him.

Special Honors Await Maj. Segrave at Home

London, April 5 (A.P.).—Unusual honors have been planned for Maj. H. D. D. Segrave, holder of the world's automobile speed record, when he reaches Southampton next Friday on his return from America.

The admiralty will pay him the special compliment of sending a squadron of destroyers to escort his ship, the Olympic, from Spithead to Southampton. A group of flying boats and airplanes also will accompany the liner. All shipping in the port will be dressed in honor of the occasion. A civic reception and a private dinner party also are being arranged at Southampton.

SPEAK ON AIRPORT TONIGHT

Henry Miller Service.

Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, and Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, who will discuss the need of a municipal airport for Washington over WRC tonight.

HOOVER'S SUPPORT GIVEN TO AIRPORT

country that it is essential that there be proper port facilities. Utilization of the air mails as fast as routes are established for the transaction of Government business has been found to be an economy, and the practice will certainly not be discouraged by the new administration.

Air Mail Use Hampered.

Without adequate air facilities here the Government's use of the air mails is obviously curtailed.

It is no secret that the new era of aviation, begun after Lindbergh's historic flight to Paris, will be advanced by leaps and bounds in the Hoover administration.

The President looks upon the South American markets as occupying first importance in the program of prosperity on which he is working. The development of airways linking this country with the countries to the south is looked upon as a momentous step toward the bringing about of closer trade relations.

This is not any dream of the distant future either. Airways have already been set up and are being operated.

Real Need Is Seen.

With the extension of them and the closer trade relations generally the Government will have real need of facilities for air communication with the South American countries. The air mail will be of necessity relied upon for the exchange of trade and consular communications.

All in all, an airport for Washington is not alone desirable, but in the rapidly advancing order of things, it is indispensable, in the President's opinion.

This being his view, it goes without saying that he will lend his influence with Congress to see that one is established.

Confers With Bingham.

On Thursday President Hoover had an extended conference with Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, chairman of the joint congressional committee concerning the airport problem. In leaving the White House, Senator Bingham said he found that the President was keenly interested in the airport movement here, and showed a surprising familiarity with local conditions.

As Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Hoover was always deeply interested in aviation and was responsible for many of the steps that were taken by the Federal Government to help the industry.

He frequently conferred with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to get his advice on ways to advance flying in this country.

Hoover Will Visit His Fish Preserve

President Plans Picnic to Virginia Today for Tract Inspection.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover will take his first holiday since inauguration today with a visit to the fishing preserves prepared for his use on the Rapidan River in Virginia.

The President has had the trip in mind for some time, but until yesterday did not decide whether he would visit the Virginia site or go to another preserve acquired for him near Frederick, Md. He will be accompanied today by Mrs. Hoover and the expedition will take on the nature of an old-fashioned picnic. Basket lunches will be carried along.

While Mr. Hoover expects to do a little fishing, this will be limited as the major purpose of the trip is an inspection of the preserve and the selection of a place where Army tents may be pitched for his convenience on future visits. The President had planned to visit the place last Saturday, but bad wetaher intervened.

Trout Stream Stocked For President's Use

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., April 5.—A shipment of 1,000 brook trout for the fishing preserve of President Hoover at Catoctin Furnace arrived here today on a special car of the Bureau of Fisheries, United States Department of Commerce, and were liberated in Hunting Creek under the direction of Glenn C. Lease, chief of the division of fish culture, Bureau of Fisheries, Washington, and Albert Powell superintendent of Maryland Fish Hatcheries, Lewistown.

The trout were from the Pennsylvania hatcheries, and came as a gift to the President by Commissioner of Fisheries Buller. Joseph Gardner, a former member of the Pennsylvania constabulary, has been appointed a deputy sheriff to guard the preserve.

Oklahoma Oil Field Restriction Continued

Tulsa, Okla., April 5 (A.P.).—Oil operators of Oklahoma, at a meeting here today, extended the present proration agreement in the greater Seminole area and agreed to continue until June 1 the restrictions under which oil production in the State has been held to 650,000 barrels daily.

E. B. Reeser, of the Barnsdall Corporation, who, as president of the American Petroleum Institute, has been active in seeking voluntary curtailment of petroleum production, proposed the continuation of the Oklahoma agreement. The resolution was adopted with only one dissenting vote.

CAPITAL CALLED AIR HUB ON RADIO

Bingham, of Connecticut, and Maj. Gen Anton Stephan, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. Senator Bingham will speak at 7 o'clock and Gen. Stephan at 7:15.

Bingham Is Veteran Flier.

Senator Bingham is the outstanding flier in Congress. Early in 1917, when he was 41 years old and the father of seven boys, he set out to learn how to fly. Once he had learned, he was commissioned as a pilot by the United States Army, and in the thick of the World War he was appointed commandant of the Flying School at Issoudun, France. In the last few years he has flown all over the United States.

Maj. Gen. Stephan saw service in the Michigan campaign and in the World War, and is now commanding officer of the National Guard of the District, Maryland and Virginia. As president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, he has always been a strong advocate of a real municipal airport for Washington.

Talking over WRC last night, Mr. Hammond declared that an airport was vital to the future progress and prosperity of a city.

Hammond Urges Foresight.

"There is many a seedy, dying town in this country today," he said, "that wishes it had done more to prepare for the coming of the railroad and the automobile. They have seen this rail and motor traffic diverted to other towns more alert to what the future had in store, which now are enjoying the fruits of their foresight. And so it will be with air transportation. Obviously, if a city is to attract airplanes it must have a terminal for them, just as in the case of a seaport a good harbor is required to attract ships.

"If America is to be 'first in the air,' surely the National Capital should have some place in the picture. However, it can not very well have a place unless it has an airport. This is, in my opinion, not only of local concern, but of national concern as well.

City Should Be Model.

"Washington's airport should be a model for the world; something that not only would take care of the traffic but which would serve as symbol for that slogan, 'America First in the Air.' It should be a large airport. Experts say that 700 acres would not be too much, and it should have the finest equipment."

Mr. Hammond predicted that Washington would be a junction for airplanes traveling along the Atlantic seaboard, those traversing the transcontinental lanes and even transatlantic craft. Moreover, he said, it undoubtedly would be the scene of a vast amount of sightseeing from the air, and would attract air excursions from all parts of the United States.

President Everett, of the Board of Trade, predicted that Washington was destined to win world recognition as an air center.

Called Geographically Ideal.

"Geographically," he said, "Washington is the distribution center of the East between the North and South. Seven great railroads have recognized this; many more great air lines will in the future.

"From all parts of the world will come the envoys of foreign nations; from all parts of the country citizens will come on social, business and pleasure trips. From New York and Canada, from South American countries, Mexico, Cuba and the West Indies; from ships far out at sea will come the fleeting planes, bearing thousands of passengers.

"More than 500 Congressmen and their secretaries, the Cabinet, diplomats and officials of the Government will fly in and out of the city on their hurried march to all corners of the country and back.

Problems Will Be Great.

"From hundreds of towns and cities will come those whose urgent business draws them here with all the speed and haste at their command. Limitless are the possibilities of Washington as a great air center, and the problem of handling the thousands of sightseers who want to see the most beautiful capital in the world from the air will be one that will tax the resources of many air transport companies.

"The aim of the Washington Board of Trade is to have a world model airport ready in 1932, in time for the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington. The board is already endeavoring to arrange for the national air races, the National Aeronautic Association convention, and a great international aircraft exposition.

Payments to Fall Denied by Oil Men

Sinclair and Mammoth Companies File Reply to Suit of U. S.

Wilmington, Del., April 5 (A.P.).—A denial of all charges of conspiracy between the Sinclair Crude Oil Co. and the Mammoth Oil Co. and Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, contained in a suit filed by the United States against the companies in Federal court here on December 29 of last year, was filed in the same court today by counsel for the defendants.

The defendants in their answers denied that Fall received from Harry F. Sinclair, an officer and director of the Mammoth Oil Co. and its principal stockholder, as his share of profit of any conspiracy, cash or Liberty bonds amounting to $289,100, as contended in the bill filed by the Government. They also denied that the lease executed by Fall to the defendants for oil lands in the Salt Creek oil fields in Wyoming was obtained by fraud, and further denied that they had given Fall any profits, cash or anything else as a gratuity.

ANTHONY MEMORIAL CLASH IS DETAILED

Mrs. Adams, on Stand, Says Opposition Deserted the Foundation.

HOLDS HER GROUP LEGAL

Richmond, Va., April 4 (A.P.).—Additional evidence was heard by the State Corporation Commission today in the Susan B. Anthony Foundation dispute, with Mrs. Mary Allen Adams, of Washington, head of the faction desiring the dissolution of the corporation on the stand. Mrs. Adams claimed that ten of the original members of the board of the memorial organization joined with her faction after the breach which split the organization and resulted in the formation of two contending boards of directors.

The commission later today took the case under advisement. At the conclusion of the hearing counsel of opposing factions were directed to file briefs.

Mrs. Adams today said her group was the bona fide board and had the sole authority to dissolve the corporation—a Washington organization chartered under the laws of Virginia. The other faction is contesting the dissolution.

"Did you abuse the members of the other faction when you drew apart from them," she was asked by Commissioner Meade Fletcher.

"I told them that I thought I was among a den of thieves," the witness replied. "I did not desert the organization. They deserted it. The organization stayed with me."

She said that she sought the dissolution after attempts were made to incur financial obligations which she and her group thought inconsistent with the purposes of the foundation.

"We were organized to establish a memorial to Susan B. Anthony, not to go around begging money to pay somebody's rent and telephone bill," she said.

The initial quarrel she said occurred at an informal gathering at which they were supposed to discuss a church entertainment.

"I found myself surrounded by my enemies," she said. "I did not recognize the gathering as a meeting, and as president, I refused to do so or to put a motion which they proposed. I withdrew."

The hearing began yesterday. The foundation was dissolved January 8 at the request of Mrs. Adams and her board. Shortly thereafter a group under the leadership of Mrs. Virginia Peters-Parkhurst, Maryland director of the organization, asked the commission to set aside the dissolution order on the ground that the petition was illegal and that Mrs. Adams' board was not the bona fide board.

Alabama Police Seeking Canada Girl's Kidnapers

Mobile, Ala., April 5 (A.P.).—A close watch on outgoing steamships is maintained by police here for the alleged abductors of Barbara Pitcher, Montreal schoolgirl. Reports to the local department were that two men and a woman were believed en route to this city by automobile in an attempt to spirit the girl out of the country by steamer.

Montreal authorities telegraphed that the abductors of the Montreal girl have been traced through several Eastern cities and are evidently making for Mobile or New Orleans in an attempt to leave the country.

American Divorces Of Canadians Null

Ontario Senate Committee Upholds Judge Finding Rewed Man Bigamist.

Ottawa, April 5 (A.P.).—Canadians who marry in the Dominion, obtain a divorce in the United States, remarry in that country and return to Canada to live with their second partners in marriage, are bigamists in the eyes of Canadian law.

This opinion was expressed today by divorce officials of the Senate in commenting on the decision of Judge J. O. Lacroix in Montreal yesterday. The judge found an accused man guilty of bigamy. The Canadian subject in question had been married in New Brunswick and afterwards sent his wife to Reno, Nev., where she obtained a divorce. Subsequently he contracted a second marriage at Malone, N. Y., and returned to Montreal to live.

Senator G. D. Robertson, Ottawa, during discussion on Senator Willoughby's bill for the establishment of divorce courts in Ontario, declared: "On two grounds I hold this bill ought to be approved without further delay. One is that twice as many divorces of people living in the Province of Ontario have been granted in the city of Detroit as by Parliament in recent years. In 1928 there were 548 Canadian divorces in the City of Detroit. Most of those who are separated by these Michigan decrees remarry in the United States, return to Canada, and live in wedlock that is illegal according to Canadian law."

40 Nations to War On Counterfeiters

Geneva Conclave Will Seek World-Wide Cooperation to End Plots.

Geneva, April 5 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—International cooperation through treaties for the suppression of counterfeiting will be the principal feature of the convention whose negotiations will begin Tuesday when delegations from 40 countries assemble at Geneva.

The conference, in which the United States is playing a leading role, is the outcome of France's protest to the league against the Hungarian counterfeiting plot to flood Europe with faked francs for the purpose of undermining the financial structure of France.

The draft treaty provides for the unification of domestic legislation against counterfeiting, including uniform and minimum penalties, which will be calculated to make counterfeiting, especially for political motives, very unpopular.

The coordination of international police is also envisaged, together with the establishment of an international information office.

Cold and Snow Again Visit Italy and Poland

Rome, April 5 (A.P.).—Winter has returned to northern Italy, and today Rome was feeling the effects of cold winds from the Alps and Appenines. Snow fell in Venice, where the temperature was considerably below freezing.

Warsaw, Poland, April 5 (A.P.).—Extremely low temperatures for this time of the year were reported throughout Poland today. Snow fell in many places.

THREE ON SHIP SUNK BY DESTROYER LOST

Captain and Two of Crew Are Feared Drowned After Collision at Sea.

SIX OTHERS ARE RESCUED

The captain and two members of the crew of the schooner A. Ernest Mills were reported missing following the sinking Thursday night of the schooner in a collision with the U. S. Destroyer Childs, 50 miles southeast of Hampton Roads, according to information received yesterday by the Navy Department.

The Childs rescued six members of the schooner's crew and immediately started a search of the waters for the missing men. It was joined in the search by the Destroyers Coghlan and Bruce.

Capt. A. C. Chaney, of East Kingham, N. H.; George Barnes, of Portsmouth, Va., and Paul Ferguson, 614 Bank street, Norfolk, Va., were the three reported missing from the schooner.

The six rescued were George Carver, first mate, Calais, Me.; Albert Raymond, Edward Williams and Percival Hendricks, all of Norfolk, Va., and James Smith and William Franklin, second mate, of Newport News, Va.

The Navy Department was not informed of the details of the accident. It occurred about 9 o'clock Thursday night. The schoone- was returning from the Bahama Islands to Norfolk, and the Childs was on its way to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, where it was to have participated in the force practice of the scouting fleet.

The bow of the Childs was reported to be damaged to such an extent that it will be necessary for it to be towed back to port by the Coghlan. It was expected to reach Hampton Roads early last night.

The officers and crew of the Childs were unhurt. Lieut. Comdr. John L. Hall, jr., is in command of the destroyer.

The A. Ernest Mills is listed by the Department of Commerce Bureau of Navigation as a sailing vessel of 946 gross tons. The New England Maritime Co. of Maine is listed as the owner.

Secretary of Navy Adams left Washington yesterday afternoon at 3:45 o'clock for Miami, Fla., where he will embark for Guantanamo Bay to watch the force practice of the scouting fleet.

Rear Admiral Charles Hughes accompanied Secretary Adams. They will return April 14.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., April 5 (A.P.). The four-masted schooner Francis L. Taussig, of Boston, was sunk in the outer harbor today after being struck while at anchor by the steamer Sandwich, owned by the Eastern Steamship Co. Capt. F. W. Hunter and his crew of eight men were saved.

Detroit Drys Raid Two Big Breweries

Slumbering Tank Driver Aids Them in Search for "Alley Beer."

Detroit, April 5 (A.P.).—Federal prohibition agents today smashed their way into the second large brewery raided here in the last 24 hours.

Following discovery of a 500-barrel-a-day brewery under an apartment house yesterday the agents continued their search for "alley beer" manufacturing plants and discovered one this morning in a basement Detroit's East Side.

The plant was in full operation when the raiders reached a heavy steel door after smashing through a false brick wall. Two men found in the place were arrested. The agents said they believed other men fled through a 150-foot escape tunnel to a nearby house.

Discovery of the huge brewery late Thursday came after ten hours' work with pick and shovel following the arrest of Johnny Amore, driver of a beer tank truck, who went to sleep on his job in an alley where the beer was pumped into the tank. This brewery contained equipment valued at $100,000. It extended through five rooms beneath an apartment house.

Crash Costs Student's Leg; 3 Others Are Held

Chicago, April 5 (A.P.).—Joseph Gubbins, 22, Riverside, Ill., University of Chicago athlete, was in a critical condition at a hospital today and three other students at the university, including the captain of the basket ball team, were held by police, as the result of an automobile crash. Physicians amputated Gubbins' left leg in an effort to save his life.

The students held were John Hines, jr., 19, driver of the car in which Gubbins was riding; Virgil Gist, 22, captain of the university basket ball team, and James Cusack, 26. Gist and Cusack were passengers in the car which collided with another machine driven by Milburn Anderson. Two university coeds, Margaret Black and Elizabeth Cory, who were in Hines' car, escaped injury.

How Poisons Injure the Bladder

The kidneys discharge much poison from the body through the urine. Digestive or eliminative disturbances often load the urine with irritating acids and poisons, which injure the bladder tissues and cause severe suffering. Mountain Valley Mineral Water from Hot Springs, Ark., is a valuable aid in preventing and treating bladder injuries. Doctors prescribe it; a prominent doctor has said: "There is no better water in the world for ailments of the bladder and kidneys." Phone us for a case today. We deliver.

A WORLD OIL MONOPOLY.

Senator Borah comes to the support of President Hoover in the conservation of oil on the public domain. The Idahoan advises the chamber of commerce of his State that "we can make no better investment as a State than to keep these oil deposits for future development."

This is the counsel of prudent statesmanship, which seems to be badly needed by the politicians of the West. Whatever the commercial oil interests may do, the Government can take a step toward conserving the national oil supply, and the country will stand with the President in safeguarding the oil, notwithstanding the clamor of politicians in States that would profit by quick exploitation of the Nation's resources.

Senator Borah hopes that the Hoover order is "simply the first step in a larger program which will give protection to the users of oil." He credits the report that a world oil trust has been formed and that steps are being taken to make its control worldwide and absolute. The trust, he asserts, has laid the foundation of this monopoly by securing concessions from the Russian soviet whereby Russian oil can be withheld from the market.

In many quarters it is believed that behind the program of the Petroleum Institute to limit overproduction is a determination to form a combine that will fix prices. The insistence of the oil operators in "going ahead" despite the warning that they may run afoul of the Sherman act lends some color to the theory that a world oil trust is forming or has been formed and that American producers are playing the trust's game. Sir Henri Deterding's willingness to cooperate in bringing about a limitation of American production could be better explained as part of a plan for monopolizing oil and boosting prices than as a gesture of altruism in behalf of the downtrodden American oil producer. When it is understood that the British government is one of the owners of Sir Henri Deterding's huge corporation, as well as being in control of the oil fields of Mosul and Persia, it is not surprising that a representative of that government should join in the American conference looking to limitation of production as a preliminary to control of the world's oil supply.

Rapid progress has been made by the British government, directly and through such agents as Sir Henri Deterding and Sir John Cadman, toward securing control of the world's petroleum fields. Complete monopoly can not be secured without obtaining the cooperation of American oil interests. Have those interests struck a bargain with the foreign combine, and is the move for limitation of production a part of the monopoly plan?

If the Senate really wishes to investigate something, let it investigate the situation that is outlined by Senator Borah. In that way the Senate can powerfully assist President Hoover in protecting the American public. In the meantime it is not to be presumed that the Attorney General will permit any violation of the antitrust law.

LABOR TROUBLES IN THE SOUTH.

Predictions from many quarters that labor troubles would develop in the newly industrialized South have come true. Serious disputes have arisen in both South Carolina and Tennessee. Two labor leaders are reported to have been kidnaped at Elizabethton, Tenn., in connection with the strike at the textile mills. William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has issued a statement charging a group of Elizabethton business men with terrorizing and threatening death to the federation's representatives, and six of the accused have been arrested. The dispute began nearly a month ago when more than 5,000 workers walked out of the mills.

The difficulties in the Carolinas arose from the imposition of more work on the textile workers without a corresponding increase in pay. A committee appointed by the South Carolina House of Representatives found that labor unions were not responsible for walkouts in that State; that unions have gained no foothold among the workmen, and that the decisions to strike were arrived at in mass meetings. The committee found deplorable conditions in some towns, and reported that "the whole trouble in the textile area where strikes have occurred has been brought about by putting more work on the employes than they can do." The strike was found to be in no sense a rebellion against improvement in textile machinery. The "stretch out" system has not resulted in improved machinery, they found, but it has been the employes who have done the stretching.

For the purpose of drawing industrial capital to the South, the cheapness of Southern labor has been widely advertised. Chambers of commerce have emphasized the difference between wages in New England and in the South. Stress has also been laid on the absence of labor laws in the Southern States, and in some cases industrialists have been promised low taxation. These factors seem to have played too large a part in the industrial growth of the South.

It is true that the establishment of mills in the South provided employment for many poor whites and raised their standard of living in spite of the low wages. But it is folly to suppose that these workers would be satisfied with unduly low wages indefinitely. Many of the more foresighted industrial leaders have recognized the fact that this exploitation is not a sound foundation on which to build an industry. Cheap labor in this age of efficiency and mass production is nothing more than a phantom which beckons to a capitalist from a distance, but disappears shortly after he has established his plants.

THE RESERVE BOARD'S POSITION.

The significant sentences in the Federal Reserve Board statement are contained in the final paragraphs. "While the system recognizes that one of its most important functions is to protect this country's gold reserves," it says, "in existing circumstances these reserves need protection primarily against wasteful absorption into the base of an unduly expanded domestic credit structure rather than from abroad. The objective of Federal Reserve policy, therefore, both from the point of view of domestic business and of world trade conditions, is a readjustment in the credit situation with a view to assuring trade and industry of a continuous supply of bank credit at reasonable rates." The statement, of course, parallels accurately the several other statements made by the board during the course of its campaign against "over-extended" brokers' loans. The board says further that it is well satisfied with the progress made thus far and intimates that it believes the desired end will be attained through continued voluntary cooperation of banks. "In case the readjustment is not brought about by voluntary cooperation, however," says the statement, "the system may adopt other methods of influencing the situation."

But what other methods? Does the board plan to ask for new legislation broadening its powers or striking directly at speculation? Its statement makes no mention of a need for new legislation. Unquestionably the board realizes the difficulty of enacting legislation against speculation. Does it plan actually to raise the rediscount rate? Despite the several threats to take such drastic action the present rate has been continued from week to week. Elevation of the rediscount rate would react more harmfully upon general business than upon the speculator who does not care what he has to pay for money as long as he can get it. As the board observes, a raised rate would attract foreign gold, to the further embarrassment of the financial situation in impoverished nations that are having trouble enough obtaining American exchange with which to pay for their imports. Apparently, unless voluntary cooperation is continued, the Federal Reserve Board will have to scratch hard to discover how, without untoward concomitant effect, it can apply "other methods" to influence the credit situation.

There is no reason to believe that voluntary cooperation will not be continued. The market, generally speaking, has been comparatively solid since the shake-down of last month. Bankers, brokers, speculators and genuine investors have had their attention called to the dangers of a situation such as was allowed to develop and they will be chary of similar developments in the future.

In the meantime, Senator Owen has given expression to the attitude of those who oppose the board's campaign and who believe that it is out of order in attempting to influence the position of the market. "With regard to the so-called speculator," says Senator Owen, "nature should take its course. It (controlling him) is a task too intricate for Government and could not be accomplished except by personal guardianship and the destruction of individual liberty. The remedy would be worse than the disease." In connection with the discount rate, Senator Owen says: "A stable low rate will increase earning power, will add to the value of stocks, which will cause a rising market in stocks. And whether the market rises or falls there will always be men speculating on the rise or fall as the case may be. The main objective (of the board) is to stimulate productive business, the creation of things that men need and enjoy, and this should not be sacrificed in order to punish a speculator who will meet his own defeat if he buys or sells unwisely."

FASCISM IN AUSTRIA.

The resignation of Chancellor Seipel leaves Austria in a critical condition. It was hoped that he could be prevailed upon to reconsider his action, but he has refused to do so. Attacks arising out of Chancellor Seipel's dual position of politician and priest were given as the cause of his resignation, but it is generally believed that the chief causes were economic. He has not been able to secure enactment of his measures for adjustment of the rent situation, nor has he been able to secure the reconstruction loan which the government needs to develop railroads and other utilities.

Prior to the chancellor's resignation it was believed that if he would step aside the way would be open for an agreement between the Social Democrats and the Christian Socialists. But a new element has now been injected into the situation by the entrance of the Heimwehr, Austria's private anti-Socialist army, into the political arena. This organization, made up of recruits from the peasantry with the financial backing of industrialists, has not interfered in politics before. But in the present situation it evidently sees opportunity to make its influence felt. One Heimwehr leader has assured his followers that any attempt to form a coalition between the Social Democrats and the Christian Socialists will be prevented by force. A bulletin has been issued from the Heimwehr headquarters in Vienna assuring members that the cabinet crisis "will not be solved in any way inimical to the interests of our loyal adherents."

This move hints at a dictatorship and suggests growing strength of Fascism in Austria. The situation in Austria today is not dissimilar to that in Italy when the Black Shirts took control of the government. Austria is beset by innumerable economic problems which have been aggravated by a severe winter, much sickness and unemployment. Disruption of the old Austrian-Hungarian Empire left the new Austria with a large city in a small country, with old markets and sources of supply cut off. In spite of the untiring work of such statesmen as Chancellor Seipel Austria has been unable to make the necessary adjustments for economic rehabilitation.

The world has been watching with interest to see whether Fascism, which is responsible for the restoration of Italy from its post-war depression, would gain ascendency in other European countries. This interest will be now focused on Austria until the crisis created by Chancellor Seipel's resignation has passed.

ANTARCTICA BELONGS TO THE UNITED STATES

By COLBY M. CHESTER,
Rear Admiral, U. S. N., Retired.

Commander Byrd, looking down from the air, maps out vast new territories in the Antarctic regions, claims them for the United States and causes them to be named for his wife—Marie Byrd Land.

Discovery is recognized by international law as the prime test of ownership, and the United States has the first claim in the Antarctic, anyway.

On the 19th of January, 1840, at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, Lieut. Charles Wilkes—later Rear Admiral, United States Navy—commanding the American Exploring Expedition in Antarctic waters, discovered the continent of Antarctica in about latitude 66 degrees south and longitude 157 degrees east.

Capt. d'Urville, commanding a French expedition, on the same 19th of January discovered what appeared to be an immense landmass 3,000 feet high, covered with snow; and on January 22 and 28 more land was discovered.

The records gave evidence to d'Urville's claim to have sighted land; but Wilkes' equally good claim to have sighted the Antarctic continent on January 19, 1840, was Britishly resented as incredible by Capt. James Clark Ross, of H. B. M. S. Rebus, who arrived in said waters in the autumn of 1840 and covered the map of Antarctica with the names of kings, queens and jacks ad libitum. For 50 years this stood for history. Then a revelation took place.

Rear Admiral John E. Pillsbury, U. S. N.—later president of the National Geographic Society—wrote up the story in the National Geographic Magazine of February, 1910, under the heading, "Wilkes' and d'Urville's Discoveries in Wilkes Land," as follows:

"It has generally been accepted by foreign authorities that d'Urville sighted the land of the Antarctic continent, which he named Adele Land, on the same day (January 19) that Wilkes discovered land 400 miles to the eastward, which he named Cape Hudson, and also that d'Urville's Cote Clarie in longitude 131 degrees east was sighted by him the day before it was sighted by Lieut. Ringgold on board the U. S. S. Porpoise.

"Investigation shows that both of these assumptions are in error and in fact d'Urville first sighted Adele Land the day after Wilkes sighted Cape Hudson, and he sighted Cote Clarie the same day it was sighted by Ringgold, but at a later hour."

The story of the investigation is fully given in the National Geographic Magazine of February, 1910, but would be out of place here. The main facts are, however, these:

"We find in Wilkes' narrative, volume 2, page 159, the statement: 'On crossing the meridian 180 degrees we dropped the 14th of November in order to make our time correspond to that of the Eastern Hemisphere, to which our operations were for some months to be confined.'

"That d'Urville made no change of date in crossing the 180th meridian, but maintained the same chronology, appears from the d'Urville narrative. On page 342 appears the date, June 24th, with an asterisk, and at the bottom of the page the note, 'Nous reprenous la date d'Europe,' so that the day he dropped was June 23, 1840, five months after the visit to the Antarctic, and more than twenty months since he crossed the 180th meridian."

The English sealer Balleny in 1839 got a glimpse of land in about 121 degrees east, but all he says regarding it is. "Saw land to the southward." This is not discovery; it reveals nothing.

"Neither d'Urville nor Balleny had any notion nor made any suggestion that they were in the edge of a continent. Wilkes, on the contrary, not only sighted at frequent intervals some 1,600 miles of the coast, but he recognized it must be part of a continent. The name he gave to this land, the Antarctic Continent, must belong to the entire continent, the existence of which he revealed."

Geographers have recognized that he discovered part of the Antarctic, by giving it the name "Wilkes Land," but those who now know the facts brought out by Admiral Pillsbury give Wilkes the credit of being the discoverer of the Antarctic Continent.

Commander Byrd has said:

"I have named the land after the best sport and noblest person I know; one who has borne the brunt of all my adventures and to whom the credit belongs for anything I may have accomplished. This new land will be Marie Byrd Land."

It is a good thing the United States has a Byrd in the hand in Antarctica.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Cafeteria Democracy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If hostesses would adopt the cafeteria style of service there would be no danger of international complications. Let each guest carry a tray and help himself, first come first served, and take the first seat available.

Go into a Washington cafeteria and you will see clerks, Cabinet officers, assistant bureau chiefs, admirals, doughboys and generals carrying their own trays and hustling for seats, piggly-wiggly, American style. This is a democracy, tell Secretary Stimson.

AMI ALONE.

Why Not Postal Checks?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I suggest that Congress establish a postal check system. Let the Postoffice Department issue books of checks, similar to travelers' checks, so that the buyer can fill in the name of the payee and the amount, payable at any postoffice. This would enable any one to send small odd amounts safely by mail, without bothering with bank check, postal money order, stamps, or currency. The postal check would be safe in the mail, while stamps and currency are not. It is an imposition on banks to send trifling bank checks clear across the continent.

By requiring the buyer to pay for the face value of the checks in his book there could not be any loss by overdrawing or by forgery. Postal checks would be a great convenience to the public.

CITIZEN.

World Court Judges.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I note in recent issues of your journal that you take exception to the right of each British dominion to be represented by a judge on the World Court, on the ground that this would give the British Empire seven votes to America's one.

Permit me to call your attention to the fact that Mr. Root supported the British position as set forth at Geneva on March 19 by Sir Cecil Hurst. Mr. Root gave official notice that the United States had "recognized a separate international personality for the British dominions by exchanging fully accredited diplomatic representatives with Canada and the Irish Free State."

In the Anglo-French controversy over nationalities in Morocco, which was considered by the World Court, the French judge concurred with the British against the French contention. Is it not reasonable to presume that an American judge would concur with his British brethren in a controversy affecting America? Are you not assuming too much when you assume that an American judge would always stand for America, right or wrong?

It appears to me that America should be pleased to have upon the world bench so many judges trained in the principles of British justice. The American judge could always have the benefit of their counsel, and no doubt he would reach sound conclusions as a result of such counsel.

World Sugar Confab.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is meeting this week at Geneva, a conference of experts to consider the sugar crisis brought about by overproduction, and to attempt to formulate a program for its relief. At least two suggestions had been previously prepared. The first contemplated the use of extensive propaganda to increase consumption. The second involved the forced reduction of the price level, possibly, it was suggested, by agreement by all nations to reduce, in unison, the taxes paid to their respective governments by refiners and importers. Neither the United States nor Japan sent representatives to the conference, which got down to business with the admission that further consultations, especially with sugar-beet growers, would be necessary before a relief program could be mapped, and then decided that its deliberations would be in "deep secret."

The conference did not start auspiciously. The admission that further conferences will be necessary before a relief program can be formulated constitutes admission that the time is not ripe for the conference. Nor does it seem likely that the world sugar situation can be discussed intelligently without American participation, and the United States is neither ready nor willing to enter into such a conference. The United States itself is not an important producer of sugar. It has, therefore, a direct interest in Cuban sugar production and in that of its possessions, the Philippines and Porto Rico. The United States is the most important consumer of sugar in the world, and, in connection with a solution to the world's sugar ills, it must look first to the protection of its own sources of supply. This is the fact that is frequently overlooked; it may be taken for granted that the conference, if it does succeed in adopting a plan, will try to get the United States to agree to a program that will not fully safeguard its own sources of supply. The United States will not agree to any such program. Without American cooperation, any scheme for the solution of the world sugar problem is foredoomed to failure. The United States will not regulate its tariff at the dictation of any foreign "conference."

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle: New York's Zoo is about to import some singing lizards from Mandalay. They are bound to get all the musical stars in that town.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

I have always maintained that the ordinary individual's mind doesn't grow after he is sixteen or thereabouts, but that doesn't mean you have reached the limit of wisdom. Eyes don't grow after that age, either, but they keep on seeing new things.

Yesterday, when I refused you permission to join others of your age who were planning a moonlight "weinie roast" at the swimming pool, you questioned my wisdom and argued very adroitly in support of personal liberty.

You won the argument, I confess. It is a peculiarity of your sex. You won the honors because you made me see the reasonableness of your viewpoint and I didn't make you see the reasnableness of mine. In the end I discarded reason, which had failed me, and gave you a flat refusal based on nothing more logical than parental authority.

I dislike doing that. I had rather reason with you until you see thew isdom of my decision. But there are times when you can't see through the fog, and then I must guide without convincing you it is the right path.

Sixteen feels as wise as forty, for it is proud of having climbed so high and can't believe there is anything higher.

It is the tragedy of ignorance that its very misfortune makes it incapable of realizing how unfortunate it is.

Perhaps you won't remember it, but you gave me an excellent example of this truth when you were in the third grade.

Your teacher had required the writing of several sentences, and when you had completed them and gazed at them until your own approval could afford no further pleasure, you came to me for praise.

I deciphered them and offered some word of comfort too casual to be flattering, but your own good opinion needed no word of mine to confirm it.

"Daddy," you said, "I know most everything now, don't I?"

You were expressing a sound conviction that no argument of mine could have shaken; but as you look back now from the vantage point of the tenth grade, you will confess that your first feeling of omniscience was a little premature.

You didn't know it all; you merely thought so because the third grade can't realize how big the sum of knowledge is.

Now you smile at your former vanity—and there is my point. When another ten years have hastened by, and you look back from some greater height of wisdom you have attained, you will say: "What a goose I was at sixteen."

When my way doesn't seem wise, observe how green the third-graders seem and reflect that you once thought their little knowledge the whole sum of human wisdom.

GETTING RID OF AUTOS.

While the War Department is still considering the application of the Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce to create a new fishing ground by sinking three grain barges and a car float off Absecon Light, the City of New York might file an application of similar purport, says the New York Herald Tribune. Grain barges and car floats may not be in superabundance in this port, but discontinued automobiles abound in such numbers as to constitute a public nuisance. In some sections of Brooklyn and the Bronx householders find so many of these parked before their premises from day to day that they are forced continually to telephone the police about them. And the police are put to great inconvenience in discovering the owners and ordering the cars removed to the rapidly dwindling dumpage areas set aside for such purposes.

It has been found that when wrecks sink to the bottom of the sea they immediately become incrusted with barnacles. The barnacles, being edible, and easily removed, provide food for fishes. And fishermen, dropping their lines where fishes most do congregate, have abundant sport. If a small mountain of abandoned motor cars were dropped into the ocean in such deep water that they would not constitute a menace to navigation, they would, on the other hand, permit nature to take its course and by baiting their surfaces with barnacles attract seabass, blackfish, weakfish and such other denizens of the deep as prize a barnacle diet. Thus the purlieus of the city could be freed from rusting remains of automobiles, and the price of fish at Fulton Market would be reduced at the same time. The project is well worth considering.

PRESS COMMENT.

One Advantage.

Detroit Free Press: An optimistic way to look at the new smaller currency is to realize that it provides less harboring space for germs.

Traitor!

Portland Express: A Boston Democrat wrote King George congratulating him on his recovery and now he is scared pink for fear the king will give him away.

Worth 4 cents.

Gloversville Leader-Republican: Census enumerators will be paid 4 cents a name. The one who gets the Polish district in Chicago won't have such a cinch.

No Short Cuts.

Schenectady Union-Star: There are no dependable short cuts to wealth. The man who can't make a success of any other business needn't hope that starting a silver fox farm will solve all of his troubles.

Are They Hicks?

Atchison Globe: Why call the farmers "hicks?" We know eight farmers each, one of whom comes to town three times a week, to get his face massaged in a barber shop.

Keep Him Covered.

Cincinnati Enquirer: They'd better watch that young St. Louis chap who started home with a street car. One of these days he'll be caught walking home with the public square.

It Must Be.

Ohio State Journal: It may be that the delay in announcing what cigarette it was that pulled King George through his recent illness is due to the rumor that the good old boy is left with a little mental trouble.

Just the Thing.

Fort Wayne News-Sentinel: A Philadelphia paper has found a former hockey player who now uses his old shin guards when he plays bridge with his wife. They should be worn with Tuxedos at fashionable dinners.

Sure It Would.

Houston Post-Dispatch: Of course the public was interested in Maj. Scott's lecture on poisonous snakes and their bites. But maybe a larger public would be interested in a lecture on a remedy for snake bite and where and how to obtain the pre-war brand.

Not in Italy.

New York World: The Home Talkie Machine Corporation is said to be doing considerable business. But probably not in Italy. That is the sort of thing that Mussolini would discourage, on the guess that it would make bachelorhood seem like bachelorhood.

One Thing at a Time.

Portland Press-Herald: Some reformers are now planning to deport the foreign ambassadors at Washington who import liquor for their own use. One thing at a time, gentlemen. Let's put our own houses in order before we undertake to tell European diplomats how to run theirs.

If That Be Pleasure.

Baltimore Sun: Since he spoke at a dinner to Maj. Segrave, driver of the Golden Arrow, the president of the Broadway Association of New York may have let his enthusiasm for speed influence his remarks. But, even so, he might have used a different word in his prediction that "pleasure cars" making 120 miles per hour will be dashing across America on special highways within a few years. The velocity seems possible, but what about the emotion of those who experience it? If that is pleasure, then a leisurely jaunt through the spring weather, with fruit trees a-bloom and every hillside newly green is a sort of penance.

Miss Pickering attended Bradford Academy and Skidmore College. Mr. Shaw is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1926, and is at present in the third-year class at the Harvard Law School. The date of the wedding has not been announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Strickland Gillilan will entertain at dinner this evening at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Miss Elizabeth Mills, who is the guest of Mrs. Henry Whittaker at the Biltmore, in New York, will return Thursday.

Miss Beatrice Roy Wed To Mr. A. C. Eckert.

The marriage of Miss Beatrice Lillian Roy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David R. Roy, to Mr. Arthur Charles Eckert, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Eckert, of Cleveland Park, took place Thursday afternoon at 6 o'clock in the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle, the Rev. Thomas Walsh officiating. The church was decorated with Easter lilies. The maid of honor was Miss Elizabeth Deavey. Mr. Lawrence Purcell, of New York, was best man.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Upon their return from a wedding trip, Mr. Eckert and his bride will make their home at the Parkway.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Wellington and Miss Nancy Wellington, of Boston, are passing a few days at the Mayflower.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gay, jr., of Philadelphia, will be at the Mayflower until tomorrow.

Mrs. H. C. Sturhahn and her son, Lawrence, of New York, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. David Lawrence, on Nebraska avenue. Mrs. Sturhahn was formerly Miss Etienne Lawrence.

THE RETURN OF OLD KING BRADY

Revived by MERLE W. HERSEY.

(Copyright protected. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.)

CHAPTER VII.

The Power of a Persuasive Tongue.

(Conclusion.)

OLD KING BRADY, when he arose the next morning and found Harry and Alice still absent, began to feel concerned.

He hurried through with his breakfast and went to the police station to have a talk with Mag Prividi. Old King Brady was satisfied then that she did not know Riffaldi's associates. He took up the trail again and went to the address given by Mrs. Crispino. The woman had left there at dawn.

"If I had only pressed her more closely and found out where they were going to steer Gov. Strong last night I should be better prepared for business," muttered the old detective. "I must watch Mag Prividi's house and maybe Riffaldi will turn up."

Old King Brady went to the Fulton street house and rang the bell. The old woman did not recognize him in his disguise. She could not speak a word of English. He hailed an Italian laborer who was passing. "Come here and translate for me," he said. "I want to tell this woman something important." He added, "Tell her I am a lawyer; that I come from Miss Prividi, who was arrested last night."

The laborer did so in Italian.

"Tell her that Miss Prividi says she is to give me Mr. Riffaldi's address so that he can help get her out of jail."

The laborer showed no curiosity, and Old King Brady got an address over in the Italian district on the north side, close to the scene of his adventure of the night before. Old King Brady handed the laborer a dollar, and then hurried away to the address given.

The house was an Italian tenement of the better class. Old King Brady glanced in the barber shop on the main floor, and to his gratification saw the fakir getting a shave. "My chance?" he thought. "Will anything come of it?"

He waited for the fakir to come out and then followed him into the tenement and up to the second landing. "Can you tell me where I will find Mr. Riffaldi?" he asked.

"Don't know any such person," was the gruff reply.

"Are you sure? This is the address given me."

"Who gave you the address?"

Old King Brady put his finger to his lips. "We don't want to talk about the business here in the hall," he said.

Riffaldi unlocked a door. "Come in," he said. They entered a cheaply furnished room.

"Now, who are you and what do you want?" demanded the circus fakir.

Old King Brady handed him the card of a lawyer in St. Louis which he happened to have in his pocket book.

"Did Dick McGuinness send you here?" questioned the fakir.

"As I said before, I shall not talk business until I know who I am talking to."

"Well, then, I am Riffaldi. Sit down and let me hear what you have to say."

Old King Brady took a chair. "It is just this: McGuinness sent for me, and told me all about the kidnaped girl, the Spruce Ridge bank robbery, and about the letter of Gov. Strong," was the reply.

Riffaldi gritted his teeth. "I wish I was alone with Dick McGuinness for two minutes," he hissed.

"Wait, my friend. You are speaking of my client. No threats!" said the old detective. "McGuinness considers that you have gone back on him. That you and Tony Pitato have abandoned him. He is held on a charge of kidnapping. If the girl is restored to Mr. Ray and the Strong letters given up, the charge against McGuinness will be withdrawn."

"If I refuse to admit what you say is true?"

"My client turns State's evidence and makes a full confession."

There was some swearing done in Italian. "I don't know anything about this business, and I don't want anything to do with you. Get out."

"My client gave me the address of Mag Prividi. I went to her house to get the child and found that she had been taken away by Tony Pitato and another man."

Riffaldi almost had a fit then. "How did she know it was Tony?" he demanded when he had quieted down. "She never saw the man."

"I told her."

"How did you know? Were you the other man?"

"Not at all. McGuinness described you and Pitato to me. Miss Prividi described the kidnaper and there you are. I must have those letters and the child."

"Never! You can't bluff me, old man."

Old King Brady played his last card. "Have a light," said the old detective, handing Riffaldi a match. He lit his own cigar and hitching his chair nearer to the fakir, said in a low, meaning tone: "Those bonds, signor. I can place them for you."

"You certainly are a wise one!" gasped Riffaldi.

"I know all Dick McGuinness knows. The Bradys are after you and if you don't skin out of Chicago in a hurry they'll get you sure."

Riffaldi gave a helpless gesture. "Can you really sell the bonds?" he whispered.

"Sure, I can. I know just the man to sell them. All I want is half the proceeds. Be sensible, Signor. Give up the child and the letters; McGuinness goes free, you get away safely, and the 'goose hangs high.' Savee?"

Riffaldi looked up. "You wait here and I'll go after the child and the bonds, and be back in an hour."

"You will have to prove that you mean business," said Old King Brady. "Give me the letters and I will play fair."

Riffaldi put his hands into the inside pocket of his vest and pulled out three letters, and handed them to Old King Brady.

"Go, Signor, this is as it should be. Bring me the bonds and the child. I will await your return."

Riffaldi arose and left the room. Such was the power of a persuasive tongue!

Old King Brady lost no time. Once more in a twinkling of an eye he was attired in the long blue coat, the big white hat and all the rest.

"If I can only track you to your hold-out, my friend, I'll very soon put you and your fakirs out of business," he muttered. "I've got the letters and I'll get the child."

At the Tannery.

Alice had a tedious time up in the old tannery. Little Mabel soon awakened, terribly frightened. But Alice soothed her and soon had her quiet. They became friends and Mabel took to Alice immensely. As the hours wore on the child grew hungry and it was hard to pacify her. At last a heavy tread sounded outside the door.

"Is anybody in there?" called out a voice in English.

Alice failed to recognize the voice and did not know just what to do, but decided to answer in Italian.

"Yes, I am with the little girl."

"Corpo di Bocco!" cried the man, adding in Italian, "and who are you?"

"Maria Donati."

"Open the door."

"I can not, sir, I am locked in."

"I'll get you out!" and he proceeded to kick the door in.

The frightened child screamed and clung to Alice. "Oh, it's that bad man. Don't let him get me!" she begged.

It was Riffaldi, looking red and fierce. "See here, you," he said, "describe the man who hired you."

Alice described Tony.

"This child is mine," said Riffaldi. "You come with me."

The child clung to Alice, sobbing hysterically. Alice was not a little alarmed, but she caught up little Mabel and silently followed Riffaldi down the stairs into the office. He told her to sit there a moment while he went for some money to pay her.

It was too good a chance to miss. Alice opened the office door. There stood Old King Brady.

"Why, Alice!" he exclaimed. "And is this little Mabel Ray?"

"It is," replied Alice, hurriedly adding, "Riffaldi has just gone inside."

"Oh, I know. But what about Harry? I was in hopes you had seen him. Which way did Riffaldi go?"

"Back into the building. He said he was going down after some money."

"I'll go after him. You hurry away with the child. Look out for yourself and make no miss." And as Alice hurried up the street with little Mabel, Old King Brady entered the tannery and descended the cellar stairs.

The Round-up.

We left Harry digging for buried treasure with his hands. He had not removed much of the loose soil before his fingers struck metal, and in a minute he had unearthed a good-sized japanned cash box. He continued to dig, and soon was awarded with a second cash box, and still another. Then came four heavy bags filled with gold pieces. A paper parcel which proved to contain railroad bonds was the last. Beneath that the ground was undisturbed.

"And now to pull out," said George. "We can't very well carry these boxes with us as we climb. I'll go up first and you can tie them to the rope and we will haul them out."

Harry assented, and George began to climb the rope. He had almost reached the top when the strands parted and he fell heavily at Harry's feet.

"Oh, oh! I have broken my leg!" he groaned. And sure enough he had.

Presently hurried footsteps were heard overhead.

"He's coming!" groaned George. "We are up against it now."

Suddenly a fierce imprecation in Italian was heard. "Why, the cover is off! This is more of Tony's treacherous work!"

"That's Rif all right," breathed George. "You'll have to shoot him, Harry, or he'll shoot you."

The words were scarcely spoken when Riffaldi, who had come to get the bonds to give Old King Brady, flashed a light into the pit. What he said will not bear printing.

An instant later Harry heard a well-known voice exclaim, "Up hands, you fakir! I didn't get you when I raided your circus, but I've got you now!"

"It's the governor on the job," thought Harry. "It's all right now." And it was.

Old King Brady succeeded in handcuffing the circus fakir. Harry's shout brought immediate relief, for Riffaldi had brought a ladder along with him. This the old detective lowered into the hole, and the two young men were soon out.

"What in the world were you doing down there?" asked the old detective.

"Fishing for Spruce Ridge Bank money, and I've got it, too," was the reply.

It was a grand round-up. Riffaldi was landed in the station. Police returned with the Bradys and caught the two coiners in bed. Tony Pitato came along just at that time and was rounded up, too. Dick Rashleigh was already in jail.

All hands landed in Joliet.

George was sent to a hospital and was not arrested.

The Spruce Ridge Bank got nearly the whole of the stolen treasure, the Rays got little Mabel back, and Gov. Strong got back his damaging letters, while the Bradys for their share of the round-up of the circus fakirs received a liberal reward both from the governor and the Spruce Ridge Bank.

(Finis.)

Tomorrow Old and Young King Brady start on their search for the wooden idol. There is a thrill in every chapter. Don't miss it!

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

Although circumstances prevented my enjoying his performance with the "Rainbow Trail" unit, which ended its engagement at the Palace last night, so many have reported him as a genuine "show stopper" with his rope swinging, and so many others have made inquiries as to his origin, that I felt it incumbent to find out something about the past, present and possible future of this fellow Bud Carlell.

It seems that Mr. Carlell has been accustomed, year after year, to cop all of the top honors in his chosen profession at the annual Frontier Days Celebration in Cheyenne, Wyo. But to go back even further than that, Bud, I am told, was born and bred on the range near Okmulgee, Okla., and acquired the beginning of his present proficiency with the lassoes cutting out yearlings from the annual roundups.

A motion picture company once needed a few cowhands to add atmosphere to a "Western" it was making and Bud was one of the chosen. The taste of hotel life in the somewhat extended search for suitable locations completely spoiled his enthusiasm over the bunk house, chuck wagon and saddle. So he joined a circus. And then he took a whirl at vaudeville during the winter, and now look at him!

Mr. William E. Creecy, an important young functionary around this journal of uplift who sees to it that we do not run out of paste, pencils, erasers, photomallers and the like, informs me that to his notion the foregoing partakes distressingly of the quality of plain, unadulterated hooey, since a few years ago Bud Carlell was his near neighbor residing right here in Washington, and he has just come from a good-by visit with Mr. Carlell in his dressing room as this is written.

In the normal pursuit of my duties I long ago made the discovery that there are not enough hours in any given day for all of the things that need to be done, unless one is at least 98 parts owl, and now the idea seems to be spreading to the sanctuaries of the celluloids. What with early matutinal previews coming off all over town faster than you can say Jake Robinson, and two midnight performances last night at regular box office tariffs, this tranquil commonwealth is speedily going Times Square. And likes it!

It will be interesting to several old-timers I know that Percy Heath, co-author of the book of "Sari," in which Mitzi achieved one of her major successes under the direction of the late Henry W. Savage, is joint author with Elsie Janis and Gene Markey of Paramount's musical film, "Close Harmony."

When old Col. Frank P. Morse decorated the desk I now occupy and I sat where Mr. Daly has placed his waste basket and shears, it was the genial custom of Mr. Heath to tip back his chair, plant his heels upon the most important of the papers upon which we were engaged and observe that he felt himself then to be in the atmosphere of true art. It was usually several hours before Mr. Heath could be shut off, and then only upon the promise of—but that was a long time ago, and you probably wouldn't care about it, anyway.

However, three such authorities on backstage life as this trio insure "Close Harmony" more authenticity to the square inch than any talkie-singie-dancie ever written. The authenticity market, though, is not so hot, at that.

Jean Beverly, which is merely altitudinous millinery for Elizabeth Thornberry, "Betty" to those with sufficiently exotic accents, one of Washington's most popular soprano, will be heard again this week in conjunction with the augmented orchestra under the conductorship of Daniel Breeskin at the Earle Theater. During Easter week, Miss Beverly scored decisively in a group of familiar songs cleverly interwoven with the orchestral overture.

Following a four-day honeymoon at Lake Arrowhead, Baclanova, the Russian bonfire, and her husband, Nicholas Soussanin, have returned to the Hollywood film colony. And that reminds me! I have not as yet extended my congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Winchester, of the Fox, who were honeymooning yesterday after having been married by Bishop Freeman at the Cathedral the day before, or to Miss Irene Weber, who has returned to her secretarial duties in the executive offices of the same theater—all but the vermiform what-do-you-call-it.

I must tie some strings around my fingers!

All of the New York reviews of Clara Bow's first talking picture, "The Wild Party," a new sizzler by Warner Fabian, author of "Flaming Youth," I note, mention the fact that the ribald redhead is manifesting an increasing tendency toward embonpoint. Some even say she is getting fat.

It won't be long now until Uncle Jesse Lasky will have her reaching for the old hookah instead of a sweet!

So Earl Carpenter's band is back at the Fox—wonder when Waring's Pennsylvanians will be back at the Met? If ever.

"It's not raining rain, you know, it's raining violets." Pardon my dirty laugh.

Colored College Women in Session

Discuss Plans to Amalgamate All in One Big Organization.

The National Association of College Women met yesterday at the Phyllis Wheatley Young Women's Christian Association with the aim to unite in one organization all colored college women for mutual benefit and united effort in community welfare, to raise educational standards in colleges, to improve educational conditions for the negro, and to bring together white and colored college women for conference in interest of better understanding and better conditions of contact.

The association was addressed yesterday by Dean Dwight O. W. Holmes, of the School of Education of Howard University, who spoke on "Standardization of the Negro College," discussing especially a recent survey of the bureau of education covering this subject. Presiding at the sessions yesterday were Mrs. Vivian J. Cook and Miss Bertha McNeill.

Nominations, interracial, fellowship and educational policies committees will report this morning, Mrs. Erma B. Davis presiding. Mrs. Mary W. McNeill, member of the Board of Education, will be the luncheon speaker on "Preparation of Leaders for Negro Colleges." Dean Lucy D. Slowe, of Howard University, president of the national body, at 3 o'clock will introduce Mrs. Laura puffer Morgan, of the National Council for Prevention of War, who will speak on "College Women in International Relations."

A. U. to Hold Two-Day Ministers' "Retreat"

A "ministers' retreat" planned by American University for Monday and Tuesday, April 29 and 30, with Dr. Rufus M. Jones, of Haverford College, as the principal speaker.

Ministers of all denominations in the Capital area will be in attendance. The first session will be Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock, with other sessions Tuesday afternoon and Tuesday night, and dinner Tuesday night in the college dining hall. Sessions will be held in Hurst Hall on the campus.

Pulpit Topics and Flowers To Recall Spirit of Easter

Ninth Street Church Plans to Observe Anniversary of Pastor's Coming.

Guest Ministers to Preach for Mt. Vernon Place M. E. Congregation.

Edmonston.

THE REV. B. H. MELTON, whose thirty-second anniversary as pastor of the Ninth Street Christian Church will be celebrated tomorrow. Tomorrow is also the thirty-eighth anniversary of the church.

The spirit of Easter will linger in Protestant churches of Washington tomorrow. A number of pastors have chosen sermon subjects that are intended to remind worshipers that the Resurrection Day should be kept in mind throughout the year and not merely on one day in the year. Flowers that have not yet faded will remain in many churches to remind congregations of the holy season that they have recently recognized.

The Ninth Street Christian Church will celebrate its thirty-eighth anniversary and the thirty-second anniversary of the ordination of its pastor, the Rev. Benjamin H. Melton. Dr. Melton will have for his morning sermon subject, "An Ideal Church." His evening subject will be "The Family of God."

The pulpit of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church will be occupied by visiting preachers, who are attending the sessions of the Baltimore Annual Conference at Foundry Church. The Rev. Edward L. Watson, pastor of the Waverly Methodist Church, Baltimore, will preach at the morning service on "One Increasing Purpose." The sermon at the evening service will be by the Rev. F. Reid Isaac, jr., pastor of the Halethorpe Methodist Church, Halethorpe, Md. His subject will be "The Quest for Life."

The Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest, will preach on "The Riches of God's Wisdom" tomorrow morning. The vested choir, under the direction of Miss Ruby Smith Stahl, will sing. At the 8 o'clock service Dr. Pierce will speak on "A Higher Power." His address will be illustrated by "Rose of the Golden West," featuring Mary Astor and Gilbert Rowland.

Wesleyen Club to Sing.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock and on Monday night at 8 o'clock the Singers Club of Ohio Wesleyan University, assisted by an instrumental ensemble, will give two concert programs. This organization is composed of 40 young men and women and is said to have achieved national recognition. The director is Harrison D. Le Baron, director of the Ohio Wesleyen School of Music.

On Thursday night at 7:45 o'clock Dr. Pierce will speak on "Rivalry." His address will be illustrated by the Pathe feature, "The Yankee Clipper." The Sunday school will meet at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning; the adult classes at 10 o'clock. The Christian Endeavor Society will meet at 6:30 p. m.

The Rev. Harry L. Collier will preach at the Full Gospel Tabernacle, North Capitol and K streets, on "Windows of Prayer" at 10:45 o'clock tomorrow morning. At 7:30 o'clock he will preach on "Man's First and Last Word to God in the Bible." Services for the week include divine healing, at 7:45 o'clock Thursday; pentecostal, Wednesday at 7:45 o'clock; Bible study, Thursday at 7:45 o'clock, and Young Peoples meeting at 7:45 o'clock Friday.

The Rev. Frederic W. Perkins, minister of the National Memorial Universalist Church, will take the place of the Rev. Ulysses G. B. Pierce in the pulpit of All Souls' Unitarian Church, Sixteenth and Harvard streets. The feature at the motion picture hour in Pierce Hall at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night will be "Doomsday."

Subjects of Dr. Sizoo.

The Rev. Joseph D. Sizoo will preach at the 11 o'clock service of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church in the Masonic Auditorium. He will preach on "Courtesy." A new questionaire series will start after the evening sermon. The evening sermon subject will be "The Need of Patience."

"The Old Gospel and the New Birth" will be the subject at the 11 o'clock service of the Rev. Harold E. Beatty at the Georgetown Lutheran Church. The sermon subject at the 8 o'clock service will be "How Jesus Christ was Different After His Resurrection."

Special music will feature the morning service at the Northminister Presbyterian Chapel, at Alaska avenue and Kalmia road. The Rev. Carson, of the Takoma Park Presbyterian Church, will deliver the sermon.

Preaching in the pulpit of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, the Rev. Moses R. Lovell will take as his theme "The Washington Life Adjustment Center Reports to the Public." In this sermon the pastor will review the results of the free clinics which were held on Monday evenings during the inter months, bringing hundreds to the church for counsel by the staff of physicians, psychiatrist and social and religious workers.

Rabbi to Be Guest Preacher.

Rabbi Abram Simon, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, will preach Thursday night at the Mount Pleasant Church on "The Religion of the Ancient Hebrews."

The Rev. E. H. Swem, pastor of the Centennial Baptist Church, will base his evening sermon on an actual experience that he has not revealed before. An indication of the experience is given in the sermon's subject, "A Washington Man Thought I Was Deaf, But I Heard What He Said." The pastor's 11 o'clock subject is "I Hid."

"Cowboy" Joe Payne, the evangelist, will preach at the West Washington Baptist Church at 11 o'clock and 8 o'clock tomorrow. He also will preach every night during the week.

At the Parkview Christian Church, the pastor, the Rev. Walter F. Smith, will continue his series of illustrated sermons tomorrow night. Pictures of Palestine will be shown.

Dr. Earle Wilfley's morning sermon subject at the Vermont Avenue Christian Church will be "The Great Preparation." His evening topic will be "Mighty in Word and Deed." Special music, directed by W. E. Braithwaite, will be given at both services.

Rites to Be Held in Theater.

Services of the First Universalist Church at the Ambassador Theater will be led by a vested choir under direction of Albert W. Harned. The Rev. U. G. B. Pierce, of All Souls Unitarian Church, will preach.

Commander Maurice M. Witherspoon, of the Naval Chaplains Corps, will be the guest preacher at the Church of the Covenant at the morning service. His subject will be, "There Go the Ships." He has served as chaplain for the Navy for twelve years. He is at present stationed with the marines at Quantico, Va.

At the 8 o'clock service the Rev. William A. Eisenberg will preach on "Solving the Common Problem." The Sunday school will start at 9:45 o'clock. Dr. Charles Thom will teach the adult Bible class. Dr. A. J. Jackson will continue his series of sermons before the men's Bible class.

Judge J. Robert Anderson, of the Department of Justice, will address the Christian Endeavor Society at 7 o'clock. Mrs. Rowland Evans, on furlough from missionary work in Africa, will speak at the midweek service Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL WILL BE DEDICATED

Chevy Chase Baptists Plan Exercises Commemorative of Building Completion.

OTHER SUBURBAN EVENTS

Suburban churches of Washington have taken the opportunity of the first Sunday after Easter for the presentation of various special programs. Chief among these will be the formal dedication of the new Sunday school building of the Chevy Chase Baptist Church. This will take place at the regular session of the school at 9:30 o'clock. A representative from each organization of the church will tell briefly of the advantages of this addition, which was made necessary because of the rapid growth of the school in recent years. The Rev. H. W. O. Millington will make the dedicatory prayer.

At the morning church service at 11 o'clock the ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed. The pastor, the Rev. Edward O. Clark, will give a brief talk. In the evening, at 7:45 o'clock, Dr. Clark will preach on "Builders." The young people's service will convene at 6:45 o'clock.

Easter music will be repeated at the Takoma Park Baptist Church. The Rev. William E. La Rue, the pastor, will preach at 11 o'clock on "The Missionary Motive." At 8 o'clock, the Rev. H. P. Cochran, for 39 years a missionary in Burma, will speak.

The revival service that has been in progress for several weeks at the First Baptist Church of Hyattsville will be concluded tomorrow night. The Rev. John E. Briggs, pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church, will preach at this time. The regular pastor, the Rev. B. P. Robertson, will preach Sunday morning.

The East Riverdale Baptist Mission will begin special revival services at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Rev. T. E. Boorde, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church, will preach and continue sermons every night throughout the week.

The Rev. H. E. Reck will preach tomorrow morning at the Brightwood Park M. E. Church. Dr. Reck was formerly pastor of this church He is now pastor of the Paterson Memorial Church at Baltimore. The Rev. M. T. Tabler, of Hampstead, Md., will preach at the evening service.

C. N. Howard to Speak To Colored Citizens

Clinton N. Howard, chairman of the national united committee for law enforcement, will address a mass meeting of colored citizens at the Nineteenth Street Baptist Church tomorrow afternoon. His subject will be "The Rock of the American Republic." The Rev. Walter Brooks will preside.

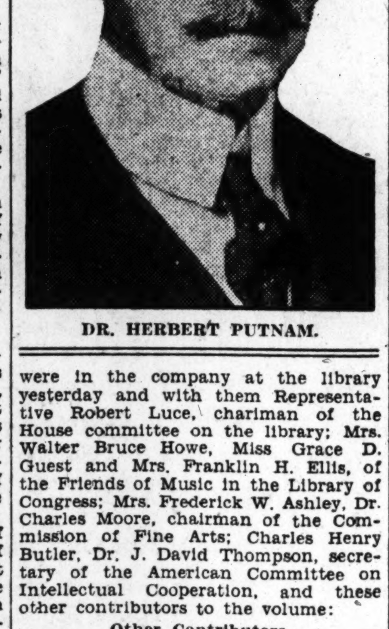

Mr. Howard will speak in the morning at the Kendall Baptist Church southwest, and in the evening at the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Protestant Church.

Presbyterian Business Meeting.

The annual business meeting of the congregation of Central Presbyterian Church will be held next Thursday. Reports for the year will be submitted. The reports will include the work of various organizations of the church. These reports will be sent to the Presbytery of Potomac, which meets in the Mount Washington Presbyterian Church in Baltimore, April 16.

Congressional Library Head Honored in Book of Essays

Friends Give Dr. Herbert Putnam Testimonial on 30th Anniversary.

DR. HERBERT PUTNAM.

Dr. Herbert Putnam was honored at the Library of Congress yesterday by being made the recipient of a volume of 61 essays written by as many contributors, printed and presented in commemoration of his thirtieth anniversary as librarian of Congress.

The volume is entitled "Essays Offered to Herbert Putnam by His Colleagues and Friends on His Thirtieth Anniversary as Librarian of Congress." Six hundred copies were printed and published by the Yale University Press under the joint editorship of Dr. William Warner Bishop, librarian of the University of Michigan, and Dr. Andrew Keogh, librarian of Yale.

Dr. Putnam also was presented with a check for $1,000 for the purchase of rare musical autographs or editions by the recently organized Friends of Music in the Library of Congress, of which Speaker Nicholas Longworth is president.

Contributors Are Guests.

Following presentation of the volume of essays at noon, the contributors present, of whom there were about 30, were guests of the chiefs of division at a luncheon in the round-table rooms at the Library of Congress. After luncheon Dr. Putnam was given a testimonial volume signed by members of the library staff who have been in the service for fifteen years or longer.

Senator Simeon D. Fess, chairman of the joint committee on the Library of Congress, is the author of the first essay in the volume and writes on "The Library." Senator Theodore E. Burton and Senator Frederick H. Gillett follow, each with an essay entitled "Herbert Putnam." Miss Gratia A. Countryman, librarian of the Minneapolis Public Library, writes on "Mr. Putnam and the Minneapolis Public Library;" Charles F. D. Belden, director of the Boston Public Library, on "The Library Service of Herbert Putnam in Boston;" Richard R. Bowker, editor of the Library Journal, on "The Appointment of Herbert Putnam as Librarian of Congress;" Melvil Dewey on "Herbert Putnam," and Dr. William Warner Bishop, who before he became librarian of the University of Michigan, was superintendent of the reading room of the Library of Congress, on "Thirty Years of the Library of Congress, 1899 to 1929."

Others Follow.

Then follow the 53 other contributors in alphabetical order, among them, from abroad, Jean Jules Jusserand, formerly Ambassador of France to the United States; Sir Frederick G. Kenyon, director of the British Museum; Dr. Hugo A. Kreuss, general director of the Prussian State Library; M. Pierre Roland-Marcel, administrator general of the National Library of France; T. P. Sevensma, librarian of the League of Nations, and Mgr. Eugene Tisserant, of the Library of the Vatican.

Maps accompany two of the essays, and there are also in the volume five portraits of Dr. Putnam. One is from the album of the class of 1883, Harvard College; three are dated, respectively, 1898, 1900 and 1912. The frontispiece is a reproduction of a photograph by Miss Laura Gilpin, of a portrait bust of Dr. Putnam executed in 1923 by his daughter, Miss Brenda Putnam, who was at the presentation.

Of the contributors mentioned, Senator Fess, Senator Gillett, Dr. Bishop, Dr. Keogh, Mr. Belden and Mr. Bowker were in the company at the library yesterday and with them Representative Robert Luce, chariman of the House committee on the library; Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, Miss Grace D. Guest and Mrs. Franklin H. Ellis, of the Friends of Music in the Library of Congress; Mrs. Frederick W. Ashley, Dr. Charles Moore, chairman of the Commission of Fine Arts; Charles Henry Butler, Dr. J. David Thompson, secretary of the American Committee on Intellectual Cooperation, and these other contributors to the volume:

Other Contributors.

Miss Claribel R. Barnett, librarian of the United States Department of Agriculture; Dr. J. Christian Day, librarian of the John Crerar Library, Chicago; Dr. Edwin M. Borchard, Yale University; Dr. George F. Bowerman, librarian of the Public Library of the District of Columbia; Miss Linda A. Eastman, librarian of the Cleveland Public Library; Milton J. Ferguson, librarian of the California State Library, Sacramento; Dr. Allen Johnson, editor of the Dictionary of American Biography; Dr. Harry Lyman Koopman, librarian of the John Hay Library, Brown University; Dr. William C. Lane, librarian emeritus, Harvard University; Leonard L. Mackall, Savannah, Ga.; Carl H. Milan, secretary of the American Library Association; Samuel H. Ranck, librarian of the Grand Rapids Public Library; Carl B. Roden, librarian of the Chicago Public Library, and Dr. Walter T. Swingle, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture.

BISHOP TO PREACH AT EVENSONG RITES

Right Rev. J. E. Freeman Will Conduct Service in Chapel of Cathedral.

TRINITY PLANS FESTIVAL

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will be the special preacher at the people's evensong in Bethlehem Chapel of Washington Cathedral at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The sermon at the 11 o'clock celebration of Holy Communion will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, canon of Washington Cathedral. The Easter music will be repeated at both these services by the cathedral choir of men and boys, under direction of Edgar Priest, organist and choirmaster.

The full list of services tomorrow in Bethlehem Chapel will be as follows: Holy Communion at 7:30, morning prayer and litany at 10, Holy Communion and sermon at 11, people's evensong and sermon at 4 o'clock.

A special invitation has been extended by the cathedral officials to visitors in the city, as well as residents, to attend these services.

At the Trinity Episcopal Church, Third and C streets northwest, a festival service will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. Canon Stokes will officiate and preach, assisted by Canons Peter and Wolven and the vicar, the Rev. Jackson L. Cole.

PERSHING MAY GET HERRICK PARIS POST

Frank B. Kellogg, recently retired Secretary of State, and others.

President Hoover is known to be looking for a man of acknowledged qualifications. He is understood to have offered the ambassadorship to Great Britain to Charles G. Dawes, who retired from the Vice Presidency on March 4, and selection of Dawes and Pershing would place two of the Nation's World War figures and its outstanding citizens in the two most sought diplomatic posts.

It is believed here that Gen. Pershing, now in Paris, would prove a happy selection in the eyes of the French as a successor to Mr. Herrick, whose popularity at Paris was great. At the funeral services in Paris Thursday for Mr. Herrick, Gen. Pershing was one of the speakers.

Since the stirring war days when Pershing commanded America's troops in France the general has often revisited that country. He is now retired from the Army, but by a special act of Congress draws the full salary of a general. Should he be appointed it is believed he would be kept on that pay. It is against law to draw two Government salaries at once, but his Army pay would be larger than that of an ambassador.

Financial ability to meet the many social demands in the Diplomatic Corps is an important factor in the availability of a man for such appointment. There is reason to be believe that Pershing would look favorably on a diplomatic post.

There is no indication that President Hoover will make an early selection. The body of Herrick is now en route to this country for burial and some believe the President will not act until services for him in this Nation have been completed.

Despite his close friendship to Mr. Hoover, it is believed Hugh Gibson, Ambassador to Belgium, is not under consideration and it is believed by his own dictation.

There is considerable discussion going on at the State Department and the White House over the Paris post. The name of Senator Edge (Republican), New Jersey, has been mentioned along with that of Davis. Another name heard in the speculation at the department is that of J. Calvin Brown, a New Yorker who participated very actively in the campaign for Hoover.

Pershing Catches Cold At Herrick's Funeral

Paris, April 5 (U.P.).—Gen. John J. Pershing caught cold while walking bareheaded at the Herrick funeral here yesterday and was unable to accompany the body to Brest.

Georges Leygues, French minister of marine, contracted rheumatism while attending the funeral of Marshal Foch last week.

C. W. Lockwood Weds Miss Marjorie Adams

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, April 5.—The wedding of Miss Marjorie Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hearne Oliver Adams, to Chester Walker Lockwood, son of Mrs. Thomas W. Lockwood, of Washington, D. C., took place this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Adams home, 119 East Eighty-fourth street. The Rev. Dr. Randolph Ray, rector of the Church of the Transfiguration, performed the ceremony in the presence of immediate relatives. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by Miss Elizabeth McKinney, of Cleveland, as maid of honor. Winthrop Lockwood was his brother's best man.

Upon their return from a honeymoon trip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood will live in Washington. The wedding was to have taken place in February, but was postponed on account of the illness of the bride.

BAPTISTS TO HOLD SCHOOL INSTITUTE

Teachers and Departmental Workers Will Get Pointers at Calvary Church.

SESSIONS START APRIL 14

A city-wide Baptist Sunday school institute will open in Washington Sunday, April 14, at Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and streets northwest, lasting until Friday, April 19.

The institute is being planned for all general and departmental workers, teachers and others interested in Sunday school work, under auspices of the Baptist Sunday School Superintendents Association, in connection with the committee on Sunday school work of the Columbia Association of Baptist Churches.

The faculty for the institute is being supplied by the Baptist Publication Society of the Northern Baptist convention. It consists of the Rev. Henry W. O. Millington, executive secretary of the Columbia Association of Baptist Churches of the District; the Rev. Owen C. Brown, secretary of the department of religious education and director of leadership training of the American Baptist Publication Society, of Philadelphia; Miss Margaret M. Clemens, editor of children's publications; Mrs. Elizabeth M. Finn, director of week day and vacation church school work; the Rev. John Wesley Elliott, director of social education and younger people's work; Mrs. Mary M. Chalmers, director of adult work and parent education, and Mrs. Frederick W. Tomlinson, specialist in children's work in the Church School, Philadelphia.

The last Sunday school institute had an aggregate attendance of more than 4,000, and it is expected that even a greater number will be enrolled this year.

Churches' Federation To Name New Officers

Officers of the executive committee of the Washington Federation of Churches will be elected at the annaul meeting of the organization next Thursday, at the City Club.

Dr. Harvey Baker Smith, president of the federation, will preside, and present the annual report. Committee reports will be heard as well as a number of special addresses.

"Sleep and Dreams" Is Topic.

"Sleep and Dreams" will be the subject of a lecture at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night at the United Lodge of Theosophists, 709 Hill Building, Seventeenth and I streets northwest. The subject of "psychic forces" will be discussed at the study class Wednesday night.

Building for Success

It takes about two years to build a skyscraper.

It takes a lifetime to build a man.

The public does not see the foundation of the building. The engineer does. He knows that the foundation required more study and time to construct than that part of the building seen by the public.

The character of a nation is made up of the character of its individuals. It takes a long time to build the character of a nation.

It is impossible to build it unless the foundation is properly begun by training the youth in preparation for the places they will occupy in later life.

The increasing juvenile delinquency of today is caused by neglect on the part of society in properly preparing the foundation of character in childhood.

Crime costs more than war. It costs more than education. It costs more than war and education combined.

Parents who begin the moral training of their child early in life are laying the foundation for Happiness and Success. Those who neglect it are storing up sorrow for themselves and trouble for the Nation.

DATA ON PATRONAGE SHOW BIG PAYMENTS

Brookhart Produces the Files Showing Contributions of Postmasters.

SOME INFER BUYING JOBS

(Associated Press.)

Chairman Brookhart, of the Senate patronage committee, reached into a heavy file of correspondence yesterday and drew out a sheaf of letters, telegrams and affidavits to show that large sums of money were contributed to Republican campaign funds in five Southern States by Federal officeholders.

In Mississippi, affidavits collected by the Post Office Department disclosed that 110 postmasters gave more than $12,000 to the Republican funds, some of the money going to E. P. Booze, husband of the negro Republican national committeewoman. While nearly all said the subscriptions were voluntary some of the affidavits inferred that money was paid in return for postmastership appointments.

A former Arkansas postmaster declared he gave $378 for his job, and a former Tennessee postmaster asserted that he contributed $200 and two hogs for his appointment. An Alabama physician said he believed appointments were being "given to the highest bidder in the State."

Texas Letters Read.

Texas letters and memoranda, put into the record at the request of R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman for that State, revealed that a large number of office holders, many of whom were recommended by Creager, had been regular contributors over a period of years. Nearly all of the letters praised Creager's methods, but some did the opposite.

Brookhart read a telegram in which Creager accused the senator of falsehood with respect to a recent statement.

"Creager," Bookhart said, "is intellectually dishonest. The charges laid before this committee indicate that Creager has demoralized his organization in Texas. The immoral purpose of these contributions is unexplained."

Among the Mississippi affidavits was one from R. K. Haxton, postmaster at Greenville, which declared that he gave $2,125 to the Republican organization there. Of the amount, he said $500 went for stock in an insurance company. It was explained to him, he said, that "as the officers were men of strong Republican influence in the State, it would be a mighty good thing to take some stock."

W. T. Heslep, postmaster at Indianola, Miss., said he gave $425, and C. V. Taylor, postmaster at Clarksdale, Miss., said he contributed $555.

Arkansan Issues Denial.

Little Rock, Ark., April 5 (A.P.).—Denial was made here today by Wallace Townsend, Republican committeeman for Arkansas, on behalf of G. E. Hammans, of Stuttgart, that J. Y. Sayre, former postmaster of Stuttgart, had paid Hammans for the postmastership appointment as reported to the Senate patronage investigating committee.

Townsend, after talking with Hammans on the telephone, quoted Hammans as saying that as treasurer of the Arkansas County Republican committee he received $110 from Sayre in 1924 as a contribution to the Republican campaign fund, but denied emphatically he had ever been paid by Sayre to aid him in obtaining the appointment.

Townsend said Sayre was not reappointed postmaster because postal inspectors reported the postoffice in "poor" condition.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau.
Washington, Friday, April 5—8 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia—Partly cloudy and continued warm Saturday, followed by thundershowers Saturday night or Sunday; colder Sunday afternoon or night; increasing southwest winds, becoming fresh to strong.

For Maryland and Virginia—Partly cloudy, possibly scattered thundershowers in west portions Saturday; Sunday showers, with cooler in west portions; increasing southwest winds, becoming fresh to strong.

A disturbance that was central over northern Utah Thursday evening has moved northeastward with increased intensity, Moorhead, Minn., 28.92 inches. Pressure continues high off the Florida coast, Titusville, 30.22 inches, and is high from the mouth of the St. Lawrence, Father Point, Que., 30.22 inches, northwestward over Hudson Bay, Churchill, 30.22 inches, while pressure is rising over the northern Rocky Mountain region. During the last 24 hours there has been precipitation, mostly in the form of rain, from the New England States westward to the Rocky Mountains, rains in the Pacific States, and rains and snows in the Plateau and northern Rocky Mountain regions. Temperatures continue generally much above the seasonal normal east of the Rocky Mountains, except the northern Plains States, where there has been a decided fall in temperature.

The indications are for showers and thunderstorms Saturday in the North Atlantic States, and scattered thundershowers in the Ohio Valley. On Sunday, showers and thunderstorms will be general over much of the Washington forecast district, except the Southeastern States. It will be somewhat warmer in the interior of New England Saturday, followed by colder weather Sunday and Sunday night over most sections except the Southeastern States.

to believe that Poutra and a companion became involved with his killers in an alleged dope transaction and that the shooting was an act of retribution on the part of the racketeers who believed they had been double-crossed in the alleged deal.

It is also believed that Poutra's killers were out "gunning" for him in his usual haunts several hours before he was slain and that the shooting occurred in the Green Gables roadhouse only because the slayers missed their intended victim in Washington.

Sheriff Charles S. Early, of Prince Georges County, in explaining why Maryland authorities feel that the presence of Ruth Bradley is not necessary for a solution of the Green Gables mystery, said the warrant charging her with the murder of Poutra was issued only because they believed the red-haired prisoner was a man. Lynn Dalton, they later discovered, was only one of the many aliases she traveled under.

Prisoners Still Held.

The grand jury investigation of the murder was ordered postponed until Monday, yesterday, by J Frank Parran, State's attorney for Prince Georges County, who is in receipt of information which, it is believed, will lead to the capture of Poutra's slayer.

Ruth Bradley yesterday spent a quiet day in the House of Detention, as a result of the failure of local police to carry out their promise to grill her further on her connection with the Green Gables murder.

Detective Sergeant Joseph Waldron, who, with Lieut. Edward Kelly, chief of the headquarters homicide squad, is leading the local investigation into the roadhouse shooting, said yesterday the red-haired prisoner may be taken to court today for arraignment on the grand larceny warrant, which involved the alleged theft of $1,300 in furniture.

Efforts on the part of attorneys for Emilio Torre, Joe Hauser, Lucille Grisson and Evelyn Metcalf, to obtain their release on bond from the Marlboro jail where they are being held as accessories to the Poutra murder, failed again yesterday.

Parran plans to bring the prisoners before the grand jury Monday morning and told Lucien H. Mercier, attorney for the two women that he probably will order the release of the prisoners on heavy bond after they have testified before the grand jury.

Mercier yesterday said the Grisson woman "passed out" a short time before Poutra was killed and was sleeping in an automobile belonging to Louis Behrens, also known as "John Bunny," when the gun battle occurred. Mercier said his client told him Behrens carrying Poputra from the scene of the shooting, pulled her out of the machine and drove off to Emergency Hospital with the wounded man, leaving her lying on the ground. Another automobile brought the Grisson woman to Washington, Mercier said.

TWO-PARTY BATTLE ON TARIFF FEARED

Flexible Provisions of Act May Cause Clash at Special Session.

HULL LEADS OPPOSITION

(Associated Press.)

Prospects for a Republican-Democratic clash over the flexible provisions of the tariff act are becoming stronger daily at the Capitol as majority members of the House ways and means committee proceed with revision of the Fordney-McCumber law of 1922.

While the administrative provisions of the act have yet to be taken up with a view to making changes, it is understood the Republican members are pondering the advisability of strengthening the flexible section. Some Democrats, including Representative Hull, of Tennessee, would like to see that provision eliminated. The minority members, however, will have no say in writing the law until it reaches the house floor.

Hull Hits Provision.

A former chairman of the Democratic national committee, Hull contends the flexible provision "has failed in practical value, kept business in a State of uncertainty; consumed most of the time of the tariff commission; absorbed a large amount of the time of the President, already overburdened; almost divorced the tariff commission from relationship with Congress in connection with which its chief duties should lie; lowered the personnel and involved it in bitter factional differences."

As now written, it authorizes the President to raise or lower a tariff as much as 50 per cent if, after an investigation of a complaint by the tariff commission, it is established that an existing duty fails to equalize the cost of production here and abroad.

Since its enactment seven years ago the flexible clause has been invoked in about three dozen instances, increases being granted in most of them. Criticisms have been directed at the length of time required by the commission to investigate and report, and it is the situation which the Republican committee members hope to correct.

Change to Be Considered.

It is understood that a change will be considered by the Republicans to place a time limit within which the commission would be required to act on a complaint. It is pointed out that with no such limitation the commission has taken several years to act in some cases where quick relief had been sought.

Should this change finally be agreed upon, it is expected to meet Democratic opposition, as Representative Garner, of Texas, the new minority leader and ranking Democrat on the ways and means committee, has announced he favors creation of a fact-finding body answerable to Congress instead of the President.

The Garner proposal would eliminate the flexible provisions and return to the House, where all tariff legislation must originate, the exclusive power to revise tariff rates. Garner also would have members of the commission, now made up of three Republicans and three Democrats, appointed by the Speaker of the House instead of the President.

ARNSTEIN ACCUSER FAILS TO PICK HIM

Recognizes Only One of Trio Taken as Suspects, but All Are Held.

SECOND CHARGE LOOMS

New York, April 5 (A.P.).—A New England Hotel owner who said he was swindled out of $32,000 and for whom New York police yesterday arrested three men, looked on Nicky Arnstein today and failed to identify him and another man, but did identify a third prisoner. The three were held for examination tomorrow.

After 100 masked detectives had satisfied their professional curiosity by inspection of Arnstein, Harry Fields and Stewart Donnelly in the criminal line-up at police headquarters, the three men were made to mingle with a group of plain-clothes men at headquarters. There Charles Correa, a bellboy, and Thomas Kearns, Taunton, Mass., the hotel owner, picked out Donnelly as a member of the swindling trio.

Arnstein and Fields were cleared, at least so far as Kearns was concerned, but later Magistrate Witale ordered the two men held without bail for examination tomorrow as suspected fugitives from justice. He set bail of $25,000 for Donnelly.

Counsel for the trio protested and when Detective Schnaibte said he wanted a man named Carlson, recently swindled out of $3,000, to look at the three men, Joseph Shelleck, attorney for Arnstein and Fields, declared:

"They are trying to foist every crime in this city on my clients."

Instead of having been conferring on a theatrical venture with Kearns in the Bellmore Hotel in Taunton, last December when the proprietor said the money was stolen from a bureau drawer, the three men declared they were in Florida and Cuba. Donnelly has been indicted in Taunton under the name of Edward Perry, alias Merger. When arrested he said he was James Thompson, a theatrical promoter, but police remembered him as a former pugilist, who before his retirement in 1916 had met such opponents as Ad Wolgast, Battling Nelson and Wills.

Fields said he was a theatrical manager, and Arnstein, whose real name is Jules Arnold, said he now was interested in real estate and the promoter of a chain of restaurants in Pittsburgh.

Convict Cuts Through Stone Ceiling; Escapes

Jackson, Mich., April 5 (A.P.).—After having worked with crude tools, apparently for several months, Sylvester Nowakowski, 30, an inmate of Michigan State Prison, made his escape some time last night through a hole he had sawed in the 6-inch stone ceiling of his cell.

The convict had used pieces of heavy steel wire for drills and a steel bar, notched, for a saw. With these he had cut away a block of the stone ceiling about 12 by 18 inches. Last night he made a dummy for his cot. Then he crawled through the hole, entered an attic, broke through a slate roof and lowered himself to the ground outside the walls with a rope of sheets and burlap sacking. He was serving a sentence of ten to fifteen years for robbery.

Chest Group Returns Al Capone's Donation

Miami, Fla., April 5 (A.P.).—Community chest officials today returned to "Scarface Al" Capone his check for $1,000, contributed on solicitation of campaign workers to the chest fund.

Check was mailed back with only the explanation that by majority vote chest officials had decided not to accept it.

Men Lend Uncle $1,000; Bequeathed Million Each

Leavenworth, Kans., April 5 (A.P.). Fifteen years ago two nephews of Peter Brill, late wealthy Ukiah, Calif., lumberman, lent him $500 each. Today one of the nephews, Peter J. Smith, a painter here, was informed that he would share equally in Brill's $2,000,000 estate with John Glennon, the other nephew, believed to be in New York.

Smith was found here today by Chief of Police John Glynn at the request of Roy E. Scharren, executor of Brill's will.

The painter, who is unmarried, told of the loan today. He said his uncle declared all of his other relatives had turned him down.

"You boys will never regret this," Smith quoted Brill as saying. The uncle, having amassed a fortune, died March 3.

Women to End Dry Act, Says Mrs. Orvis

Resigned, Says G.O.P. Committeewoman, to War on Prohibition.

New York, April 5 (A.P.).—The New York Herald Tribune today quoted Mrs. George Orvis as saying her recent resignation as Republican national committeewoman from Vermont was due to a desire to work for a change in the prohibition law.

"I believe it will be women who will in the end be responsible for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment," she said. "When it becomes clear to the men that women are not all dry, as is so often said, they will be willing to consider a change."

Mrs. Orvis announced her resignation several weeks ago, shortly after that of Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, committeewoman from New York, but neither Mrs. Sabin later said she had quit to work against prohibition.

U. S. Asks $1,286,200 From Live Stock Men

Kansas City, April 5 (A.P.).—Suits against 118 Kansas City live stock commission men, seeking penalties totaling $1,286,200 for failure to make a 1927 report of business transacted, were prepared for filing by the Government in Federal district court today.

The proposed penalty was figured by the Government at the rate of $100 a day against each alleged violator. The defendants are charged with withholding information from December 12, 1928, to April 1, 1929.

Beer Vender Liberated On Pleading Ignorance

Chicago, April 5 (A.P.).—It was not until after police raided his soft-drink parlor and confiscated his stock that he discovered he had been selling real beer at near-beer prices, Joseph Sturkes told Judge Daniel P. Trude today.

He said he bought the beer at a local bottling works for near beer and sold it as such. Analysis showed that it contained 3.1 per cent alcohol.

"I'll have to find a new place to buy beer," Sturkes told the court.

"I guess you will," the judge agreed. "Dismissed."

Army Day's Program on Air at Noon

Good and Summerall Are Among Speakers—Music by Army Band—Needs of Schools by LeFevre Over WMAL.

A celebration of the first annual Army day, to be held on the steps of the War Department Building will be relayed to the Nation through the National Broadcasting Company system at 12:15 p. m. today.

These ceremonies, which mark the twelfth anniversary of America's entrance into the great war, will be conducted under the auspices of the District of Columbia Chapter of the Military Order of the World War. Speakers on the program include James W. Good, Secretary of War; Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the United States Army, and Mrs. Nicholas N. Nock, a Gold Star mother.

Maj. Gen. Creed Hammond, commander of the chapter which is sponsoring the event, will preside. He will announce the various veterans' organizations participating in the program. A tribute to the flag will be given by Capt. George Unmacht. The broadcast will open and close with martial and patriotic airs by the United States Army Band.

The "Flying Dutchman" overture of Wagner opens the coast-to-coast symphony concert to be broadcast in the General Electric Hour at 9 o'clock. Under the direction of Walter Damrosch, veteran symphony conductor, the big orchestra will present the following program:

Overture to "The Flying Dutchman," Wagner; "Barcarolle," Saint-Saens; "Funeral March," Grieg; second movement from "Symphony in D Minor," Franck; Ballet music from "Les Petits Riens," Mozart, and march from "Coq d'Or," Rimsky-Korsakoff.

"Lucky Night" will be observed when the coast-to-coast program of the Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra is broadcast at 10 o'clock. In addition to the theme tune of the hour, "This Is My Lucky Day," the orchestra will play "Lucky Star," "Lucky in Love" and "Lucky Girl." Other numbers include "Annabelle Lee," "Button Up Your Overcoat," "I'll Get By," "Farewell, My Blue Bell," "Roses of Picardy," "So Blue," "My Blue Ridge Mountain Home," "Rose of Washington Square," "I Ain't Got Nobody," "Say It With Music," a Gilbert and Sullivan waltz revue; "Dinah," "Oh, Miss Hannah," "Yoo Hoo" and "Song of the Vagabonds."

The Wardman Park Dance Orchestra will present an hour of dance music at 11 o'clock from WRC.

"The Ministry of Isaiah," by Dr. Homer J. Councilor, president of the Organized Bible Class Association, will be the speaker in the Saturday evening Bible Talk at 7 o'clock.

William M. Stewart, director of the Bureau of Census, will discuss the work of that department of the Government at 7:45 o'clock from the studios of WRC.

This will be followed by a speech by Judge Theodore Risley, solicitor of the Department of Labor, before the Workers Education Bureau of America, meeting for dinner at the Hotel Hamilton.

James W. Good, Secretary of War, will be heard a second time during the day at 10 o'clock from Station WMAL. Attorney General William D. Mitchell will share honors with Secretary Good in this broadcast.

WMAL will present Fannie Shreve Heartsill, soprano, and Francis P. Heartsill, basso, in a joint recital at 8 o'clock. "Present and Future Needs of the D. C. Public Schools" is the subject of a talk by Charles H. LeFevre, at 8:30 o'clock.

The Swanee Syncopators will provide an hour of dance music, beginning at 9 o'clock. Two dance orchestras will be heard between 11 o'clock and midnight.

WJSV will begin a presentation of a variety of Saturday night entertainment at 8 o'clock when Robert G. Johnson will appear before the microphone with his jewsharp. He is followed by the Shenandoah Valley Boys and Plantation Echoes. Big Ed, Pa Brown and the Little Browns, Woodville Brown, the Southern Troubadour, and Atwell's Lowden Rangers are all scheduled.

Dinner music, a request program and "Amos 'n' Andy" are the main features to be heard from WOL during the early part of the evening. A dance program has been arranged for 10 o'clock. This will continue for two hours.

WSM, Nashville, will present a barn dance program, beginning at 9:45 o'clock and lasting until past midnight.

What Today Means to You

April 6.

By MARY BLAKE.

ARIES.

IF April 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you today are from 8 a. m. to 9:15 a. m., from noon to 2 p. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 7:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:50 a. m. and from 3:15 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.

The omens are very favorable today for business ventures, especially those that are related to real estate. More than usual care, however, must be exercised in forming new associations, as those whom you desire to trust may prove deceptive and disappointing.

The child born today will be capable and quite able to fend for itself. It will be self-reliant, pushful and energetic. Not overendowed with intelligence, it will possess a great fund of practical common sense and is bound to win through.

You have the well-earned reputation of being brutally frank. You never dissemble your thoughts, but give full and free expression to them. This, of course, enables one and all to know where you stand, but you often have to stand alone. Your candor makes for you few friends but many enemies.

You possess great powers of concentration, and this is one of your most useful gifts, as it enables you to accomplish much valuable work. You have a very quick mind, and a streak of impatience, especially with slow-speaking or ponderous people. You do not hesitate to break in on their conversation, and this is another factor that estranges many persons.

You are very enterprising, adaptive and resourceful, and you believe in scattering your efforts rather than in confining them to one particular line. You are quite extreme in both your actions and your opinions. You make sudden decisions, which you often have cause to regret, but for which you never apologize to yourself or to others.

You have a high sense of honor and duty, but are rather hidebound by convention. In your home life, even though you may be uncongenially mated, no one will ever guess it—least of all, your mate—as you will play the game, and your great self-pride will never permit you to admit that your judgment has been at fault.

Successful people born April 6:
William R. King, statesman.
Thomas W. Gilmer, statesman.
Joseph Medill, journalist.
Winfield Scott Sims, inventor.
Merrill E. Gates, educator.
James Mill, historian and political economist.

WORK ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

"The Auction Player unfamiliar with Contract is apt to be troubled by the big difference between Auction and Contract values for tricks, under-tricks, premiums, slams and rubbers, etc. The vulnerability feature of Contract is also apt to be confusing.

"As a special service to our readers, Mr. Work will be glad to send you upon request, complimentary, a complete statement explaining all these new features, provided you inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for his reply. Mr. Work also answers all Auction and Contract questions without charge."

YESTERDAY we named the various kind of assets that may aid the partner of a suit-bidder in raising or jumping the suit that has been bid; they are high cards, ability to ruff, more than normal length of suit bid, and a strong five-card suit. The respective values of all of these various assets have been estimated in a simple manner, which may be readily used.

We will consider high-card valuations first.

Value of High Cards in Pardner's Suit.

	Suit of at least 3 Cards	Only two Cards in Suit
Ace	5	3
King	4	2
Queen	3	1

In the somewhat unusual case in which two high honors are held in partner's suit, the value of the higher would be as above; the lower would be rated as follows:

	Suit of at least 3 Cards	Only two Cards in Suit
King	5	5

The value of high cards in any one of the side suits is:

	When Highest Card of Suit	With Higher Honor
Ace	5
King	3	5

In the above table it will be noted that 5-3-1—the respective values for Ace, King or Queen at head of suit—are also the respective values for King, Queen or Jack with a higher honor. Of course, the higher honor retains the value shown in the left-hand column. Consequently, an Ace counts 5, a King if top of suit 3; but Ace-King would count 10. A King at head of suit counts 3, a Queen at head of suit 1, so a King in one suit and a Queen in another count 4; but King-Queen would count 6, the King maintaining its value of 3 and the Queen, by reason of the higher honor being with it, 3 instead of 1.

Suppose the partner of a player who had bid one or two Spades held:

♥ Q-X-X-X
♦ A-K-X
♣ Q-J-X

87

His hand would count: Spades, 3; Hearts, 1; Diamonds, 10; Clubs, 2—total, 16.

This subject will be continued next Friday.

New SOS Rule Asked By Hooper

Authority on Some One in Localities Urged When Shore Stations May Not Send Signal — Put to Radio Commission.

The Navy Department, though Capt. S. C. Hooper, director of naval communications, has submitted a recommendation to the Federal Radio Commission that some one authority in each locality be responsible for determining when shore stations may or may not transmit following the sending of an S O S signal.

"In New York a local agreement exists," the Navy Department explains, "between the Department of Commerce radio supervisor and the Naval District commandant whereby the New York Naval Radio Station guards the distress frequency and notifies broadcasting and other shore radio stations when service is to be suspended and resumed because of distress messages. In a recent case, this definite control arrangement resulted in broadcast stations at New York being inoperative for but about 50 minutes, whereas stations in Washington, Baltimore and Norfolk were silent for several hours, due to indefinite control in the latter cities.

"The Federal Radio Commission, whose existence has been extended by law to January 1, 1930, is the body responsible for issuing necessary orders for the control of privately-owned shore transmitters during transmission of radio distress traffic. The commission may require broadcasting stations whose transmissions are liable to interfere with the transmission or reception of distress traffic of ships to keep a licensed radio operator on watch on the distress frequency during the entire period the transmitter of the broadcasting station is in operation.

"The U. S. radio act, approved February 23, 1927, states in part, 'All radio stations, including Government stations and stations on board foreign vessels when within the territorial waters of the United States, shall give absolute priority to radio communications or signals relating to ships in distress; shall cease all sending on frequencies or wave lengths which will interfere with hearing a radio communication or signal of distress and, except when engaged in answering or aiding the ship in distress, shall refrain from sending any radio communications or signals until there is assurance that no interference will be caused with the radio communications or signals relating thereto, and shall assist the vessel in distress, so far as possible, by complying with its instructions.'

"The International Radiotelegraph Convention provides in part, 'The control of distress communications devolves upon the mobile station in distress or upon the mobile station which sent the distress call. These stations may delegate the control of the distress communications to another station. All stations which are within the range of the distress communications but which do not take part in them must refrain from using the distress wave until the distress communications are finished. As soon as these communications are established on the distress wave, mobile stations not taking part in them may continue their normal service on other authorized waves of type A-1, if by so doing they are still able effectively to receive the distress traffic. When distress communications are ended and silence is no longer necessary, the station which has controlled these communications shall send a message on the distress wave addressed to CQ, indicating that the distress communications are ended.'"

Hula Skirts on Sale; Leis Also Imported

Portland, April 5.—A consignment of artificial hibiscus leis, a large number of hula skirts and a set of motion picture reels illustrating life in Hawaii will serve as a means of getting Portlanders acquainted with their neighbors of the midpacific islands in the near future, according to plans formulated by Abe Meier, president of the Meier & Frank Co., who is now at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel.

Mr. Meier, observing how beautiful both the leis of real flowers and those of artificial flowers were when worn at evening affairs, proposes to bring a large shipment of them to Portland to replace the time-honored corsage bouquet for evening wear.

Dare Interprets the Mode

True beauty lovers require beauty in everything around them, and Clever Fingers finds time to make art covers for her treasured books and ordinary boxes! (A Dah-ray Design.)

New York, April 5, 1929.

DID you ever stop to think just what is it that gives those little art shoppes and dainty tea rooms such a lure? And what gives the objects in them that one "just can't live without" such a price?

Nothing but imagination. For the execution of that imagination. For well does the proprietress know that most women would rather pay $20 for a book cover than spend half a day making it!

That's all right—but if you haven't the $20, what do you do—go without? Well, we don't. We spend the time and make 'em ourselves.

A thing of beauty is a joy forever—and half a day is very little time to spend on things that last forever and help to create around one the atmosphere of beauty one craves.

The clever June bride will take stock of her imminent financial status and take steps to get the things she wants for her new home, regardless of money. The tired housewife, with her spirits unconsciously dulled by the same outlook, will take the time to change her outlook. Everything is at their disposal—paints, enamels, books of instructions, ideas, talents and imaginations of others. For $7, a lampshade that costs $50. For $2, shellacked designs to paste on your bedroom furniture and add $100 to its value. For $3 new checkered drapes, table covers, dish towels and handle pads for the kitchen, and a renewed interest in being in it!

Just for that, we have finished covering a lot of our most beloved books, and a lot of nice boxes, which were beginning to show wear and tear, dirt and what not! And because it was so easy and so entirely much fun—and because the results were truly lovely, we made a leaflet telling you how to do it! And sh-h-h-h, what about the fam-mouse art collector who picked up "South Wind" and said, "Hm, what a beautiful cover, where did you find it?"

Stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post, you know, for the leaflet!

Many, many things we sketch are practical, dear readers. Ever and anon comes a wail to the effect that they are lovely, but beyond the average purse. They are not. In the first place, they indicate the newest styles so that one won't go wrong in selections. And in the second and most important place, they cover a wide range of tastes, figures and types. Every type and every age can find something useful in this column at some time—that's a specialty of ours. Just look at the garment, not necessarily at the fashion figure it is sketched on.

And today's illustration—cut it out and paste it to one of your books—we tell you all about it in our new leaflet. And another interesting design goes with the leaflet, too.

For Wee Mamzelle.

Last of the week—and last chance to send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet telling you how to make Wee Mamzelle's new spring wardrobe!

Always take a wardrobe trunk, no matter how short your trip. Not for week-ends, of course, but otherwise. It saves frocks so and then you will be sure not to want something awfully that you have forgotten.

The weekly fashion letter appears in tomorrow's paper—look for it!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

SWIM WEEK IN OREGON.

IN the summer of 1928 Eugene, Oreg., had a swim week. The week was under the joint direction of the school of physical education of the University of Oregon, the Red Cross, and the Y. M. C. A. Nearly every other organization in the town lent a hand. The method was to organize the people who did not know how to swim—adults and children—into classes, and to teach them the art in the course of the week.

Forty-one classes with a total enrollment of 635 persons were organized. There were 20 to 40 persons in the classes. Every available swimming place, indoors and out, was made use of. The classes for adults began at 10 in the morning. Those for school children had the pools from immediately after school until night. The evening classes were given over to adults. Rather special attention was given to teaching girls how to swim.

John F. Bovard, dean of the school of physical education, says the University of Oregon is one of two Pacific slope universities having a woman's life saving corps. Nineteen women and 23 men students taught classes in Eugene's swim week educational outburst. I am told that Germany has made a certain degree of skill in swimming compulsory for all public school pupils. This statement has not been verified, but such a program would not be beyond German wisdom.

Some one has said the earth's surface is better fitted for fish and water animals than it is for land animals. The basis of the statement is that all land is covered either by water or air and that water covers more than half of it. We will never be able to train men to emulate fish by breathing water, but they can learn to keep on top of water where air is available for hours. To this end the American Red Cross devotes a considerable part of its activities to promoting the art of swimming. They issue an easily obtained swimming manual called Red Cross Life Saving Methods. Perhaps similar bulletins can be had from some health departments.

RABBITS AND EXERCISE.

H. K. writes: I am 66 years old. Exercise in reason is a wonderful thing, regardless of age. I commenced in athletic contests when about 12 years of age and kept it up more or less until 49, when I ran the marathon distance without any ill effects except a slight stiffness in the leg muscles.

Since that time I have kept up my exercises—a daily brisk walk, golf, shadow boxing, dumbbells, and, in the winter, running down the cottontail rabbits when there is snow to trace them.

My muscles are very active and strong and mind is good. I demonstrated this a short time ago when I ran down a full grown rabbit in about 20 minutes and brought it home alive. This is a common thing for me during the winter snows.

I never have been able to understand why so many athletes who were so prominent in athletics in schools and colleges, after attaining the age of 30 or before, quit almost every form of exercise entirely, and put on from 20 to 50 pounds of flesh, and lose that peppy good feeling which they enjoyed and which most of them could have at 65 years of age and upward by a moderate amount of daily exercise and care in diet and habits.

REPLY.

I hope the rabbit supply will hold out until you are 100.

SWEET SIXTEEN AND WEIGHT.

M. E. R. writes: 1. How much should a girl 16 years old weigh? 2. Is eating snow harmful to the human body?

REPLY.

1. Depends on how tall she is; also somewhat on her bones and build. If she is 5 feet 3 inches, she should weigh 117 pounds.

2. No. I assume it is clean and that food and drink are taken as usual.

A Little Saturday Talk.

WHEN boys or girls have "time on their hands," they often invent their own games or pastimes. I know a little girl named Betty who has an excellent pastime. She teaches school, and her pupils are dolls!

Betty knows very well that the dolls will not learn, but she has the play spirit and her school is run on a modern basis. Each doll is given a name, and there are report cards with marks entered from time to time.

The part I like about this little girl's game is that she learns a great deal as she goes along. There is a big book of history which she has been teaching, chapter by chapter; and she has made outlines of the subjects.

To teach others is one of the best ways of learning yourself. I believe that Betty sometimes uses real live pupils—her schoolmates instead of the dolls. That is still better, for it can bring profit to the schoolmates as well as to the young teacher.

If you ever play school, be careful that what you teach is correct. If we learn things correctly in the first place, it will save us from troubles later on. Let truth be our guide in all things. Of course we shall make mistakes—everyone does. There is a saying, "If anyone tells you he never makes a mistake take a look at the rubber on his lead-pencil." Yet we should do our best to avoid making more mistakes than need be.

By the way, there is a leaflet on games and pastimes which you may obtain by writing to me. It is called "Home Pastimes for Boys and Girls." In this leaflet you will find a number of ways to amuse yourself at home. Do not expect too much—it is just a large folded sheet, but I think that you will say that it is "to the point." It may help you pass many a pleasant hour.

To get the leaflet, send me a stamped envelope containing your own address, and mention "Home Pastimes" in a note or letter. Address your letter to Uncle Ray, Editor of Uncle Ray's Corner, in care of this newspaper. Please write plainly, because I want the copy to reach you safely.

YOUR BOY—YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.
The Parent Counselor.

THE PRICE OF GREATNESS.

"IT costs a lot to be President."

These are the words of Calvin Coolidge in an article in the Cosmopolitan Magazine, as he speaks feelingly of the death of his son, Calvin Coolidge, jr., which occurred on July 7, 1924. "He was a boy of much promise," writes the former President, "proficient in his studies, with a scholarly mind, who had just turned sixteen.

"He had a remarkable insight into things. The day I had become President he had just started to work in a tobacco field. When one of his fellow laborers said to him, 'If my father were President I would not work in a tobacco field.' Calvin replied, 'If my father were your father, you would.'"

And that's the story in a nutshell—"If my father were your father, you would."

At this moment the memory of my own father comes before my eyes. I can hear his whistle as he stood on the front porch, and I recall how I started to run for the house, leaving comrades, playmates—everything—that I might get there as quickly as possible.

Why did I run and what did I get when I got there? Nothing, except: "Time to wash up for dinner," or "Here's a nice sharp ax, and I'll introduce you to the woodpile."

He never whipped me but once, and then so severely with a square stick used to bind shingles, that the whipping could with good grace have been called "assault and battery."

In what laid his power? All I know is that if my father were your father you would have run just as fast and worked just as cheerfully. His whistle meant business and I was well trained to know it. His ax spelled "work" and not "tomorrow."

Years ago, when Mr. Coolidge was governor of the State of Massachusetts I saw a picture of him and Calvin Junior working together on a soap box automobile. You know the kind—wire screening nailed in front of a box to represent the radiator, a wonderful contrivance for a steering device and a foursome robbery of a baby carriage for the auto wheels.

Dads are somewhat like pickles—there are 57 varieties of sweetness and sourness. There's the "trained" dad whose slogan is, "It pays to know." The "alibi" dad who lets his boy whistle for him. The "no-account" dad who lets mother do the whistling on the front door step.

Then there's the Coolidge dad—and may his kind increase!

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.

"Do You Think I Am Doing Wrong?"

I belong to a secret society and am proud to say it. I am one of these so-called moderns. I smoke, drink to be sociable and kiss a fellow if I like him. I haven't a bad reputation. In fact it is, by far, a good one. Do you think I'm doing wrong? These boys who complain about the modern girls make me tired. They don't give a girl a second look if she is minus make-up and short dresses.

BORED.

Answer—A very good nom de plume my young friend. But let's hope it doesn't long continue to fit you. I am glad you have such a fine reputation, and I don't see how it could be better unless you should happen to change your ideals. The reason a boy sometimes doesn't give a girl a second look when she is not endeavoring to attract his attention is possibly due to the fact that he sees that she is not trying to give away something which she is holding in reserve.

For Teachers, Parents and Pupils.

What type of dramatics should a school stage? How should pupils act toward their teachers? What are some of the school laws which should be enforced? These and many other questions are answered in the following helplets. Underscore any one you would like and inclose a S. A. S. E.:

School plays, ettiquette for school children, school laws for elementary school children, how to study, parent-teacher cooperation, hot lunches for school children.

APRIL 6.

MARY YOHE, the American singer and actress, was born this day, 1869. She made her first appearance in 1887 in Chicago. Her first New York appearance was in 1893 as Martina in "The Magic Opal."

Miss Yohe scored her first big success in the Lyric Theater in London in 1893 as Christopher in "Little Christopher Columbus," singing of the song, "Honey, Ma Honey," creating a furore.

In 1896, Miss Yohe opened the Court Theater under her own management with a revival of "Natouche." She left England for nine years, returning in 1905. From 1906 to 1913 American theater-goers saw her on the legitimate stage and in vaudeville. She returned to London in 1913, singing the famous "Honey, Ma Honey," in the revue, "Come Over Here."

INSTRUCTIONS.

There was a band of black on his arm and they said,
"He is mourning still for his lovely dead."

But when I am gone, if you mourn for me
Paint not your grief for the world to see.

Remember me down through the few left years
Rather with smiles than with sighs or tears.

Walk through the world, as you've always done
With a word of greeting for every one.

If others are happy, then you be gay.
Don't carry your grief to their holiday.

Customs are nothing. Your love I

And if I shall wonder how much you

THE INFLUENCE OF PURSUIT AND SEARCH TACTICS ON THE SPRING POWER-BOAT ADS.

FOR SALE—36-foot cabin cruiser with complete cruising equipment, including shell-proof staterooms, iron hats, and form letters for complaints to Congress; boat incapable of speed greater than six knots an hour, which reduces prospects of repeated boardings by Coast Guard men to a minimum. Any reasonable offer considered, as owner has become gun-shy. Box 16, General Delivery.

* * * *

TWENTY-EIGHT-FOOT power boat offered at a bargain for a quick sale; makes 14 knots per hour exclusive of illegal holdups; needs a little repairing where bullets have chipped deck; has sound-proof compartment for putting women and children when Government dry agents come aboard and begin profanity; owner is disposing of vessel because he desires to spend a summer unmolested. Widgett, Phone 3-4567.

* * * *

TO CHARTER—Beautifully appointed day cruiser, 32 feet over all; in good shape except for rudder carried away by random shot from Coast Guard ship, which mistook it for rum-runner; engine has been removed, which makes it an entirely safe ship in which to spend the season; owner has decided to sell vessel and enlist in Mexican war. Phone Academy 5784.

WILL SELL my 32-foot speedboat Unhappiness to anybody who will make decent cash offer; great chance for somebody who craves excitement; answers rudder quickly and will come about at first sign of firing; sedan top lightly riddled by mistake; owner would like to keep boat, but his wife is too nervous under fire. Twillett Yacht Agency.

OPPORTUNITY—Will exchange new 50-foot Deisel-powered cruiser in first-class condition and with every convenience, including emergency hospital, for rowboat, raft or canoe; this boat was bought last year at a cost of $26,000, but owner, after one attempt to enjoy unmolested cruise, is determined to get a craft that can not be mistaken as member of bootlegging fleet; might consider washtub with outboard motor. Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Taking Love Seriously."

ARE girls today "flippant" about love? We all agree they sound that way, but are they at heart? Just because a girl is foolish enough to "have a line," and to talk as if love were the last thought in her mind, is it correct to assume that her heart is in time with her words? It is our secret belief that every girl wants love, above all else, if she can find it in the form her heart craves. But she hides her natural feelings behind a mask that must baffle simple-hearted man when it so nearly deceives even woman. Why not be natural? Why should a girl deride the idea of love? Why not be womanly about it? It would be one complication less for poor man to eliminate before arriving at an understanding. Read the "J. J." letter. Do you wonder men can not understand us? Do you wonder so many girls nearly miss real love?

Dear Miss McDonald: I am married and deliriously happy, by accident. And that's what I want to talk about.

Why is it that so many fine girls pretend indifference to love and marriage, even going so far as to declare they don't want marriage? What man is going to allow himself to fall in love when he is warned in advance by the girl that there will be no "love-stuff" in her life. That is exactly what my wonderful girl always said. So I got out of the picture one winter by not seeing a great deal of her. I felt I had no chance, being no world's wonder and not conceited. Then came the "accident."

I went to a hospital after a fall on the ice, and was told after two months in a plaster cast that I could not work for a year. The girl who wanted "no love stuff" heard the verdict and knew I had spent my last cent. She said "sooner or later we are bound to get married, so let's get it over. I'll keep you for one year and you keep me for life." That was three years ago. I've had nothing but success since then, but best of all I found out the truth about the most wonderful girl on earth. But suppose I had never slipped on the ice? I had definitely put her out of my calculations because I had all my life looked forward to marriage, and she ridiculed it. Why do girls, especially the very fine ones, act this way? "J. J."

Dear Miss McDonald: From the time I was 15 or thereabouts I felt miserably unhappy. I decided right then and there that I would never, or could never be truly and wholly happy until I had my heart's desire which was a home and babies and most of all, a loving husband and companion. And it wasn't to be a case of taking the first one who proposed although I did marry before I was quite 18. I looked older than I was and I had many friends among the male sex as well as many proposals. But I soon grew tired of men, who it seemed, never reached my world "standard." Well, he finally came along and for those who don't believe in "Love at First Sight" that's what this was with him as well as myself. So a month later we married much to the distress of relatives and friends who said it could never last. They seemed to think me "fickle" because I had had so many boy friends and turned them all down, but they just weren't the right ones.

Well, my husband was nearly 8 years older than I and although his earning power could have been higher, I gave up my position as he did not care to have me work. That was nearly five years ago. Now we have struggled, but never experienced real poverty and we have happiness, though we have earned it. We also have the dearest gift of God, a dear little girl now nearly 3½ years old, and a little boy whom we have named for his daddy. This world has its hardships and life itself at times seems hard, but after all "life is what you make it." Life, to me, would not be worth living were it not for the man of my dreams who worships me, and I him, and who through his efforts, ambition and personality, not good looks, has procured for me supreme happiness. And then there are, I might now say, the babies and the little "Home Sweet Home."

So please tell the girls to start thinking seriously about love, not just foolishly and flippantly. It is the greatest and dearest possession in this world and so few ever find it. Why is this sad fact so?

NERVOUSNESS AGAIN RULES STOCK MART

Most Gains Are Wiped Out in Heavy Profit Taking Near Trading's Close.

CALL MONEY 6 PER CENT

New York, April 5 (A.P.).—The stock market stumbled about on uncertain ground today, unable to keep its footing, although reports of highly satisfactory industrial operations helped it along in places. Trading was again in moderate volume, although the day's turnover of 3,405,740 was a little larger than yesterday's.

Various interpretations were placed upon the statement of the Federal Reserve Board, but in the main it left speculative Wall street as perplexed as ever over the credit outlook. Bulls found satisfaction in the fact that the Reserve Board does not feel that higher rediscount rates are yet necessary, but the declaration that other means will be used to curtail speculative credit if the present course of action fails was not encouraging.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent, the lowest renewal rate in more than two weeks, and again dropped to 6. Funds were available in the outside market as low as 6. Bankers described money conditions as snug, however, stating that a bull market of major proportions would again send the rate soaring.

Time Funds Slightly Easier.

With renewed Federal Reserve pressure on the banks, a call money flurry is expected when funds are withdrawn for the midmonth settlements. Time money was said to be slightly easier for the longer maturities, but 9 per cent was still generally quoted for all maturities.

A vigorous upturn in the steel shares was inspired by private estimates that U. S. Steel next will report a gain of 200,000 tons or more in unfilled orders at the end of March, despite record production and shipments that month, and that earnings for the first half will run between $9 and $11 a share. The weekly trade reviews were again cheerful, reporting that there had been practically no signs of a let up in the high rate of activity in metal and several other basic industries.

Heavy construction contracts in the first quarter were reported to have exceeded the like 1928 period by more than 40 per cent, despite the higher money rates. Erie Railroad placed an order for 2,350 cars. Sun Pipe Line Co. increased the price of Bruner Crude Oil in Texas 20 cents a barrel.

Selling at the Opening.

The market encountered considerable selling at the opening, attributed to the Federal Reserve statement, but during the early afternoon moved irregularly higher. Heavy profit taking in the last half hour, however, more than cancelled most of the gains, and, as measured by the Associated Press price indices, wiped out more than half of yesterday's advance.

Some of the high priced shares were bid up sharply, Burroughs Adding Machine rising nearly 17 points to 292. American Express mounted 8 points to a new peak at 361 on reports that its sale of its American Railway Express holdings has netted it about $18,000,000. Adams rose 19 points to 669.

In the steels, Bethlehem mounted to 113, the highest price since 1917, but ran into realizing in the closing transactions and fell to 109½. U. S. Steel was bid up about 3 points, but lost most of its gain. A. M. Byers, Follansbee Brothers, Republic, and Spang Chalfant were in demand at high levels. Superior touched a new peak at 71⅞, then fell about 5 points in profit taking.

Stewart Warner Soars 6 Points.

Stewart Warner jumped about 6 points when the stock was placed on a $3.50 dividend basis, equal to $7 on the old stock, which paid $6. Commercial Solvents moved up about 5 points to above 300 for the first time, then reacted. A few of the less prominent issues were pushed into new high territory for the year, including American Brown Boveri, Continental Baking A, Lehigh Valley Coal, and Rutland Railroad preferred. Underwood Elliot Fisher mounted more than 5 points on reports of high first quarter earnings.

Coppers, motors and Oils bore the brunt of the late selling. Anaconda lost nearly 5 points, while American Smelting, Greene Cananea, Kennecott, Chrysler, Hupp, Packard, Houston Oil, Standard of New Jersey, and Pan American B yielded from 2 to more than 3 points. Radio dropped 3 points to 100. American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, International Telephone, General Electric, Electric Auto Lite, and Union Pacific were among issues losing from 2 to 4 points. Wright Aero sold off 5 points at one time.

Commodities generally moved in a narrow range. Cotton was firmer on the recovery at Liverpool. Grains closed practically unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were firm, with sterling ruling slightly higher.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

New York, April 5 (A.P.).—Wall street expects the United States Steel Corporation's report of unfilled orders at the end of March to show a substantial increase despite the record production and shipments of the month. Estimates of the probable increase run as high as 200,000 or 300,000 tons. In February the increase was 34,854 tons, while in March, 1928, there was a decrease of 62,983 tons. The report for March will be published next Wednesday.

The Glidden Co., Cleveland, has acquired the vegetable oil refinery and the food products plant of the Palmolive Co. at Portland, Oreg.

Combined schedules for May production of the Hayes Body Corporation plants at Grand Rapids and Ionia, Mich., and at Indianapolis, will exceed 1,000 bodies a day, a new record, comparing with the previous peak of 650 cars a day reached last May, President W. W. Hoagland announces.

Wall street hears that Bloomingdale Bros., Inc., New York, will be affiliated with the new department store chain which includes Filenes, of Boston; Abraham & Straus, Brooklyn, and the Lazarus Store, of Columbus, Ohio.

E. M. Hamlin and Louis Atherton, both Boston financiers, have been elected directors of the National Enameling & Stamping Co., Granite City, Ill.

Sun Pipe Line Co. has increased the price of Bruner crude oil in Texas 20 cents a barrel to $1.

Trans-America Corporation, holding company for stocks of the A. P. Giannini enterprises, now has about 135,000 individual stockholders with average holdings of 67 shares. West of the Mississippi River, only 13,800 individuals own 100 shares or more whereas some 103,000 have less than 100 shares each. In the East, of 18,000 stockholders, only 2,500 were holders of 100 shares or more, and of 9,017,000 shares outstanding, only about 300,000 are registered in name of brokerage houses. This is regarded as the result of the efforts of Mr. Giannini, the chairman, to place the stock with long-time investors.

The record of commercial failures this week, as compiled by R. G. Dunn & Co., reversed last week's trend and declined 546 to 466. This, however, is 23 above the record of the corresponding 1928 week. All sections in the week's decrease and the East and Pacific Coast showed improvement over last year. There was little change in the number of defaults involving more than $5,000.

Orders received by the General Railway Signal Co. in the first three months of this year are reported to have been more than 60 per cent in excess of the corresponding 1928 period.

It is reported in oil circles that Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation is considering asking shareholders at their annual meeting next month to approve an increase in authorized common stock from 5,500,000 to 10,000,000 shares to make capital available for expansion purposes. It also is considered likely that Sinclair may decide to retire part of its funded debt this year.

Erie Railroad has ordered 2,530 cars, including 1,000 steel hopper cars, from the Standard Steel Car Co.; 50 steel automobile cars from the American Car & Foundry Co., 500 steel box cars from the General American Tank Car Co., 250 steel gondola cars from the Greenville Steel Car Co. and 250 steel gondolas from the Bethlehem Steel Co.

United Carbon Co. is offering stockholders of record April 30, rights to subscribe to additional stock at $50 a share in ratio of one share for every 8½ shares held. At today's closing price of 60 for United Carbon voting trust certificates, the rights are worth about $1.05 a share. The additional stock also will be represented by voting trust certificates.

A weak undertone in the copper market, which has been unusually quiet after several weeks of spectacular price advances, is attributed to a decline on the London metal market. However, in trade circles it is said no immediate decline in American copper prices can be expected because London no longer determines copper prices. Domestic copper remains at 24 cents a pound.

Wall street understands that the projected purchase of R. C. A. Communications, subsidiary of the Radio Corporation of America, by International Telephone & Telegraph Co., involves the payment of 400,000 shares of the present I. T. & T. stock to Radio Corporation, with an initial payment of 200,000 shares, and the remainder at the flat rate of 40,000 shares annually. The 400,000 shares have a current market value of about $100,000,000. Officials of I. T. & T. and Radio have agreed upon the desirability of the merger "when the law permits." Wall street understands that an opinion as to whether the combination would violate the White act will be sought from the Attorney General, and if he finds that it would, an effort will be made to have the law changed.

Governors of the Maritime Exchange, New York, have appointed a committee to investigate the feasibility of listing securities on that board. Among other commodity markets that have taken steps to list securities, the New York Coffee & Sugar Exchange is preparing for trading in stocks of sugar and allied companies.

BIRMINGHAM DEFEATS NATS ON FLUKE HOMER, 1-0

Glenna Collett North-South Winner

Defeats Miss Van Wie, 4 and 3, for Fifth Pinehurst Win.

Ninth Hole Is Turning Point of Match; Large Gallery.

By EDDIE BRIETZ
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

PINEHURST, N. C., April 5 (A.P.).—Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, R. I., won her fifth North and South women's golf championship today with an easy 4 and 3 victory over Miss Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, her opponent in the finals.

Compared with yesterday's hard-fought semifinal round with Miss Marion Turpie, of New Orleans, when the Southern girl forced Glenna to the eighteenth green to nose out a 1 up decision, today's match was little more than a workout for the national champion.

Miss Collett had won the title four times prior to this year, but never had to outclass so fine a field as went after the honors this week. She played some of the best golf of her career during her march to the finals.

But for some weird putting on the first nine today, Glenna might have won by a score that would compare with the rout at Hot Springs, Va., last year when she vanquished Miss Van Wie, 13 to 12, in the finals of the national women's championship.

Today she outdrove the Chicago girl consistently and her short game was good throughout.

Largest Gallery of Season Trails Finalists Over Links.

The champion's score for the outward journey was 41, five over par and one under the 42 required by Miss Van Wie. On the six incoming holes Miss Collett was four over.

The largest gallery of the season trailed the finalists and was treated to thrill after thrill during the nip and tuck struggle that marked the outgoing play.

This was a real fight. Miss Collett was frequently 40 and 50 and sometimes 60 yards ahead of the Chicagoan with her drives, but her putter played her false and she was missing two, three and four feet efforts which ordinarily would have resulted in holes being chalked up on the right side of her ledger.

Neither was ever more than one up for the first eight. The short game on which Miss Van Wie relies was below par. Nevertheless, she kept on even terms with the champion due mainly to the latter's recalcitrant putter. Had she been able to take advantage of her opponent on the greens Miss Collett would have been four up at the turn.

Turning Point of Match Comes On Ninth; 5 Wins Hole.

The turning point came on the ninth. Miss Van Vie couldn't keep out of the traps and Glenna needed nothing better than a five to win the par four hole.

From then on it was a steady march to victory. Miss Collett went after her opponent relentlessly and after halving the tenth, increased her advantage by winning the eleventh.

The Chicago girl managed to halve the twelfth, but Glenna won the par four thirteenth with a five and then added the fourteenth with a long drive and a birdie four and the end was in sight.

Miss Van Wie's attempt to run down a sixteen-foot putter on the fifteenth for a birdie two fell short by two inches while the champion sank a two-footer to halve the hole in par three and sew up the match.

Peck and Evans Believe Indians Most Improved Club in American League

Herewith is the sixth of a series of articles to be published in The Post dealing with the pennant prospects of all major league teams by sixteen baseball experts of the staffs of sixteen leading newspapers.

GORDON COBBLEDICK
(Baseball Expert, Cleveland Plain Dealer).

NEW ORLEANS, April 5.—Roger Peckinpaugh and Billy Evans, the men at the helm of the Cleveland Indians, believe they have the most improved ball club in the American League. More than that, they believe no team in the league's history has ever been strengthened as much between the close of one season and the opening of the next as have the Indians since last September.

Secretly, perhaps, they nurse a hope that the Cleveland Club will be to the 1929 race what the St. Louis Browns were to the last one, but they don't say so publicly. Their only prediction is that the Fifth City will see an improved brand of baseball.

Increased batting power and tightened defense are the items calculated to make the Indians more formidable than they have been in years.

The punch at the plate has been added in the persons of Bib Falk, the ex-White Sox slugger; Earl Averill, a $45,000 purchase from San Francisco, and Dick Porter, whose sale enriched the Baltimore coffers by the same amount.

Acquisition of Jack Tavener Has Made Infield.

These three, together with the 36-year-old veteran, Charlie Jamieson, will fight it out for the outfield berths. If they don't give the Tribe considerably more punch than the Jamieson-Langford-Summa combine furnished last year, there simply is no justice.

The acquisition of Jack Tavener, the midget shortstop of the Detroit Tigers, has transformed the infield from a very bad one into a pretty good one. Tavener, while not a great hitter, covers as much ground as any shortfielder in the league and a great deal more than Joe Sewell has been able to take care of for a couple of years.

The elder Sewell has been moved to third base, replacing Johnny Hodapp, a hard hitter but a terrible fielder. This means that many a ground ball that went for a base hit through the left side of the 1928 infield will be an easy out.

Hodapp, who was slated for the first base job, remained in the holdout ranks just long enough to allow the veteran Lew Fonseca to make a de-

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAME S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, April 5 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—When John McGraw took the Giants South he announced that his two Andys, Cohen and Reese, would fight it out for the regular second base assignment. It begins to look as if the fight is about over, with neither the winner. It is feared that Cohen will never be able to overcome his weakness with the willow and that Reese will never be able to file the rough edges off his fielding. If he fails, it will not be because he has not tried. Since the day McGraw pulled him in from the outfield he has practiced assiduously to overcome a tendency to field grounders with his feet. Hank Fabrican, the groundskeeper at the Polo Grounds, had to chase him off the field every day after preliminary fielding drill so that his men could get the diamond in shape by game time.

Instead of resting between doubleheaders, Reese spent the intermission fielding hoppers from the bat of Roger Bresnahan.

McGraw and others spent hours trying to teach him the intricacies of second-basing. But McGraw nor any one else could not give him self-confidence in going after a grounder with a double play in sight. Reports from Texas are that McGraw is looking elsewhere for a grade A second baseman. There is little likelihood, however, that he will trade either Reese or Cohen. Both will be kept indefinitely on the chance that they may one day come through. It is too bad the playing rules do not permit McGraw to let Cohen do the fielding and Reese the batting and baserunning.

Terry's Understudy Proves Very Versatile Young Leader.

Pat Crawford, Bill Terry's understudy at first base, is another young Giant who seems certain of receiving his mail at the Polo Grounds all summer. The Toledo recruit can turn in a neat job of fielding and is a wicked hitter. McGraw showed what he thought of him when he appointed him manager of the second team when Bert Niehoff was recalled to the main tent. In addition to performing himself, directing the other players and attending to the manifold chores that beset the leader of a tourist troupe, the versatile and accomplished Mr. Crawford serves as volunteer correspondent for the metropolitan newspapers. Perhaps he is the man destined some day to succeed McGraw himself as boss of the whole

Walter Spence Victor In Title Tank Event

New York, April 5 (A.P.).—Walter Spence, of Philadelphia, added the 500 yards free style title to his string of victories at the National A. A. U. senior swimming championships in the New York A. C. Pool tonight.

Spence covered the distance in 5 minutes 40 4-5 seconds to beat Austin Clapp, of Stanford University, by two feet. Walter Laufer, of the Lake Shore A. C., Chicago, who has been giving Spence a great battle for individual honors, had to be content with third place, about eight feet behind Clapp. Ray Ruddy, of the New York A. C., was fourth and his teammate, August Harms, was fifth and last.

TAKOMA TIGERS DRILL.

The Takoma Tigers will hold a special practice session tomorrow on the Walter Reed diamond at 2:30 o'clock. A meeting of the team will be held after the drill. All players are requested to report.

Gavuzzi Leads Bunion Field to Baltimore

Baltimore, Md., April 5 (A.P.).—Covering the 44 miles between Havre de Grace and Baltimore in 5 hours 38 minutes and 15 seconds, Pete Gavuzzi, 30, from Southampton, England, today won the sixth lap of C. C. Pyle's annual transcontinental marathon. He called for his pipe as soon as he crossed the finish line. He was followed 18 minutes later by John Salo, Passaic, N. J., policeman, winner of the 1928 race, and Guisto Umek from Italy. Salo and Umek tied for second place in today's lap.

Herbert Hedeman, 40, from New York, who finished first in Thursday's lap from Wilmington to Havre de Grace and led the field, was eighteenth in today's lap and fell back to third place on the basis of elapsed time. Ed Gardner, negro of Seattle, although finishing ninth in the day's lap, is in second place in the race. Fifty-six answered roll call this morning. The race started in the rain and cold. The skies cleared shortly before noon and the finish was in the hottest weather encountered so far.

At the start of the day's race Salo overcame the 6-minute lead held by Hedeman and finished the race two hours ahead of him. Salo now leads.

The first fifteen runners and elapsed time follow:

The Authentic

history of bowling in Washington called DOWN THE DUCKPIN ALLEYS and written by Leonard W. Collins will be printed in

The Washington Post On Sunday.

Collins' article yesterday received the indorsement of the Washington City Duckpin Association executive committee which thanks THE POST and the author for "the preservation and reproduction of the past records of the association, many of which we believed were unobtainable and forever lost.

"The association has carefully checked the compilations and find them to be accurate and authentic in every detail. These records have been accepted by the committee as official and will be so recognized in the future."

Ruth Hits Ball Out of Park; 1st Homer

15,000 Watch Record Drive as Yanks Beat Dallas, 12-11.

Browns Beaten, 3-2, by Kansas City in 11-Inning Game.

DALLAS, Tex., April 5 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Babe Ruth celebrated circus now touring through the South is a success, financially, and otherwise, for the "Home Run King" crashed through with his first Ruthian drive of the year before some 15,000 fans at Steer Stadium this afternoon. The Yanks won, 12 to 11.

It came in the eighth inning with the score tied. Ruth strutted up to the plate and swung at one of Chick Schuman's left-handed curves.

The ball arched its way into right field. The crowd jumped to its feet. The ball sailed higher and farther into right field. It cleared the high bleachers and landed up against the low fence on the top of them. It was the first time that this fence has ever been conquered and the folks down here declared in a forcible manner that it was the longest home run ever hit in the State of Texas.

As the Babe touched the plate, he nearly doffed his cap and smiled like only Ruth can. They gave him a regular ovation and kept it up until he disappeared under the dugout. The Babe's first home run gave the champions the ball game. Ruth, Gehrig and other star performers showed the folks down here today the proper way to hit into a triple play.

Steers Make Triple Play on World's Champions.

In the fifth inning Durocher walked and Grabowski singled to left field. Leo Holding second. Rhodes hit a low liner into center field and Johnson caught the ball close to the ground. From the press coop it looked as if the ball had hit the dirt before it reached Johnson's hands.

Durocher started for third and Grabowski for second. Johnson threw the ball to Flaskamper, who stepped on second. Then the ball was heaved to first and the base umpire waved out Durocher and Grabowski.

The Yankees thought it was about time to change their circus into a rodeo and they immediately surrounded both umpires and did a few war dances.

"That ball was trapped; anybody could see that," yelled the Babe.

"Well, it wasn't," said Mr. Umpire.

The rodeo continued for a while, while the crowd yelled and howled and wanted to go out and buy a steer so he could ride it. The Babe, however, refused the offer, and the ball game continued.

Blues Rally in Eleventh to Win Over St. Louis Browns.

Kansas City, Mo., April 5 (A.P.).—Two successive hits with two down in the eleventh inning enabled the Kansas City Blues to take the first game of a three-game series with the St. Louis Browns here this afternoon, 3 to 2. It was the third extra inning exhibition for the Browns in as many days. Gerkin drove in the winning run for Kansas City after Seeds had doubled.

Chick Hafey Empties Sacks With Homer; Cards Win.

Atlanta, Ga., April 5 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Cardinals easily defeated Atlanta, of the Southern League, here this afternoon, 13 to 5. The Cardinal batting artillery was busy from the first inning and kept the Atlanta fielders busy. Gelbert and Hafey hit homers, Hafey's drive coming with the bases loaded in the fourth.

Mianne Palfrey Beats Sister for Net Honors

Brookline, Mass., April 5 (A.P.).—An amazing tennis upset occurred here today when Mianne Palfrey, of Brookline, defeated her younger sister Sarah for the girls' national indoor singles title.

Sarah, the 16-year-old defending champion, appeared nervous starting the final match. She was able to take the first set, 6—4, but could offer only feeble resistance during the second and third sets, which Mianne won by scores of 6—0, 6—1.

The sisters have fought for the indoor junior title for the past three years and Sarah was victorious both in 1927 and 1928. The caliber of today's play was below that of their other indoor championship contests. This victory was the first Mianne has won from Sarah since the girls' State outdoor tournament of four years ago.

Mianne, who became 18 last month, ended her junior tennis career with today's play.

After the sisters settled their own match, they paired and successfully defended their girls' indoor doubles title against Louise Packer and Mary Cutter, of Winchester, 6—1, 6—0.

LONG SHOTS SPLASH TO VICTORY AT BOWIE TRACK

NATS AWAIT FRAYS WITH GIANTS

Goslin Credits Lewis, Wrestler, With Aiding His Arm.

Special to The Washington Post.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 5.—The Nationals arrived here shortly after noon today and, much to their surprise, soon discovered that Birmingham fans are showing more interest in Monday's game with the New York Giants than in the two clashes booked here with the Barons furnishing the competition. And this goes for Johnson's men, too, although they remember how Johnny Dobbs' minor leaguers mauled them last spring and hope to get revenged.

Ordinarily a schedule like that of the Nationals would send them against the Giants at a disadvantage for the Washington Team has not faced major league competition since the final game of the set with the St. Louis Cardinals at Tampa on March 31. Johnson, however, has kept his men traveling at a fast clip and not permitted the Nationals to show the contempt which big leaguers usually show against their little brothers, consequently he contends that the Giants will look just like any other team to his henchmen.

The past few series with the Giants have not been successful ones. The Nationals have talked the louder, but the McGrawmen have had their say with hits and easily have outclassed the Capital City entry. If dope counts for anything it will be different this spring. The Giants may continue winning, but they will know they have been in a fight.

Giants Have Brilliant Record For Exhibition Games.

Any McGraw Team may be considered good, for the "Little Napoleon" always has a bunch of hustlers and no room for loafers in his line-up. Again the Giants' exhibition record is a brilliant one, as the team won nearly a dozen in a row before receiving its first Grape Fruit League setback. And, with the players and officials of each club hardly speaking as they pass by, the coming set looks like what the fight promoter calls a "natural."

Because he wants to pit his best flingers against the men of McGraw, Manager Johnson is having trouble so shuffling his small staff to make this possible, especially with Lloyd Brown hobbling around on one leg because of a big boil lanced yesterday at Jacksonville.

Goslin Admits He Thought His Baseball Days Were Over.

Now that he is satisfied that his throwing arm will be functioning as well as ever by the time the coming American League season starts Goose Goslin admits that, at one time last season, he thought that his baseball days were over.

"When President Griffith sent me to Atlantic City last summer," said the Goose this morning, "I thought that I was through. Just before this Griff had insisted that the only way I could cure myself was to work the soreness out of my arm. He finally made me promise to cut loose and one morning he and I went on the field and I did so. The result was that I tore some muscles loose and hurt the arm worse than ever. I don't mind saying now that I thought I would have to quit the game and go to work then."

While the several physicians who treated him—and Goslin declares that he spent about $500 of his own money for several unbeknowns to the club—

Although a bright sun greeted visitors to the Bowie course yesterday, the track was a quagmire as the result of the recent rains. Three of the longest prices of the meeting resulted. At top, Dry Girl, from the McLean Stable, which led the juveniles home in the first race at 20 to 1. The filly, with Jockey Tony Pascuma up, is shown in front of the judges' stand just after the race. Below, Jockey J. New York, April 5 (A.P.).—Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., sensation of the winter golf season, will make his first appearance in the metropolitan district at the Cherry Valley Country Club, Long Island, on Sunday. Paired with Leo Diegel, Canadian open champion, Smith will play Johnny Farrell and Gene Sarazen in a foursome for the benefit of the Ryder Cup Team.

Thevenow's Condition Reported Less Serious

Winter Haven, Fla., April 5 (A.P.).—Tommy Thevenow is slowly recovering from the broken jaw and other injuries suffered in an automobile accident last Tuesday, it was said at the hospital today.

Physicians said they are satisfied the Philadelphia Nationals' shortstop has "nothing to worry about unless infection sets in."

Ordinary Hit Eludes Goslin For Run

Both Clubs Are Held to 3 Hits; Marberry, Jones in Form.

Judge, Bluege Make Nats' Hits; Hayes Fails in Pinch.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 5.—The Nationals, who registered their first shutout against Jacksonville yesterday, were given a dose of the same medicine here this afternoon when they bowed to the Barons, 1 to 0.

Washington tried to win the game on three hits, but could not do so although the Barons managed to turn the trick with the same number of bingles due to the fact that Andy Moore's ordinary one-base drive to left eluded Goslin and went as a homer.

The game was well played as well as well pitched. "Sam Sam" Jones started for the Nats and the only hit he allowed in five frames was Moore's which went as a circuit clout. Fred Marberry was almost equally effective, allowing but two and keeping them widely scattered. Bob Hasty, former Mackman, was just as puzzling to the Washington pill-pounders, while Sli... Love, an aged southpaw, always was in command while he was toiling. The defeat was the Nat's fourth in 20 starts.

Judge and Bluege Do All The Hitting for Nats.

Capt. Joe Judge and Ossie Bluege contribute the fielding features of the game in addition to accounting for all of the Nats' hits, Joe getting two and Ossie one. Moore, in addition to his homer, also had a single to his credit with a one-shot by Bennett representing the balance of the Barons' attack.

Jones granted the Barons only one hit during the five frames he toiled on the slab but this drive, an ordinary single, was played poorly by Goslin and went as a homer. It was credited to Moore with two dead in the fifth "Sad Sam" having retired in order the other fourteen batters who faced him, although this was made possible by good stops by Bluege and Judge in round 2.

Nats Put Tying Run on Third But Hayes Fails to Hit.

Meanwhile, Hasty had been equally effective against the Nats, holding them to but two bingles in six sessions. Both came in the second when Bluege scratched a single through short and Judge lined one to right. Hasty then had little trouble pulling out of this

RISKO BEATS VON PORAT EASILY

Cleveland Baker Loses Only One Round in Surprise Bout.

BOSTON GARDEN, Boston, April 5 (United Press).—Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, upset prefight dope tonight by defeating Otto von Porat, Norwegian contender for the heavyweight title, by a wide margin. Both fighters weighed in at 193.

Risko, whose defeat at the hands of Max Schmeling in his last appearance in the ring before tonight's battle was believed to mark his first step downward, appeared to have come back from his slump.

He went after the Norwegian from the first bell, peppering him freely with rights and lefts and registering almost at will, while Von Porat backed away from the Cleveland Baker Boy and kept on the defensive during the entire ten rounds.

All but the seventh round went to Risko by varying margins. The seventh was practically even, though Von Porat might have been given a shade there.

Von Porat's Much-Touted Right Fails to Make Appearance.

Von Porat's much-touted right failed to make its appearance tonight against the aggressiveness of Risko, and the few blows that the Norwegian landed were for the most part light body blows. Risko continually led in with left jabs, following up with swings with both arms, but was unable to place Von Porat at any time in danger of a knockout.

In a companion ten-round bout, Jimmy Byrne, Louisville heavyweight, defeated Phil Mercurio, of New York.

Results of other bouts comprising the card: Haakon Hansen, 155¾, Norway, k. o.'d Eddie Adonis, 155¾, Boston, fifth round. Al Ridgeway, 129, Jersey City, defeated Frankie Moore, 130¼, Boston, six rounds.

Fidel La Barba May Return to U. S. Ring

Honolulu, April 5 (A.P.).—Fidel La Barba, who retired undefeated as flyweight champion of the world, arrived here today from Sydney after a successful campaign against bantamweights in Australia.

La Barba, who is accompanied by his wife, will continue the voyage to San Francisco tonight on the steamer Ventura. The fighter said he would seek a match with Kid Francis in New York, after which he planned to re-enter Stanford University as a student.

MAVIS NINE TO MEET.

The Mavis A. C. Nine will hold a meeting tonight at 479 Maryland avenue southwest at 7:30 o'clock to discuss plans for its baseball campaign. All members are requested to attend.

CROSSCO, FAVORITE, WINS BOWIE FEATURE IN MUD

Aucilla Beats Lucky Play For Place

Leishman Rates Winner Perfectly in Ambassador.

Long Shot Players in Glory; Elfrieda G. Victor at 33-1.

By CHARLES A. WATSON.

RACING before an enthusiastic week-day crowd at Prince Georges Park, and over a muddy track, Crossco, a veteran of the winter campaign just past, carried the colors of the Wild Rose Farm to a popular victory in the Ambassador Purse, that featured the day's card at Bowie.

Ridden by Jockey R. Leishman, the 5-year-old daughter of Trevisco-Crossbun, led for the better part of the mile and sixteenth journey and won by three-quarters of a length from C. C. Smithson's fleet Aucilla, which in turn led Lucky Play, sensation of the recent Florida meetings, to the wire by a wide margin of ten lengths.

Crossco displayed a high turn of speed in the going once he found his stride after the break and was never seriously menaced thereafter. The distance was covered in 1:49 1-5.

Five starters faced Starter Jim Milton, who dispatched the field away in excellent alignment. Sun Persian, always a fleet breaker, set the pace to the first turn but went wide and relinquished the lead to the ultimate winner, which carried the field for the balance of the journey at a merry clip.

Rounding the turn into the far lane, Sun Persian was second, with Brahman running third and Lucky Play fourth. Nearing the half pole the field became closely bunched. Aucilla with Jockey F. Stevens astride, moved into second position with Lucky Play moving into the third hole.

Aucillia Moves Up in Stretch To Battle With Crossco.

Once into the stretch it was apparent the battle to the finish would be between the two leaders. Aucilla moved up in the stretch run in menacing fashion but Leishman uncovered a couple of wraps and Crossco flashed under the wire the victor, still full of run. Brahman finished fourth with Sun Persian far in the ruck.

Only a fair sized crowd graced the oval today. Rain which started to fall during the morning hours left the racing strip a sea of mud. As a result there were many withdrawals from the rather ordinary card. Favorites suffered in the majority of cases with long shots carrying off top honors in the major number of events.

Red Spider Takes Measure Of Unruly Band of Platers.

An unruly band of platers faced the starter for the running of the sixth race of a mile and a sixteenth, and Red Spider, with C. Quattlebaum in the saddle, proved the winner in 1:52 3-5. Kosciusko, an outsider in the betting, finished second four lengths behind the winner, with Golden Tinted losing the place position by a head.

Golden Tinted set all the pace to the far turn, where Red Spider took the pace and carried on courageously to the end. The field was badly strung out at the finish, all of the contention for the first three positions being made by the winning horses throughout the entire distance.

Dry Girl Beats Juveniles In 4-Furlong Test.

Twelve juveniles splashed their way to the post for the opening event, a dash of 4 furlongs, and the McLean Stable scored its first victory of the meeting as Dry Girl, ridden by Jockey A. Pascuma, displayed a high turn of speed in the going to gain a head decision over Itso, from the J. P. Jones Stable. The running time was 0:49 2-5.

After some delay at the post the field was away in good alignment, with Catados taking the lead at once. Pascuma put the McLean filly in a contending position rounding the turn for home and the filly finished full of run down the stretch, to earn the victory under a most vigorous ride. Catados finished third, a length behind the leaders.

Longshot players scored again in the second race, of 5½ furlongs, when Elfrieda G., racing in the colors of S. W. Labrot and piloted by S. Cooper, defeated the Keeneland Stable's first starter, Sweet Genevieve, by a length, covering the distance in 1:08 2-5. Fancy Star was third, another three lengths away.

Sande Takes Second Purse of Meeting With Milady.

Off to a good start, Panama, with A. Pascuma in the saddle, assumed command, but soon gave way to the winner, Elfrieda G., which held her advantage to the wire, to pay $67.30. Sweet Genevieve, far back in the early running, skimmed along the rail and

MD. RACING BODY WARS ON TOUTS

Undesirables Banished at Bowie; 44 Horses Scratched.

THE Maryland Racing Commission, headed by James D. Latne, is to be commended for its clear-cut policy regarding undesirables which frequent the racing strips of the Old Line State. Managements of the various ovals have been warned that racing must be maintained on a high plane in Maryland. The result of the proclamation brought about the banishment of 29 of these characters at Bowie the second day of the meeting. It is apparent that touts, having "sucker" lists, can not ply their trade in this State, and they must vanish with the hanger-on who attempts to fix races. This is a step forward to make the game clean throughout the entire United States.

The motor sprinkler was conspicuous by its absence during the afternoon. Early in the morning the track became a sea of mud, the mire being so deep the clockers began to sing, "Oh, for the Life of a Sailor." There were 44 withdrawals from 119 entries.

Racing enthusiasts were interested to learn that Andrew J. ("Cy") Cummings, president of the Laurel State Fair, Inc., is recovering from his long-drawn-out illness and will soon be among those present. Cummings, always a colorful character around Maryland ovals, and having done more for racing than any man in the State, has the best wishes of his many admirers.

Jockeys J. Caylor and H. Jones were seen in the pigskin for the first time this afternoon. Jones had the leg up on Jolly Poly in the first race, while Caylor had the mount on Lady Joan, in the second event.

Breckinridge Long, the Washington sportsman and race enthusiast, came over from Montpelier Manor today to see Brahman run in the day's feature. Desha Breckinridge, owner of the fast working derby candidate, Lord Braedlebane, is expected to arrive Monday from Kentucky as a guest of Mr. Long.

Preston Burch, Washington trainer, who recently severed connections with George Wingfield's powerful Nevada Stock Farm, was on the ground today. Burch will soon take up his duties with the newly-formed combination of Admiral Cary T. Grayson and Charles T. Fisher, of Detroit.

Morris "Dutch" Irwin, of Washington, is pointing Begin Over for the Harford meeting. Reports say the star of the Irwin barn is working great guns in the wee hours.

W. Barrett, sensation of the recently closed Tia Juana meeting, is expected to arrive today ready to accept mounts for the remainder of the Maryland session.

Race tracks are very much like mouse traps—once you get in its hard to get out. Bowie is no exception to this rule and every afternoon motorists encounter much difficulty in leaving the track. Roads become jammed very readily after the seventh race in the mad scramble for home and many late suppers are the result. It's about time managements recognize this deplorable condition which exists at every track. This should be one of the first comforts afforded patrons, easy access to and exit from the course.

James Arthur claimed Coral Boss for $2,250, while Pat Calhoun went to Gordon Crawford by the same route for $1,500. The Doctor was claimed out of the fourth race by H. C. Rummage for $2,000, while Lower Five went to G. Sylvestri out of the sixth race for $1,500. There were five claims put in the box for Buddah, the favorite in the seventh race and James J. Rowan acting for the Zachen Stable proved the lucky one in the draw and was awarded the gelding for $1,500.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT E. COLLYER

MUDLARKS. Members of the web-footed brigade will have an inning at Bowie this afternoon. The condition, of course, coupled with the fact that two stakes will be run off on Saturday a week, has caused many owners to keep their best nags in the barn.

Interest centers in the running of the Capital Handicap, a dash of seven furlongs for 3-year-olds. STANDBY is my choice for this event. In his last endeavor STANDBY was away from the post very poorly and ran a winning race. LETALONE had considerable bad luck last time out, while WAR HAWK is much better than generally rated. ESSARE is passed up because he is carrying a lot of weight, while MINOTAUR may need a race under his belt. SWATTER showed a fine performance on opening day and figures to repeat in the juvenile event.

JACK ADAMS and PLAY BALL are above the ordinary and should make this Whitney "baby" extend himself.

In the second anything is liable to happen. This race should be passed up to Mr. Sweeney, the gent who manicures the morgue. If you must play, however, take a chance on LUCKY DRIFT, a superior mudder.

POLY is picking up weight, but has all the speed of the party and should repeat Speed is a great factor on a muddy track. It is for that reason I'm stringing along with BILL HARE in the fifth spasm.

WAFFLES, CLARIFIER and VOLE are evenly matched for the sixth. My advice is to play the one at the longest price.

Have a ticket on RED PATE in the closing heat. More anon.

BOWIE.

1—H. P. Whitney entry, Jack Adams, Play Ball.
2—Lucky Drift, Nellie Wood, Supersede.
3—Poly, Blandris, Roodles.
4—Stand By, Letalone, War Hawk.
5—Bill Hare, Genial, Rosina.
6—Waffles, Clarifier, Vole.
7—Red Pate, Kajaba, Red Spider.
Best—Poly.
Most probable winner—Poly.
Collyer's system horse—Waffles.
Best parlay—Stand By, Waffles, Poly, to place.

St. John's Interclass Boxing Bouts Start

The interclass boxing championship series of St. John's Prep opened in the Knights of Columbus Hall yesterday afternoon when Capt. Walker's team gained a close decision over Capt. McHugh's team. Walker scored a technical knockout over McHugh to clinch the verdict.

In the 85-pound class, Fumerly and Slattery battled to a draw decision. McElroy won the decision over Walsh in the 100-pound match, and Mahoney won over D. Oliver by default.

LYON PARK NINE WINS.

The Lyon Park A. C. defeated the Fort Myer Heights Nine, 7 to 4, in an interesting encounter on the Lyon Village diamond. Miller and McNeely were the batting stars, the latter's triple putting the Lyons in front in the sixth inning.

ENTRY OF U. S. CHAMPION SOUGHT

Titterton May Compete in 2d City Club Marathon.

EFFORTS are being made by the City Club to bring Frank Titterton, national amateur 10 and 15 mile champion of the Millrose Athletic Association of New York City, to Washington on May 25 to compete in the second annual national modified marathon. The athletic commission of the City Club now is actively engaged in working out details of the second race under the G street organization's auspices.

H. J. Odenthal, executive secretary of the City Club, last night announced that Mel Sheppard, athletic director of the Millrose A. A., has been asked to arrange for Titterton's presence in the marathon. In addition to Titterton, it is hoped that Whitey Michaelson, of national marathon fame, recent winner of the Pawtucket marathon, and Fred Ward, another noted distance runner, will file entries.

Clark, K. C. Runner, First To File Entry Blank.

The first entry to arrive for the race was filed by Haskell Clark, of the local Knights of Columbus, who won the 10-mile marathon held last September in Alexandria under the auspices of the Potomac Yards. Clark finished fourteenth in a field of 160 starters in the Portchester (N.Y.) marathon last July 4 and he crossed the line tenth in the New Year's day race held in Baltimore by the Y. M. H. A. Last year in the Olympic tryouts, Clark was nineteenth in a field composed of most of the best distance runners in the country.

The City Club is particularly desirous of enlisting local athletes in the race. Two of the trophies to be awarded have been designed especially for local entrants. The Spalding and Pearson-Crain trophies will go respectively to the first and second District competitors to cross the finish line.

Entries are being received by H. J. Odenthal at the City Club, 1320 G street northwest. The list will close at midnight May 20. Entry blanks may be procured at the sports department of The Post and at the City Club.

CARD NINE HAS DIAMOND.

The Cardinal A. C. Nine has the use of Diamond No. 10, of the Monument Grounds, tomorrow and would like to book some senior or unlimited team. Phone Manager Ryon at Atlantic 3082-J between 6 and 7 o'clock.

LIONELS NEED PLAYERS.

The Lionel Athletic Club is in need of several players to complete its insect and midget teams. Both teams will enter the Capital City League. Any candidates for the insect team are requested to report to the North Ellipse today at 3 o'clock, while any candidates for the midget nine are requested to report to the North Ellipse tomorrow at 1 o'clock.

4 COLLEGE GAMES

G. U. to Play Holy Cross Today

Hilltop Fray Features Card Schedule on Local Fields.

C. U. Plays Vermont; D. C. Boy With Cornell at Md.

BARRING more tearful grimaces of old J. Pluvius, we should see considerable activity on local college baseball diamonds today. The ancient fun disturber brought about the cancellation of both games scheduled yesterday—Catholic-Boston College and Georgetown-Cornell—on account of wet grounds. Four contests are booked for this afternoon, with the headline feature being the clash between the Jesuit rivals, Holy Cross and Georgetown, at the Hilltop. All of the games will start at 3 o'clock.

In addition to the Holy Cross-Georgetown meeting, Cornell will oppose Maryland at College Park, Vermont will engage Catholic at Brookland and Charlotte Hall Military Academy will cross bats with Gallaudet at Kendall Green.

The appearance of Holy Cross very likely will bring out the largest attendance at the Hilltop, for the Worcester, Mass., players rank at the top of the Eastern college baseball ladder. Only recently the proteges of Jack Barry, old Philadelphia Athletics shortstop, walloped the tar out of the University of Richmond, besides easily trimming William and Mary. Prior thereto they twice defeated the Reading Club of the International League.

Strong Pitching Necessary To Beat Holy Cross.

In an effort to beat the famous visitors, Coach Bucky O'Neil, of Georgetown, probably will send Harold Poole, the best of the Hilltop hurling corps, to the box, although Southpaw "Packy" White is a possibility for the starting mound assignment.

It has been evident from the box scores that Holy Cross has real potency in attack, hence strong pitching will be necessary for a Georgetown victory even though the Hilltoppers wave the ash effectively themselves. Georgetown's hitting has improved steadily since the season opened with practically the entire line-up showing advancement. In Johnny Dunn, shortstop, the Hilltoppers can boast of one of the deadliest batters hereabouts.

Both Catholic and Maryland will be out to score their first victories, the former having dropped three straight and the latter its only encounter so far, the inaugural with Penn last Wednesday.

Conlon or Hurley to Hurl for C. U., DeMarco for Md.

Jack Conlon or Lou Hurley will toe the rubber for Catholic against Vermont, while Jim DeMarco probably will try to fire them past the Ithacans. Henry Gichner, formerly of Western High, of this city, is the choice to catch for Cornell. Neither he nor any of his team mates was injured bady enough in the crash of their bus on the Washington-Richmond Highway Thursday night to prevent their playing.

Gallaudet's foe, Charlotte Hall, of Mechanicsville, Md., is not thought able to stop the Kendall Green Nine from ringing up its second triumph in as many starts. Hokanson will do the pitching for the home team.

Maryland U. Trackmen At William and Mary

The Maryland University track men today will make their third attempt to win a duel meet decision when they try conclusions with the athletes of William and Mary College at Williamsburg, Va. In two previous dual encounters the Old Liners were barely nosed out for high score in each case.

Coach Geary Eppley is depending mainly on Bob Quinn, sprinter; Bob Remsburg and Walter Plumley, middle-distance men, and the McDonald brothers, John and Henry, in the field events, to carry the Maryland Team over the top for the first time this season.

VALET SHOP NINE DRILLS.

The Avenue Valet Shop, which will sponsor an unlimited team on the sandlots this year, will hold a practice tomorrow on the East Ellipse diamond at 10 o'clock. The newly organized team plans to enter the Capital City League.

Manager Tony Burruto, in an effort to put a real contender on the field, has signed Raymond Trago, former Southern A. C. player, and the Ciango brothers, Pete and Dan, formerly of the Tremonts, and "Smokey" Willner, of the same team.

Games with the Avenue tossers can be arranged through Burruto at Franklin 4358 between 8 and 6 o'clock during the day.

PRESS CARDS BUSY.

The National Press Building Cardinal Nine will practice today on the East Ellipse diamond at 2:30 o'clock. The Virginia White Sox will be met Sunday on the Baileys Cross Roads, Va., diamond at 3 o'clock.

The Cardinals have a strenuous schedule before they play in the Capital City League, which they expect to enter, but they still have one or two dates open and would like to book some unlimited team. Phone Manager Harrington at Cleveland 4831.

The schedule to date:

April 7, Virginia White Sox (Baileys Cross Roads); 14, Indian Head Cardinals (Waldorf, Md.); 21, Johnny A. C. (Nyatsville); 28, Edmunds Art Stone Co. (Colleze Park).

May 5, Hume Spring (Hume Spring); 12, open; 19, open; 26, open; 30, Foxall A. C. (Foxall Field), double header.

GALLAGHERS WIN CLOSE ONE.

Gallagher A. C. Tossers nosed out the Arcadians, 15 to 14, yesterday on the Soldiers Home diamond. Fowler and Welch were the batteries for the winners, with Curtin and Klein for the losers.

works. Of course, there is the matter of establishing himself as a real big leaguer to be attended to first, but who knows?

One of the nags now hurling his hoofs effectively at Bowie is on a milk diet, consuming 8 or 10 quarts of grade-A daily, with an occasional "stick" in it to put some punch in him. Has this horse never heard of the Jones act? Or does he think he is a member of Congress? It might further infuriate Mrs. Willebrandt to know that some race horses are inordinately fond of beer, and don't have to gallop to Hoboken, N. J., to get it, either.

Billy Barton Is Example of Why Horses Take to Drink.

Billy Barton, another Maryland horse, is one who could hardly be blamed for taking to drink. In the first place, he's now in England, where such a course is within the law and his own business. But above all, there is that mater of the Grand National Steeplechase, the toughest assignment racing offers a horse. In 1928, after training for the heart-breaking test for a year, Billy had his nostrils in the cup when he fell on the very last jump, allowing a competitor to nose him out.

"Well, next year is another year," he said to himself as he picked himself up from his rider's neck and faced another twelve months of rigorous training. It was only the other day that this courageous character once more faced the Grand National barrier, staggering under a heavy impost and the additional burden of being a favorite. The prospect of retirement in a clover patch 4 miles away carried him along for a mile or so and then he fell down and went Fred Fulton again. Now his owner, Howard Bruce, announces he will put Bill back in training and send him after the Grand National for the third time next year. No wonder horses take to hard liquor.

District Umpires List Meeting Tomorrow

A special meeting of the District Umpire Association will be held tomorrow morning at the home of Willie Watt, president, at 11 o'clock. Watt's address is 34 R street northeast.

All umpires belonging to the association are requested to attend, as important matters relative to the season will be discussed.

J. C. C. Five to Engage United Grays Tomorrow

As a fitting climax for the basket ball season, an attraction of real merit will be offered District fans tomorrow night when the United Typewriter Grays and Jewish Community Center Fives meet at the Center Gymnasium at 8 o'clock.

The Grays were unlimited champions in the Washington division of the South Atlantic Tournament, losing out to the Baltimore division champions only recently in the title games at Baltimore. The J. C. C.'s went to the finals in the Washington division, losing to the Grays in the deciding game of the tourney here.

A preliminary is under arrangement whereby the J. C. C. Arrows, 100-pound division champions, will play the Arundel Juniors, of Baltimore, at 7 o'clock. Confirmation of this game will be announced tomorrow.

Indiana Grid Coach Designs New Pigskin

Bloomington, Ind., April 5 (A.P.).—Pat Page, Indiana University football coach, has designed a new type of football that is being used in spring practice by the Crimson squad.

The ball has a surface that is entirely convex and only twelve pounds of air pressure will inflate it. The players say it is ideal.

Page developed the ball following discussion of the intercollegiate rules committee over the standard ball. Those used in past season were said to have been too pointed for accurate punting and passing.

Horton Smith Idles Because of Illness

New York, April 5 (A.P.).—Leo Diegel, professional and Canadian champion, was the only member of the Ryder Cup team to try his golf shots in the rain today. On the supposition that rain will fall some time during the matches in England, the hard-hitting Leo and Bill Mehlhorn, who will conduct an independent invasion of British golf courses, went to the Cherry Valley Club at Garden City and played nine holes with Jimmy Law, the Cherry Valley pro, and Willie Klein, another well-known Long Island professional.

Horton Smith, the baby of the Ryder team, who outscored all his elders during the winter season, was prevented by sickness from joining the others. The Joplin youth was confined to his hotel room by a sudden illness, which was diagnosed as a "bad cold."

GOSLIN FOLLOWED ADVICE OF LEWIS

were unable to diagnose what was wrong, the player declares that it was neuritis and credits his cure to advice given him by Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former world's champion wrestler.

"I went to Philadelphia to see the Strangler in a match," the Goose declared, "and was introduced to him. Upon hearing of my symptoms he said he had suffered the same way at one time and advised me to eat no meat for a while. I took his advice and in less than two weeks noticed that the soreness began leaving my arm. The ailment left the muscles somewhat knotted, but easy work at the Tampa camp has just about untangled them and I am tickled to death to tell the world that I will be throwing as good as ever this season. I eat meat occasionally, but it's not on my regular diet list now and never will be again."

There was a family reunion at the station this afternoon when the train bearing the Nationals pulled in, as Mesdames Marberry, Myer and Barnes were on hand to welcome their "wandering boys."

A matched foot race at 75 yards will be staged before tomorrow's game here with "Stuffy" Stewart meeting Billy Bancroft, a utility Birmingham infielder who was a star track athlete and team captain at Howard College last year. Bancroft brat Outfielder Fred Schulte when the Browns were here recently, and challenged Stewart, the Nats' best speedster.

RICE MIDGETS DRILL.

The Sam Rice Midgets will practice today on the Rosedale Playgrounds at 1:30 o'clock. All members of the club are requested to report.

FAIRLAWN JUNIORS WILLING.

Fairlawn Juniors have an open date for tomorrow and would like to arrange a game with some junior or senior team. Manager "Woodie" Beall can be reached at Atlantic 4132.

Sheely's Homer Gives Pirates Another Win Over Tigers.

Portworth, Tex., April 5 (A.P.).—Earl Sheely hit a home run over the left field fence here this afternoon to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 10 to 8 victory over the Detroit Tigers. The blow came in the last half of the ninth inning while two runners were on base. It was the Pirates' second straight victory over the Bengals.

By hitting Vic Sorrell viciously in the first two innings, Pittsburgh got away to a five-run lead. The Tigers fought a steady uphill fight and by putting on a 3-run rally in the first half of the ninth went ahead, only to be crushed with the counterrally.

Paul Waner, who signed a contract here Thursday, failed to make his appearance in uniform today.

Reds Continue Winning Over Southern Association Clubs.

Nashville, Tenn., April 5 (U.P.).—Cincinnati's Reds continued winning close games from Southern Association opposition here today by beating the Nashville Volunteers, 2 to 1, on Vanderbilt University's playing field. Donohue went the first seven innings for the Reds in air-tight fashion. Allen led the Reds' offensive with three hits in three swings.

termined bid for the initial sack, and now it is Johnny instead of Lew who is regarded as the extra man.

Second base will be capably guarded by Carl Lind, one of the major finds of last season. Lnd has added 15 pounds to his lanky frame and appears the better for it.

Pitching Presents Problem But Peck Believes Staff Stronger.

The catching department is the one spot where no improvement has been made, the reason being that none was needed so long as Luke Sewell and Glenn Myatt retained their health.

Pitching presents a rather serious problem, but even there Manager Peck believes his club is stronger than it was last summer. Only two men have been lost from the 1928 staff. They are George Uhle, who has gone to the Tigers, and Billy Bayne, now with the Red Sox.

Bayne and Uhle between them won only fourteen games last year. To take their places Peck now has John Miljus and Ken Holloway, veteran big leaguers; Jimmy Zinn, who has won twenty or more games for the last four seasons in the American Association, and Wes Ferrell, a fine looking youngster, recalled from the Terre Haute farm.

To equal the record of Uhle and Bayne these four have only to average three and a half victories apiece, and Peck isn't worrying about their ability to do that.

Joe Shaute and Walter Miller, southpaws, and Willis Hudlin, right-hander, are the veterans on whom most of the pitching burden will rest. With a better defensive club behind them, this trio should do better work, too.

Altogether, it is an encouraging prospect for Cleveland fandom. No pennant is in sight, but better baseball is, and that is something.

shallow hole. Neither of the starters issued any passes.

In the seventh, the Nats got the tying run as far as third when, with two out, Love walked Bluege and Judge singled him to third. This put it to Hayes, who was unable to rise to the emergency. Marberry issued the first Washington pass in the home half, but granted no further liberties.

It was three up and three down for the Nats in the eighth and then the home team made threatening gestures when Moore opened with a single, took second on Costa's suicide and third on Cooper's out, where he died watching Love roll to Marberry.

LEGION ADOPTING TEAMS FOR CAPITAL CITY SERIES

Interpretation Of Rules Is Sought

Strict Eligibility Regulations to Govern Team Rosters.

Season Opens in May; White Heads Protest Group.

PRELIMINARY organization was effected and plans made for conducting the American Legion baseball series in conjunction with the Capital City League at a meeting last night of American Legion Post athletic officers at The Washington Post sports department. Four posts definitely announced through their representatives that they will sponsor teams and others are expected to announce their intentions to take over midget teams as soon as authority is obtained from their respective posts.

Representatives of Lincoln, George Washington, Delano and Victory Posts announced that they will enter teams. Costello Post has practically decided to enter a team again this year.

Series Scheduled to Start About May 15, Representatives Decide.

It was decided at last night's meeting to start the series about May 15. All team rosters and players' eligibility certificates will be required to be filed five days before the start of the season.

W. W. Watt, popular sandlot umpire, who has been named manager of the series by the Department of the District of Columbia, American Legion, last night appointed a committee to settle all disputes and to assist him in conducting the local series. The members of this committee are G. Harris White, director of athletics in public high schools; Richard S. Tennyson, director of boys' activities of the District Playground Department, and R. J. Atkinson, of The Post sports department.

Attention was called by Mr. Watt to the several changes made in the rules governing the American Legion series by the national department. Most of these changes were devised to prevent ineligible players from competing in any of the championship games.

Player's Age Limit Change Meets General Approval.

The age limit has been changed. In order for a player to be eligible this year he must not attain his seventeenth birthday before September 15. Last year a player was eligible unless he did not reach the age of 17 before January 1 of the ensuing year.

Eligibility certificates, which are now available for distribution, must be accompanied by a photograph of the player whose name is affixed thereto as well as a certified copy of the player's birth certificate. In cases where a birth certificate is not obtainable, a certified copy of the player's baptismal certificate and a certified record of his age as contained in the school records must be attached.

John B. Keller, athletic officer for the District department of the American Legion, has announced that an effort will be made to have all disputes relative to eligibility of players settled before the championship series starts. By this method the officials in charge hope to prevent a reoccurrence of protests and removal of teams because of the use of ineligible players late in the season.

Post Officers Searching for Teams to Sponsor.

Those who attended last night's meeting declared themselves fully in accord with the changes made in the rules.

The athletic officers of the various American Legion posts are anxious to communicate with managers of teams contemplating entering the midget section of the Capital City League. Teams wishing to compete under the colors of a legion post are requested to call the league secretary at the sports department of The Post. Team entry blanks and individual eligibility blanks are also available at the sports department of The Post.

CROSSCO IS VICTOR IN BOWIE FEATURE

saved much ground entering the stretch to gain second place. The Keeneland filly might have won with better early racing luck. Panama, the favorite, finished fourth.

Twelve ordinary platers vied for honors in the third race and the chalk playing contingent again went down to defeat when Earl Sande saddled his second winner of the meeting in Milady. The Star Master filly, ably ridden by Jockey E. Benham, coasted home, two lengths ahead of Gunther, the property of J. P. Jones, with Mimic finishing a scant head away to gain third place. The running time was 1:15 3-5.

The Doctor and H. Elston Prove A Winning Combination.

Marion May and Chris. Paschen caused considerable delay at the start but Starter Milton dispatched the field away in good order when they all finally faced the barrier. Sweet Lacruse set the pace for the first furlong, closely followed by the ultimate winner and Gunther. Rounding the turn for home, Milady went to the front and was never headed. Gunther finishing with a rush gained second place with the P. S. P. Randolph's Mimic leading Tom Kanty, the favorite, to the wire by three lengths.

The Doctor and H. Elston proved a winning combination in the fourth race of six furlongs, as the W. E. Harvey gelded son of Light Brigade proved the easiest sort of winner over a band of eleven other platers. Miss Onine finished second three lengths behind the winner with When In Rome saving third by two lengths from Rhapsody Ann.

Rhapsody Ann led the field from the gate followed by Meridian Queen and The Doctor. Rounding the stretch turn, Elston put The Doctor's head out in front and he crossed the wire eased up, in 1:15. Miss Onine, a noted mud runner, came from eighth position at the half pole, cutting in along the rail to lead a field choice. When In Rome, to the wire.

King Charles, racing for the T. Sullivan Stable, suddenly returned to form in the final race of the day and romped off with the nigh cap, a test of a mile and a sixteenth, for 4-year-olds and upward, in 1:52 1-5.

The winner made a show of his opposition and led from start to finish to gain a timely victory for Trainer D. Doyle by five lengths, over Mrs. W. J. Potter's Hesitation. Tester, a one-time star of Maryland racing, finished third a half length away. All of the running was furnished by the first three to finish. Buddah, a red-hot favorite, exhibited a miserable performance and finished far in the rear.

Baseball Loser in Passing Of Tom Crooke, the Umpire

DEATH cut short the career of one of Washington's most colorful baseball players and umpires when Tom Crooke succumbed yesterday in the Quantico, Va., Hospital to injuries received in the crash of a bus carrying him and members of the Cornell University Baseball Team to this city from Quantico Thursday night.

From the first day that Crooke stepped up to the bat more than 30 years ago on a Capital sandlot until he passed away, fans and players alike knew and respected him as a man absolutely fearless in the pursuit of his work, first as a player and then as an umpire.

Endowed with great physical qualifications and an alert mind, Crooke played the game to win at any costs, if fair, and called 'em behind the plate in the role of arbiter always with the courage of his convictions.

As an umpire, Crooke was the central figure in many disputes on the diamond, but he never faltered in defense of his decisions even when bodily harm was threatened by those whom his rulings worked against.

Crooke Was Hard-Hitting First Baseman in Playing Days.

Crooke once offered t defend not only his decisions but himself against the mental and physical abuse of an entire team. He had been told that the players were going to "gang" him before they departed from the town in which the game had been played the same day. He went str ightaway to the train on which the eam was to ride but failed to find a single member of the irate group willing to back up the threats.

During his playing days, Crooke, who was a first baseman and a hard hitter, saw service with many professional clubs, including Washington, with which he performed during the season of 1909 when Jimmy McAleer was the Nats' manager.

He broke into professional baseball early in this century with the Springfield team of the old Connecticut League, now known as the Eastern League. From Springfield he went to Bridgeport, of the same circuit, and then joined the Reading team of the old Tri-State League, an outlaw organization. He stayed with Reading until the league was accepted in organized baseball and then came to Washington for one season.

Managed Frederick Team During 1916 Season.

In 1910 Crooke went back to the minors, joining an International League team. Later he played again in the Eastern loop before putting away his uniform and becoming a manager. He piloted the Frederick club, of the Blue Ridge League, in 1916.

The following year Crooke donned the mask and protector of an umpire and immediately started winning recognition for his ability in that role. The Virginia League hired him for the seasons of 1923 and 1924 and he made good in such a distinguished manner that the International League, a Class AA circuit, employed him during 1925 and 1926.

Crooke worked in the Pacific Coast and Western Leagues during 1927. Last year he umpired in this city and vicinity. Just prior to his untimely demise he had been considered for a position as umpire by the American Association.

Hyattsville High Nine Wins County Opener

Hyattsville High School whitewashed Surrattsville High yesterday, 15 to 0, at Surrattsville in its opening game of the Prince Georges County high school baseball series. Bill Bassford and Espey Brown hurled for Hyattsville and allowed but three hits between them. Hyattsville collected sixteen and was aided in its run making by nine Surrattsville errors.

In a volley game at Surrattsville the Hyattsville Girls lost a thriller to the Surrattsville Girls, 16 to 15. Surrattsville is the defending county volley ball champion.

Trio of Star Milers Entered in Penn Games

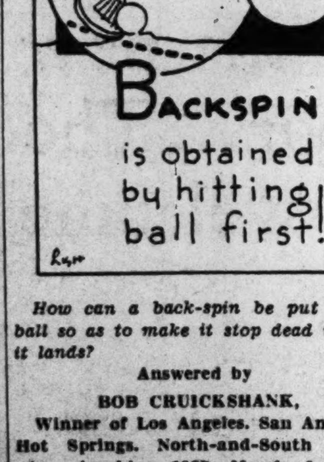

Philadelphia, April 5 (A.P.).—Three of the country's foremost mile runners will go after the American and world's records in the University of Pennsylvania relay carnival, April 26 and 27, N. Jamison Swarts, the manager, announced today.

Raymond Conger, who is taking a post-graduate course at Iowa State; Leo Lermond, former Boston College star, and Orville Martin, of Purdue, will try to lower the American outdoor record of 4m. 12 3-5s., held by N. S. Taber, of Brown, in 1915, and the world's outdoor mark of 4m. 10 4-10s., made by Paavo Nurmi in Sweden.

The mile run, an added event on the two-day program, is, in addition to the effort Nurmi is expected to make on both days to break the records for the 2 and 3 mile runs.

AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

How can a back-spin be put on a ball so as to make it stop dead where it lands?

Answered by

BOB CRUICKSHANK,

Winner of Los Angeles, San Antonio, Hot Springs, North-and-South Open Championships, 1927; Maryland Open, 1928.

To get back-spin on the ball, strike the ball first and then the ground after it. The right foot should be well advanced and the weight chiefly on the left foot. The nose of the club is turned slightly backward. Swing upright and hold the elbows well into the body, so as to make the swing as compact as possible. After the club head strikes the ground, both the hands and the club head should go straight through in the direction of the ball.

Colgate Evens Series With V. M. I.; Wins, 5-3

Lexington, Va., April 5.—Colgate split the two-game series with the Virginia Military Institute by taking the second game, 5 to 3, in ten innings. Both teams had their bats working, but fast fielding, even though faulty at times, kept the score down.

The Cadets started things in the first after two men were out. Laughren made an infield hit and traveled to second on Callan's overthrow. Williams singled and took second when Borise fumbled, Laughren scoring. Massie shot a double into left and Williams counted.

Colgate scored in the third on Dashner's double and Hagay's single. Another was added in the fifth on a double by Callan, sacrifice and an error. The Cadets went ahead in their half of Biggs' home run. Colgate tied things up in the seventh, when Dashner hit for the circuit. Two more were scored in the tenth on a homer by Blakeslee, Borise's single and a double by Dumont.

Cardner hurled a heady game for Colgate and was invincible after the fifth. Bellamy pitched a good game, but long-distance hits and faulty support proved his downfall.

HORNSBY MAY BE DREDGE TO CUBS

Team Harmony May Be Affected With Star on Roster.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

NEW YORK, April 5 (U.P.).—Any discussion of the Chicago Cubs eventually works itself around to the question: Will Rogers Hornsby help or hurt the Cubs?

Conceding that Hornsby has added considerable offensive strength to the Cubs, many critics believe that "the Rajah's" tendency to criticze and abuse his teammates will prevent harmony.

Members of the St. Louis Cardinals, many of whom played under Hornsby in 1926, believe their strongest opposition will come from the New York Giants and are doubtful if Hornsby will strengthen the Cubs, according to a St. Louis baseball writer traveling with the Cardinals.

"It is the opinion of most of the Cardinal players that in adding Hornsby to their roster the Cubs have weakened their pitching staff by letting Percy Jones, a jinx to the Cards, go to the Braves," the St. Louis correspondent says. "The Cubs added a great hitter in Hornsby, but lost a great fielder and dangerous hitter in Maguire.

Hornsby's Past With Cards, Giants and Braves Recalled.

"Likewise, Hornsby's past speaks for itself. He had trouble with the Cardinals in 1926, snickering and bickering, and almost leading a mutiny against the team's owner.

"With the Giants his short-lived career has never been definitely explained, except that he may have been too ambitious.

"With the Braves, Hornsby was abusive and lost patience with his young pitchers when he became manager.

"Whether Joe McCarthy is the two-fisted manager he's cracked up to be and can control Hornsby and several other temperamental players who may object to Rogers' riding when they pull a boner is the big question mark in the Cubs' chances."

Rajah's Temperment May Not Aid Cubs, Veteran Guesses.

A veteran member of the Boston Braves is inclined to believe that Hornsby's domineering attitude toward his teammates will prevent the Cubs from showing any improvement over last season.

"Hornsby is the greatest hitter in our league," this veteran comments, "he's a good fielder. He ought to help the Cubs. I like him and hope he makes good. But he has temperament and I'll let you guess the rest."

Hornsby has started out peacefully enough with the Cubs, minding his own business and playing pennant-inspiring baseball. Always a "loner," Hornsby does not associate with his teammates off the diamond. It is reliably reported that he has signed a pledge to refrain from gambling and is not playing the races this season.

Mighty McCarthy Has Managed Two "Bad Actors" Successfully.

Joe McCarthy has had eminent success in his handling of Hack Wilson and Kiki Cuyler, who are by no manner or means docile athletes. The same tactics McCarthy has used in keeping Wilson and Cuyler calm, however, may fail when applied to Hornsby, who can give plenty of orders but can't take them.

Temperament and everything else to the contrary, Hornsby's batting average of .387 can't be waived aside by a lot of theories based on past records. Until Hornsby actually reverts to the tactics he demonstrated with the Braves, Giants and Cards (1926), it has to be taken for granted that he will prove a valuable link in the Cubs' machine.

1,000 Trophies Ready For Penn Relay Victors

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, April 5.—Over one thousand medals, cups, plaques and watches will be awarded to athletes competing in the 35th annual University of Pennsylvania Relay Carnival, on Franklin Field, April 26 and 27, according to H. Jamison Swarts, manager of the annual meet.

Some idea of the magnitude of the carnival can be gainetd by the following figures: 3,000 numbers and letters to be worn on the backs of the participants, 100 batons for the relay races, 3 miles of line markings for the relay races and field events, four dozen cross bars for the javelin and high jump, a dozen tapes for measuring and 12 javelins, 2 shots, 2 hammers and 2 discii for the field events.

In addition it takes 125 officials to conduct the meet, including starters, timers, measurers and others. A field force of fifteen men is necessary to keep the track and field in condition for the meet.

Special wrist watches to the number of 118 are awarded to teams in 25 championship races, each athlete on the team receiving a watch, to the fourteen winners of first places in the special events and to the four men in the feature races in which Nurmi, Conger, Lermond and Martin are the entrants. Seventeen cups, donated by prominent graduates of Pennsylvania and national fraternities, most of which must be won three times for permanent possession, are awarded for relay races.

High School Quintets Play Finals Tonight

Chicago, Ill., April 5 (A.P.).—The battle for national high school basketball supremacy ends tomorrow night at the University of Chicago with four teams from three sections of the country still in the thick of the fight.

The Southwest qualified two teams, Athens, Tex., and Classen, of Oklahoma City, Okla, while the West placed Joes, Colo., and the Midwest placed Jackson, Mich., in the semifinals today in a series of four battles that saw the downfall of the South. The four teams, survivors of forty-five from thirty-three States that started the drive for national honors Tuesday, meet tomorrow afternoon to determine the two finalists in the title game at night.

Athens, a powerful team of 6-foot-plus boys, tangles with the Jackson five, while the farmer lads from Joes take on the Oklahoma City outfit in the other contest.

Today's scores follow:

Athens (Tex.), 22; College Grove (Tenn.), 7.
Classen (Okla.), 33; Warren (Ark.), 22.
Jackson (Mich.), 25; Wheeler (Miss), 14.
Joes (Colo.), 32; Jena (La.), 20.

NASH AT ASHEVILLE.

Tom Nash, Georgia University's all-American grid star, will pastime with the Asheville Tourists this season. The crack outfielder, regarded as one of the fastest players in baseball, was with Buffalo in 1928.

FIRST GAME TODAY FOR EASTERN

Plays Episcopal High at Alexandria; Western vs. Uniteds.

TWO games and a practice session are on the program for local high school teams today. Eastern will open its season against Episcopal High at Alexandria, while Western will likewise make its 1929 diamond debut in a game with the United Typewriter Uniteds. The practice will find the Tech Squad going through its paces on the North Ellipse from 1 to 3 o'clock. The Western-United encounter will be on the North Ellipse this morning at 10 o'clock.

Curtis ("Cac") Curtin and Bernie Phillips will in all likelihood divide the pitching work for Eastern against Episcopal. These two hurlers are being depended upon to bring Eastern the championship this year in the high school series. Fletcher will no doubt toe the mound for Western against the Typists. Fletcher is the ace of Coach Ahearn's pitching staff at Western.

Because Tech has a strenuous schedule next week, Coach Malcolm Edwards requests that all his players report this afternoon for a lengthy workout for preparatory purposes.

Cochran Ties Grange In Billiard Matches

New York, April 5 (A.P.).—Welker Cochran, of Hollywood, evened up his 12 block 18.2 balkline billiards match with Felix Grange, of France, by taking both of the 300-point blocks today. Each now has won five blocks.

This afternoon Cochran won 300 to 189, in nine innings. His high run was 84; Grange's 66. Tonight Cochran ran out the block in five innings, 300 to 45. He closed out the block with an unfinished run of 270. Grange's best cluster was one of 42.

President Hoover Gets National League Pass

(Associated Press.)

John A. Heydler, president of the National League, presented President Hoover yesterday with a pass for all games in the league.

The card bore the serial number 1 and was inclosed in a case of elephant hide. Mr. Hoover is known to be extremely fond of baseball and his secretary, George Akerson, said today that of the many games he had attended with him he had never known Mr. Hoover to leave before the end except in one instance.

Mr. Heydler said it was customary to give the President the pass marked No. 1, although there had been one exception, Woodrow Wilson, who always requested that he be given No. 13.

Hoppe Holds His Lead In Exhibition Match

New York, April 5 (AP.).—Willie Hoppe maintained his big lead over Allan Hall in their twelve-block three-cushion billiard match today. The day's blocks were split, but Hoppe was leading the young St. Louisan, 500 to 441, tonight, with two more blocks to be played.

Hall took the afternoon block, 64 to 50, in 63 innings. His high run was 8; Hoppe's, 6. Hoppe came back to win the nght block, 50 to 37, in 46 innings. Hoppe's best cluster was 6; Hall's, 5.

Yale Nine Again Wins From Virginia, 10 to 2

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 5.—Yale made it two straight from Virginia, taking today's game, 10 to 2, in a five-inning contest, called by agreement to allow the New Haven players to catch a train for Washington.

The Eli batsmen pounded two Virginia twirlers for nine hits. Long, who started, was wild, issuing five passes and hitting one. Yale registered three runs in the first inning on one single and two sacrifice flies. Vincent opened the third inning with a drive to right field and went to third on Aldrich's hit to the same garden. Hoben walked, Vincent counted on Beyers' long fly, Aldrich on a fielder's choice and Hoben on Long's error.

Olympic Games Are Assured For Los Angeles in 1932

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, April 5 (A.P.).—In spite of recurrent suggestion to the contrary, there is no prospect nor, at present, even the remotest possibility that the Olympic games of 1932 will be shifted from their chosen site of Los Angeles.

Although this award was made and officially accepted several years ago, the impression has become rather widespread that the games merely were given to the United States as a Nation and that the bidding for the athletic carnival is still open. Chicago and Baltimore entered the lists and now Philadelphia is a seeker, on the ground that "protests" of foreign countries against traveling so far may force the games away from the California city.

The fact is, however, that the Olympics were awarded specifically to Los Angeles and that there is no chance of their being held anywhere else unless Los Angeles voluntarily gives them up. Far from having the slightest thought of doing so, the California city already has made big strides in formulating plans for the international events. Its representatives were at Amsterdam last summer, absorbing atmosphere, information and forming contacts.

Holland Demonstrated That Barriers Can Be Overcome.

There is usually some alarm in advance of the Olympics. Quite a little dcubt existed as to Holland's ability to conduct the games. The Dutch experienced temporary financial difficulties, but in the end Amsterdam furnished as business-like and adequate a setting for the 1928 events as any since the Swedes did so thorough a job in 1912. And Holland reaped a tidy profit, to boot.

Each set of Olympics is awarded, usually about six years in advance, to a specific city, not to a country to do with as it may see fit. Los Angeles, therefore, could not transfer the games to any other American city even if it was decided they could not be staged on the Pacific Coast. The decision would go back to the international committee, which would consider the bids all over again.

No award of the 1936 games has yet been made, but Madrid, Berlin, and possibly Rome, will be among the foremost contenders.

Far West Earned Right to Claim Olympic Events.

Since track and field sports are the blue ribbon feature of the Olympics, it seems particularly appropriate for Los Angeles and the Pacific Coast to be hosts. The far West has outstripped all other sections of the country in "light athletics," as Europeans call them. Pacific Coast teams have run off with the bulk of national and intercollegiate championship honors, with Stanford, California and Southern California turning out a flock of stars. The far West's Olympic champions have included Paddock, Smithson, Kelly, Houser, Barnes and King, not to overlook the fact that California has the Olympic championship crew and a school of swimming stars who have registered several dozen points for Uncle Samuel.

Phillies Hard Hit by Loss Of Ulrich and Thevenow.

The major league holdout worries are finally over, with Paul Waner in the fold, but managers and owners likely will sleep better nights if they know their athletes are not trying to outguess the auto traffic on the roads. The epidemic of motor accidents not only has involved star big league talent, but the minors and colleges as well.

Two staggering blows have been dealt the Phillies since last season, the first was the death of Frank (Dutch) Ulrich, the club's best pitcher in 1928, the second is the accident to Tommy Thevenow, star shortstop, whose loss breaks up one of the most promising infield combinations in the major leagues.

"Thevenow's loss is a terrible blow," said John A. Heydler, president of the National League, "particularly so because it comes at a time when the Phillies, under Burt Shotton, looked to be a much improved club, also because the shortstop, after previous hard luck with a broken leg, seemed ready for a fine comeback."

Georgia Tech Relays Attract 22 Entries

Atlanta, Ga., April 5 (A.P.).—Georgia Tech's Relays to be held here April 13 and 14 will be an almost exclusive Southern affair, the entries of 21 universities and colleges already received indicate.

The University of Indiana and Michigan Normal are the only institutions north of the Mason-Dixon line that have entered and they will be eligible to compete in the sprint and distance medleys, and the special track and field events.

The half-mile, mile, 2-mile, and 4-mile relays are restricted to Southern conference schools.

Entries will be received until the date of the relays, it was announced today by W. A. Alexander, in charge of the entries, who is collaborating with Track Coach Hal Barron in conduct of the meet.

The following universities and colleges have already entered: Virginia, North Carolina, Duke, Davidson, Clemson, South Carolina, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Florida, Alabama, Alabama Polytechnic (Auburn), Mississippi A. & M., Louisiana, Vanderbilt, Tennessee, Kentucky, Michigan Normal, Indiana, Furman, Oglethorpe and Mercer.

Mattox Slams Double To Win for Virginia Poly

Special to The Washington Post.

Blacksburg, Va., April 5.—V. P. I.'s Team overcame a three-run lead to romp on the Elon Nine, 6 to 3, here today. The Carolinians jumped ahead in the third frame on hits by Caddell Smith and Sims and an error by Bibb, Poly second sacker. Bibb, sensational recruit from sophomore ranks, made up for his miscue in the latter half of the inning by driving a home run to the right field stands to score McEver ahead of him for the Gobblers' first brace of tallies. V. P. I. added three more in the fifth, when Briggs, Elon southpaw, made the mistake of passing Tomko to get to Mattox.

Resort Golf Teams Will Battle Today

Pinehurst, N. C., April 5 (A.P.).—Picked golfers from Florida and Pinehurst will begin their eighth annual battle of the resorts here tomorrow afternoon.

Play will be in the form of Nassau foursomes over the No. 2 championship course of the Pinehurst Country Club. The Pinehurst team, led by Ross Somerville, Canadian amateur champion, will include also Richard S. Tufts, of Pinehurst; Eugene Homans, of New York; Forbes K. Wilson, of York Harbor, Me., and the Yale University golf team. P. W. Whittmere, of Boston; William C. Fownes, jr., of Pittsburgh, former national amateur champion; R. L. Babcock, of Pittsburgh; J. D. Chapman, of Greenwich, Conn.; R. H. Swope, of Philadelphia; B. P. Marriman, of Waterbury, Conn.; E. L. Scofield, of New York, and Richard Wilson, Southern Pnes.

The Florida resorts will offer George Voigt, of New York; Eddie Held, of New York; Johnny Dawson, of Chicago; J. B. Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y.; Robert Stranahan, of Toledo, Ohio; William Arupp, of Buffalo; Eddie Guggenheim, of New York; D. N. Tallman, of Minneapolis; A. B. Jenks, of Manchester, Vt., and R. J. Francisco, of Rutland, Vt.

Youngblood Manages Midget Series Team

George Youngblood has assumed charge of the Delano Post Nine, which will compete in the American Legion series in connection with the Capital City League this season and is seeking capable midget players for his team.

Youngblood is especially anxious to secure the services of any of the players he coached two years ago with the Walford Insects. Candidates are requested to communicate with Youngblood at Stuart Junior High School or at the Plaza Playgrounds after school hours.

The Delano and Lincoln Post Teams are scheduled to meet April 14 on the North Ellipse diamond at 1 o'clock.

ARCADIANS TRIUMPH.

The Arcadian A. C. Nine outslugged the Gallagher All-Stars to gain a 14 to 9 verdict on the Soldier's Home diamond yesterday. Fox and Hart were the outstanding performers for the winners.

D. C. BOWLERS IN ROLL-OFF TONIGHT

Whalen and Campbell to Break Tie for National Title.

DISTRICT bowlers who tied for national duckpin championships at Richmond in the National Duck Pin Bowling Congress tournament will battle for undisputed claim to the titles tonight in the Virginia Capital city.

Howard Campbell, former national all-events champion, and Jack Whalen, the District's ranking star of last season, will meet in a three-game contest to decide the singles championship. Campbell shot a 430 set last Saturday night to tie Whalen for the title.

Mrs. Margaret Miltner and Miss Marjorie Bradt, two of the most outstanding women bowlers of Washington this season, will oppose each other in a three-game set with the women's all-event crown at stake. Each amassed a total pinfall record of 975 on the final night of the program.

Congress Agrees to Pay Expenses To Decide Protests.

All efforts to have the post-tourney contests held here failed when the congress officials agreed to pay the expenses of the local bowlers for the trip to Richmond. As all of the contestants are Capital City stars, it was the general opinion of local bowling fans that the roll-off contests should be rolled here.

The Congress ruled that the matches should be rolled at Richmond, but the principals refused to make the trip unless arrangements were made to pay their expenses. The congress officials agreed to meet their demand.

The contestants for the two titles are well matched. Whalen and Campbell rate among the best Washington has produced, the former of the new school and the latter a veteran of many pin engagements. Mrs. Miltner is making a bid for local as well as national fame, having won three important victories here this season as well as the national singles title. Miss Bradt has proven a dependable performer under pressure, and it is widely known among the women duckpin fans that she has had an eye on one of the national titles since her early-season conquests here.

A large number of alley fans of Washington and vicinity have announced their intention to witness the important matches at Richmond tonight. George L. Isemann, secretary of the N. D. P. B. C., will accompany the bowlers to see that everything is staged under official supervision.

Navy and Yale Meet In Two Sports Today

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 5.—Baseball between Navy and Yale tops the week-end athletic card at Annapolis tomorrow. The Middies also meet the Eli's on the tennis courts. Two lacrosse games will complete the day's activities, Navy meeting Randolph-Macon, of Virginia, and St. JoJhn's College entertaining the twelve of Baltimore University. All four events are scheduled for the same time, 2:30 o'clock.

Midshipman Edward E. Colestock, of Lewisburg, Pa., class of 1930, was today elected captain of the Navy Basket Ball Team for next season, and Claud W. Hughes, of Mineral, Ark., also 1930, was chosen to pilot the wrestlers. Colestock, who played center on that quint, will succeed Claire Miller, of Indiana, who played forward. Hughes, who wrestled in the light-heavyweight division, and is center of the football team, succeeds George W. Ashford, of Georgia. Both Miller and Ashford will graduate in June. Raymond L. Mayo, and Jack S. Dorsey were elected managers of the basket ball and wrestling teams respectively.

BONDS TURN UPWARD AS TRADING EXPANDS

Market Improvement Is Laid Largely to Easing of Call Money.

RAILS GENERALLY HIGHER

New York, April 5 (A.P.).—The bond market today continued to improve as trading was accelerated slightly in the late afternoon, with sales for the second time this month getting within striking distance of the $10,000,000 mark.

The improvement was attributed partly to the 6 per cent call loan rate. Time money held at 9 per cent for the shorter maturities and 8½ to 9 for the longer dates, compared to 9 per cent commanded yesterday and the day before.

Municipal and State financing was a little more active, although dealers report their shelves overstocked with unsold bond issues. California's $2,000,000 4½ per cent gold bonds, legal investment for savings banks and trust funds in New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut, were marketed at a price to yield 4.35 per cent. A new issue of $2,000,000 Chicago Lincoln Park District 4½ per cent gold bonds were offered at prices to yield 5 to 4.40 per cent, according to maturity.

Foreign countries were reported by the Federal Reserve Board in its latest warning to be experiencing difficulties in obtaining the exchange necessary to pay for American products as a result of reduced foreign borrowing brought about by the unfavorable condition of the bond market.

United States Government securities displayed a strong tone, with a cessation of the selling that carried nearly all issues to record low price levels last month. The improvement also was attributed to belated following by investors of Secretary of Treasury Mellon's statement, "Now is a good time to buy bonds."

International Telephone convertible 4½s accounted for the bulk of the trading in the speculative group, closing fractionally lower after an early display of strength. Commercial Investment Trust 5½s continued under pressure, established a new low for the year at 95 and closed at 96 with a fractional net loss. Anaconda Copper 7s slipped down 2 points on a small turnover. Alleghany Corporation 5s and International Corporation 5½s were strong.

The irregular industrial list was featured by an advance of more than a point in Crown Cork & Seal 6s on announcement of an affiliation with a group of foreign companies.

Rails were generally higher, the Seaboard issues leading the advance. Atlantic Coast Line 4½s were pushed up 2 points. St. Paul adjustment 5s lost ground.

Utilities, in light demand, moved irregularly higher. New York Telephone refunding 6s led the advance. North American Edison 5½s were under pressure.

The foreign list was dull and featureless.

Curb Review

New York, April 5 (A.P.).—Trading in today's curb market showed a moderate expansion in volume, but buying operations were cautious in character, and prices moved irregularly higher. Some liquidation came into the market as a result of the Federal Reserve Board's threat to take further credit restriction measures, but speculative confidence was partially restored when the call money rate dropped from 8 to 6 per cent. Wall street anticipates another "money squeeze" around the 15th, but the rate is not expected to reach the 20 per cent level touched late in March.

Ford of Canada was again the spectacular feature in the motor group, soaring 45 points, to a new record high at 1190, but losing part of its gain. The new Class B stock, which is to have sole voting power under the recapitalization plan, opened at 58, ran up to 70 and closed just below the top. Ford of England again changed hands in large volume, with little net change in price. Revival of activity in Durant Motors carried that stock up more than 2 points. Checkered Cab, Paramount and Auburn also recorded moderate gains, but Stutz was heavy.

Oils continued sluggish in reflection of the speculative disappointment created by recent developments in the crude oil curtailment program. Vacuum, Humble and Gulf lost a point or two, but Imperial ran up 4 points, to a new high at 106½, losing half of its gain.

Public utilities were mixed, with a rise of 5 points in Northeastern Power, part of which was lost, as the outstanding feature. American Superpower issues advanced slightly, but a number of other recent leaders, such as American Gas & Electric, American & Foreign Power warrants, Electric Bond & Share and United Gas Improvement lost ground.

A few issues, such as Agfa Ansco preferred, American Brown Boverei, Enamel and Servel, moved into new high ground, and a sprinkling of others, including Axton Fisher Tobacco, Massey Harris and Todd Shipyard, sold at new low levels for the year. Merchandising shares displayed a stronger undertone. Sentry Safety Control was active and strong on reports of large current sales.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, April 5 (A.P.).—Broadening out of European demand for wheat from North America put considerable strength at times today into the wheat market here. On the bulges in price, however, selling enlarged, especially from the Southwest, and the advances taken as a whole proved transient.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular, ranging from ½c net decline to ⅝c rise, with corn unchanged to a shade lower, oats unchanged to ¼c up and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15c.

Export business in North American wheat today was estimated at 1,000,000 bushels and was said to include some hard winter wheat from the United States. The market influence of such factors was largely discounted, though, by Kansas City messages which said export bids there were 5c out of line. Meanwhile, advices were current that terrific winds prevailed in sections of Kansas and Nebraska, but a counterbalance was news of beneficial rains in parts of both of these States, together with word of snowstorms at several points in Canada and of scattered showers elsewhere.

One of the Kansas rain reports which attracted special notice told of a heavy downpour extending from Dodge City westward to the Colorado line. In contrast, on the other hand, with bearish advices about domestic crop developments was a cable report saying freak weather enveloped all of Europe; that the season there was cold and backward, and that rain was much needed. It was added that European importers were bidding for United States hard winter wheat, and that unsold quantities both of Argentine and Canadian wheat afloat are smaller. Under such circumstances nervous fluctuations in price here continued right up to the end of trading and the finish was indecisive.

Corn as well as wheat advanced after early declines, but again eased off. Smallness of receipts of corn tended to promote upturns in price, and so, too, did unfavorable conditions for field work in the Southwest. Shipping demand here, however, was only fair. Oats were relatively firm, with Eastern buying a factor.

Provisions reflected both a better export call for lard and a 25c advance in hog values.

Cash grain:
WHEAT—No. 3 red, 1.23½; No. 3 Northern spring, 1.12.
CORN—No. 3, mixed, 84¾; No. 2 yellow, 91.
OATS—No. 2, white, 50; No. 4 white, 43 @47.
RYE—No. 3, 1.00½.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, April 5 (A.P.).—An early decline, influenced by relatively easy Liverpool cables, was followed by advances in cotton today on trade buying of near months and covering in later deliveries. Buying was attributed largely to uncertainty of weather developments over the week-end and was sufficient to send prices up from 19.80 to 20.03 for July contracts. July closed at 19.97. The general market closed steady at net advances of 9 to 13 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 5 points to an advance of 1 point and showed net losses of 6 to 10 points in the early trading. There was probably some selling on the weather map showing of favorable weather in the South this morning, as well as on easier Liverpool cables and less favorable trade advices from Manchester.

May declined to 20.35 and December to 19.79 under this early pressure.

Offerings were quite readily absorbed, with trade interests buying old crop position. There also was some commission house demand as well as covering in later months. The latter seemed to be stimulated by apprehensions that rains expected in the Southwest would work eastward over the week-end, and the strength of near months had a sympathetic influence on later deliveries. May sold up to 20.55, or 14 points net higher, while December advanced to 19.98, or 11 points above yesterday's final quotations.

There was some realizing on this bulge, but closing prices were within a few points of the best. Considerable switching between months was reported during the day. At the close May was 59 points over October, compared with a difference of 61 points at yesterday's close.

Reports of steadiness in the stock market were considered a factor on the rally from the early decline. Much of the buying was supposed to reflect a firmer technical position in cotton.

Cable advices reported continental and Bombay buying in Liverpool, supplied by liquidation, and said there was a pessimistic feeling in Manchester, with producers losing ground. It was reported that the Spinning Association had recommended a continuation of short time in the Egyptian spinning section of Lancashire for another four weeks.

Exports today, 38,013, making 6,971,097 this season. Port receipts, 13,915. United States port stocks, 1,631,876.

AUCTION SALES

THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers. 1431 Eye Street Northwest.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF VALUABLE APARTMENT HOUSE LOCATED AT THE NORTHEAST CORNER OF NICHOLS AVENUE AND TALBERT STREET SOUTHEAST, ANACOSTIA, D. C., CONTAINING APPROXIMATELY 26 APARTMENTS.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust, dated April 2, 1928, being instrument No. 201, recorded April 11, 1928, among the land records of the District of Columbia, in liber 6137, folio 161, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will sell, at public auction, in front of the premises, on WEDNESDAY, THE 10TH DAY OF APRIL, A. D. 1929, AT 2 O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia and designated as and being lot numbered three hundred and four (304) in square numbered five thousand eight hundred and five (5805) in the subdivision of lots made by William J. Latimer and William J. Tucker, trustees, as per plat recorded in the office of the surveyor for the District of Columbia in liber 85 at folio 51; subject to the building restriction line as shown on said plat and subject also to covenants of record.

TERMS OF SALE: Sold subject to a first trust of $65,000, further information concerning which will be given at time of the sale. One-third of the purchase money above said first trust to be paid in cash, balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years, with interest at 6 per centum per annum, payable semiannually, from day of sale, secured by deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. A deposit of $1,000.00 will be required at time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, etc., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within 30 days from day of sale, otherwise the trustees reserve the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

INCREASE IS SHOWN IN MONEY TURNOVER

Week Ended March 30 Reveals Expansion Over Same Week of 1928.

STOCKS REMAIN STEADY.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Judging from check payment data, the volume of money turnover during the week ended March 30 was above the level for this time a year ago, according to the weekly statement on business conditions made public yesterday at the Department of Commerce. A decrease under the previous week was seen, however.

Industrial activity, as reflected by steel plant operations, remained about the same as in the week preceding, but was much larger than in the same period a year ago, the statement disclosed. The production of bituminous coal during the latest reported week was smaller than in either prior period.

Unchanged from the previous week, the output of lumber still was less than a year ago. Petroleum output showed a sizeable increase over both periods. A slight increase over both the week prior and the corresponding week of 1928 developed in freight car loadings for the latest reported week.

Only a fractional advance over a year ago was shown in the general level of wholesale prices, which remained at last week's level. Further advance was noted in the price of copper. Iron and steel, although showing no change from the previous week, averaged higher than a year ago. The price of cotton declined from the preceding week, but was higher than last year.

As compared with both the previous week and the same period a year ago, loans and discounts of Federal Reserve member banks showed further expansion. Interest rates on call loans averaged considerably higher than in either period. For both periods bond prices were lower. Although less than in the previous week business failures were greater than a year ago.

During the week ended March 23, receipts of hogs were lower than in the corresponding period of 1928, while those for cattle were higher. The statement showed that receipts of wheat and cotton were running considerably higher than last year

Acacia's Business Increases.

Business of the Acacia Mutual Life Association has shown a marked monthly increase since the first of the year, figures for March made available yesterday at the association's headquarters reveal.

They show gross business written in March amounting to $5,000,000, a 40 per cent gain, when compared with the figures for January and February. The March net gain was $3,500,000, and the total amount of insurance now in force is $308,000,000.

Gratification over the manner in which the year is progressing for the association was expressed yesterday by William Montgomery, the president, back from a trip through the South, where he conferred with members of the field staff.

Erection of two large neon signs on top of the Acacia Building at First street and Indiana avenue northwest has been completed, and the word "Acacia" shines nightly in bright letters.

H. H. McKee to Lead Delegation.

H. H. McKee, president of the National Capital Bank, head of the Washington Clearing House Association, and chairman of the council of the Stockholders Association of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, will lead a delegation of Washington bankers to Richmond for the annual meeting of the association next Friday.

Chairman McKee is scheduled to make his annual report before an important luncheon of the association on that day. Other important reports are scheduled, and it is expected that the present unsettled credit situation will come up for at least informal discussion. Notices of the meeting have just been received at Washington banks from George H. Keesee, of the Richmond Bank, secretary of the association.

Local bankers, who plan to attend the session include Victor B. Deyber, president of the Second National Bank and former chairman of the association; John Poole, president of the Federal-American National Bank, and Wilmer J. Waller, vice president, and J. Frank White, cashier of the National Bank, of Washington. C. E. Tiffany, of Warrenton, Va., is president of the association.

Group Life Insurance Acquired.

Group life insurance protection for its 52 employes has been acquired by the H. L. Rust Co., real estate loans and insurance firm, the policy being issued by the Prudential Insurance Co. of America, at a total amount of $152,000.

Each worker is insured in amounts ranging from $2,000 to $4,000, according to salary. The policy is of contributory type and employes will pay a part of the premiums while the employing company assumes the remainder of the expense. The Rust firm is a mortgage loan correspondent for the Prudential Co.

Barber & Ross, Incorporated, common stock stood first in trading on the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday, transfers of 200 shares at 20, last sale figure, being listed. Thirty shares of Terminal Refrigerating & Warehousing Corporation followed Thursday's 70 at 51, previous quotation, and 20 of Columbia Sand & Gravel preferred, sold in lots of ten at 91⅛ and 91⅛, a fractional drop.

Potomac Electric 6 per cent preferred sold at 111¼; Washington Gas Light at 110½, and Chevy Chase Dairy preferred at 106¾. Merchants' Transfer & Storage common appeared, ten shares exchanging at 127, last sale level, and Mergenthaler Linotype moved at 107⅛. Potomac Electric 5½ preferred was traded at 107¾.

Three transactions were recorded in the bond division, one $300 lot of Washington Gas 6s, Series A, selling at 102½, last sale price, and two lots of the B bonds at 103½ and 104½.

Coming of Chain Store.

The coming of the chain store has done more than any other single occurrence to quicken the consciousness and stimulate the enterprise of distributive agencies of all kinds, declares the National Bank of Commerce in the April issue of the Commerce Monthly. It states, however, that distribution is a matter of processes, and not until these processes have been subjected to analysis and control can there be an effectively geared distributive link between producer and consumer.

CONGESTED TRAFFIC ZONE IS BROADENED BY DISTRICT HEADS

More One-Way Streets Are Established in Amendments to Regulations.

SIGNS WILL FACILITATE CONFORMITY TO RULINGS

Parking at Repair Barricades Made Illegal; Two Avenue Sections Boulevards.

Extension of the downtown congested zone from K to L and from Seventeenth to Eighteenth streets northwest is provided in a series of amendments to existing traffic regulations, approved yesterday by the District Commissioners on the recommendation of Traffic Director William H. Harland.

L street, Harland said, "is fast becoming a business street and we received a petition from the business men on that street asking for a change in the parking conditions.

Several one-way streets are established and changes made in the parking regulations governing others under the amendments approved yesterday, but the amendments, which have been approved by the Traffic Council, are of a character which will not make it necessary for the motorist to memorize them, as they are enforceable by signs.

Other Changes Adopted.

Other changes include:

Wisconsin avenue, from M street to Massachusetts avenue, made a boulevard highway, with stop signs at all intersecting streets.

Eleventh street southeast, from B street to the north approach of the Anacostia Bridge, made a boulevard highway, with stop signs at intersections.

Kalmia road, substituted for Alaska avenue as the northern limit of Sixteenth street as an arterial highway.

The speed limit was raised to 30 miles an hour on Sixteenth street, between Alaska avenue and Kalmia road, to expedite traffic and because the road has been newly improved.

Bridge Speed Increased.

The speed limit on the Pennsylvania avenue southeast bridge was raised to 23 miles an hour for passenger and 18 and 15 miles an hour for pneumatic and solid-tire trucks, respectively. The speed limit applying to other bridges was not changed.

Motorists will be prohibited from taking advantage of street barricades as parking spaces, under another regulation, which reads: "No vehicle shall be parked in front of any barricade or sign that has been placed for the purpose of closing the street or alley."

Another amendment prohibits parking at all places where signs have been placed. This is designed to overcome the provision limiting parking to within 20 feet of an intersection. In some places, Harland said, the distance from the intersection should be greater, and he cited the south side of F street, west of Ninth street northwest, the north side of G street, west of Ninth, and the south side of G street, west of Seventh street.

On Connecticut Avenue.

On Connecticut avenue, H to N streets, one-hour parking is specified from 8 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening; but no parking at any time on the west side, between M and Eighteenth streets; no parking on the west side, from Columbia to Kalorama roads, from 8 to 9:15 o'clock in the morning, and no parking on the east side from 4 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon.

Defrees street, no parking south side, North Capitol to First streets.

P street northwest, Seventeenth to Nineteenth streets, two-hour parking from 8 to 6 o'clock, lifting the ban against parking on the south side in the afternoon.

H street, Eighteenth to Nineteenth streets, two-hour parking, 8 to 6 o'clock, north of Pennsylvania avenue.

M street, between Wisconsin avenue and No. 5 Engine House, no parking on south side.

Newton place, Georgia avenue to Sixth street, no parking on north side.

Oak Street Regulation.

Oak street, Sixteenth to Center streets, no parking south side.

Prospect avenue, Wisconsin to Potomac, no parking north side.

Thomas circle, no parking at either inner or outer curb of circle at any time.

Woodley place, Calvert to Cathedral, no parking east side.

Tenth street, F street to New York avenue, eliminates existing parking ban, so that congested zone parking limit applies.

Thirteenth street, Massachusetts avenue to Iowa circle, no parking, 8 to 9:15 and 4 to 6 o'clock; Kenyon to Spring road, no parking west side, 8 to 9:15 o'clock, and no parking east side, same stretch from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Sixteenth street, no parking east side for 165 feet north of Columbia road.

Seventeenth Street.

Seventeenth street, F to G, no parking east side, 4 to 6 o'clock; G to Pennsylvania, no parking at any time; Pennsylvania to H, no parking east side 4 to 6 and two-hour parking 8 to 4; no parking west side 8 to 9:15; two-hour parking from 9:15 to 6; H to K, two-hour parking 8 to 6.

Twentieth street, Connecticut to Virginia, no parking west side 8 to 9:15 o'clock and no parking east side 4 to 6.

Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets parking restrictions eliminated because rerouting of street cars has made the restrictions unnecessary.

Benning road, Fifteenth to Sixteenth, no parking.

H street northeast, Second to Fifteenth, one-hour parking 8 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night.

Massachusetts avenue, First northeast to North Capitol, 30-minute parking limit on north side at all times.

Myrtle Street Parking.

Myrtle street, North Capitol to First, no parking north side.

Rhode Island avenue, Fourth to Twelfth northeast, no parking north side 8 to 9:15 o'clock; no parking south side 4 to 6.

Nichols avenue, Anacostia Bridge to Good Hope road, no parking.

The following streets were added to those closed during certain school hours: G northeast, Maryland avenue to Thirteenth; N northwest, Sixth and Six-and-a-half; Twelth southwest, G to I.

Belmont road, Connecticut to Water Side drive, one way for eastbound traffic only.

Left-hand turns are prohibited at Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue between 8 and 9:15 and 4 and 6 o'clock.

C northeast, Sixth to Thirteenth, eastbound one way.

Harvard Street One Way.

Harvard northwest, Columbia road to Argyle place, one way, northbound only.

Platt place, present one-way restriction removed.

T street, Seventh to Florida avenue, one way, eastbound.

Four alleys were added to the one-way traffic list: That leading from 1294 Euclid to Twelfth, northbound; between H and I, Connecticut and Seventeenth, enter from H and leave by Seventeenth; between L and De Sales, Seventeenth and Connecticut, enter from L and leave by Seventeenth; between Twelfth and Thirteenth, Monroe and Newton northeast, enter from Twelfth and leave by Monroe.

Wisconsin avenue, M to P, no parking west side 8 to 9:15 o'clock; two-hour parking 9:15 in morning to 8 at night; no parking east side 4 to 6 and two-hour parking from 8 to 4 and 6 to 8; P to Volta, no parking any time; Volta to Thirty-fifth, no parking west side 8 to 9:15 and no parking east side 4 to 6.

Under the law the new regulations must be formally advertised by the Commissioners and become effective 30 days after the date of advertisement.

DELEGATION WILL STUDY EDUCATION FOR WORKERS

"REFORM" OF A.F.L. ASSAILED BY GREEN

Tells Education Bureau That Traditional Policy Ought to Be Maintained.

DEFENDS STRIKE SYSTEM

An address by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, featured the opening sessions yesterday of the sixth national convention of the Workers Education Bureau of America. Sessions will be resumed today at the Hamilton Hotel. In his address Mr. Green pledged support to the education movement.

"I consider the Workers Education Bureau an arm of the American Federation of Labor," said Mr. Green. "Education of trade unionists makes for better members of the federation, because knowledge is power."

Concerning the existing working conditions, Mr. Green declared the greatest need of the workers is organization.

"The success of the workers' movement rests on organization," he said, adding that "Both skilled and unskilled workers need to be mobilized into a compact, strong organization."

Hits "Progressive" Movement.

Reviewing accomplishments of the federation, Mr. Green asserted that the organization has made tremendous progress despite tremendous difficulties. He assailed advocates of the so-called "progressive movement" which he said, advocated changes in the policies of the federation.

"The policies of the federation have been formulated in the 48 past conventions, attended by representatives elected by the members," President Green said. "No organization is more democratic than the American Federation of Labor. Every meeting is an open forum where all questions are openly discussed. From these meetings have come the policies of the organization."

Opposes Ban on Strikes.

Mr. Green bitterly denounced those who advocated State above individual, and declared the federation was "always opposed to any proposed governmental agency for the purpose of banning strikes." "We do not believe in a strikeless America," he said.

He also stated that his organization opposed any per capita tax on its members in support of any educational institution which taught such philosophies as organizations to prevent strikes.

Other speakers at yesterday's sessions were: John B. Colpoys, chairman of the local committee on arrangements; James J. Noonan, president of the Central Labor Union; Sidney F. Taliaferro, District Commissioner; Frank J. Coleman, secretary of the Maryland-District of Columbia Federation of Labor, and James H. Maurer, president of the bureau.

Nine Women Named On New Grand Jury

Members, Sworn In, Will Serve Three Months to July 1.

With nine women members, the new District grand jury, which will inquire into criminal charges for a three-month period, ending July 1, was sworn in yesterday at the District Supreme Court.

Eugene Thompson, connected with Crane, Parris & Co., brokers, was elected foreman. He served in a similar capacity five years ago. Mr. Thompson lives at 3026 Forty-fourth place northwest.

Other members of the new jury are: Miss Evelyn Jarvis, Miss Ella M. Adams, Mrs. Evelyn Dunn, Mrs. Florence Spealman, John C. Conliff, sr., LeRoy J. McCarty, John G. Kolb, Miss Leona M. Miller, Miss Amy D. Yerkes, Frank A. Wright, William J. Kinsella, Frank B. Wallace, Mrs. Edythe Stewart Wilbert, Clarence E. Robinson, George E. Ayton, Francis E. Robey, Miss Edna G. Woods, Howard P. Billings, Daniel Chester Walford, Miss Mary Elizabeth Whitaker, Herman Fakler and Henry H. Waesche.

Deputy Marshal Wedded After 35-Year Courtship

After a courtship of 35 years, Deputy Marshal James S. ("Big Jim") McCarthy, 58 years old, took the plunge into the sea of matrimony.

News of his marriage leaked out yesterday at the District Supreme Court and came as a surprise to his host of associates and friends. McCarthy and Miss Mary I. C. Frayser, 50 years old, eloped to Baltimore Thursday and were married by the Rev. W. T. Way. The newlyweds had planned to keep their marriage a secret, but some one blasted their hopes by reading the marriage license column of a Baltimore newspaper.

"Big Jim" met his bride before the automobile age, on May 12, 1894, and admitted that it took him the 35 years to summon enough courage to propose. The marshal believes his courtship is a record breaker.

McCarthy was secretary of the late Senator A. J. McLaurin, of Mississippi, from 1901 until 1905, and during the war was connected with the legal investigations of the Railroad Administration from 1918 until 1920. He is a native of Texas and an attorney. He entered the United State's marshal's office shortly after the war.

COOPERATION IS REQUIRED

Study of motor bus terminals and the manner in which interstate bus traffic is handled in other cities is to be made by Chairman John W. Childress and Secretary Earl V. Fisher, of the Public Utilities Commission.

Expenses incident to a tour of inspection to be made by Childress and Fisher were authorized yesterday by the District Commissioners on formal application for the utilities Commission by Fisher.

Childress is expected to visit Cleveland and Detroit, it is said, while Fisher is expected to visit Atlantic City, Charlotte, Asheville, Cincinnati, Louisville, Indianapolis, Minneapolis, Columbus, Ohio, Wheeling and Pittsburgh.

The utilities commission officials are to study how the bus terminals are financed, the number of buses accommodated, and other general and detailed features of the terminals in the various cities they will visit.

The commission is anxious to bring about development of a central bus terminal in the downtown section of the city and a hint that it may crack the whip over the various bus lines unless cooperation for quick action is forthcoming was given by Fisher.

One of the features which will be looked into, he declared, was the manner in which the various cities control the bus lines, the privileges granted them and whether buses are permitted to park in public highways during layovers between trips and what, if any, license fees are charged the buses. The commission also wants to get first-hand information as to the basis on which the bus companies pay for the use of the central terminal.

Woman Seeks $10,000, Suing Driver of Auto

As a result of a motor mishap while returning from a trip to Gettysburg, Pa., Esther Stein, of 616 Otis place northwest, yesterday instituted suit for $10,000 damages in the District Supreme Court against Frank Lustick, of 1204 G street northwest.

The plaintiff, through Attorney Edward J. Reamer, declared she drove to Gettysburg with Lustick on December 9. While returning, she declared, Lustick operated the automobile negligently, caused it to crash into a fence on a road near Emmitsburg, Md., and she was seriously injured as a result.

Ballots had been distributed among employes of the department during the past month, the time limit for their return to the committee expiring at 6 o'clock last night.

Lecture on Gardening And Flowers Scheduled

Garden makers and those interested in flowers have been invited to attend an illustrated lecture to be given at the Southeast Community Center in Hine Junior High School, Seventh and C streets southeast, Monday night at 8 o'clock.

The speaker will be W. R. Beatty, extension horticulturist of the Department of Agriculture, and his lecture is designed to give helpful hints on the care of flowers and gardens to those who plan decoration of their lawns.

Rites Will Observe Army Day in City

Speeches by War Secretary and Chief of Staff to Feature Exercises.

Gen. Creed C. Hammond, commander of the District Chapter of the Military Order of the World War, has announced plans for observance of Army day today. The plans have been approved by Secretary of War Good.

Ceremonies will be held on the Pennsylvania avenue side of the State, War and Navy Building. Representatives of the city's patriot and veteran organizations will attend. The principal address will be delivered by Secretary Good. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, also will speak.

The Army Band will play. Mrs. N. N. Nock, a gold star mother, will have a place on the program. Tribute to the American flag will be paid by Capt. George Unmacht. Capt. Edwin S. Bettelheim, jr., is general chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Slayer of Bandit Receives Threat

Store Owner Warned "We Will Get You" in Mystery Note.

With a skull and cross-bones as a signature, a note, threatening to "get" Sol Buckner, 25-year-old cigar store proprietor of 401 O street northwest, who shot to death one of two negro gunmen who attempted to rob him in his store Wednesday night, was turned over to Second Precinct police yesterday for investigation.

"We will get you yet. Move," said the note, which caused Buckner's wife to become hysterical and him to seek the aid of police.

Police of the Second Precinct are continuing their hunt for the companion of James Armstrong, 20-year-old gunman, who was killed in the attempted holdup.

Razor-Armed Woman Seeks Vengeance and Finds Jail

Armed with a razor and a few drinks of "bottled courage," Mrs. Hilda Black, diminutive 29-year-old brunette, set out seeking vengeance on a woman who caused her to sprain her wrist.

The quest ended yesterday in Police Court when Judge Ralph Given sentenced Mrs. Black to serve a six-month jail sentence for carrying a dangerous weapon, and $10 for intoxication.

After receiving a complaint that the woman was walking along Third street northwest brandishing a razor, Policeman Frank B. Knapp testified he set out to find her. He accosted her as she was about to enter a taxicab at Third street and Pennsylvania avenue.

The woman admitted to Judge Given that she took a few drinks of liquor to enable her to fight the better if she met her quarry.

SCATHING SPEECHES ASSAILING DRY FOES ELATE METHODISTS

U. S. Judges, Rich Drinkers and Cigarette-Smoking Society Women Hit.

EDUCATION OF CHILDREN IS HELD MAJOR WEAPON

Hoover and G. O. P. Platform Praised by Public Morals Director at Conference.

In scathing denunciation of all who stand in the way of prohibition and its enforcement and advocacy of ways and means for making enforcement 100 per cent perfect, two speakers elicited applause from the mass meeting of ministers and laymen and members of the women's organizations at the Baltimore Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Foundry Church last night.

Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals, in his enthusiasm, departed from the script of his speech, and with caustic shafts drew much laughter, as well as applause. Dr. Ernest H. Carrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, advocated a campaign of education for the next generation "so that prohibition may be a matter of public consciousness."

G. O. P. Platform Praised.

Dr. Wilson praised the Republican platform in its pledge to adhere to a strict observance and impartial enforcement of the prohibition law.

"It means something when the party pledges itself to serve no intoxicating liquor in the White House; that no Cabinet men accept college commencement invitations where liquor is served," he declared.

"It means something when the Army and Navy officers and men do not patronize bootleggers or drink intoxicating liquors in foreign ports. Our boys will not be seen again carrying that uniform into illicit sales places.

"Thank God we have an administration here pledged against the sale of liquor in defiance of the law.

"Now we must change the emphasis from enforcement to observance," Dr. Wilson continued.

Rich and Poor Assailed.

"The mass of the millions—God bless them!—observe prohibition. It is the bootleggers, the rich, the war profiteers, the cigarette-smoking society women and the frequenters of brothels who are rotten—they are just as rotten at the rich end as they are at the other end. It is the middle class that is saving the world.

"The greatest cure for the faults of humanity is more democracy. We have shown special deference to the rich, protective tariff and the like, and we have even called out the militia to protect them from their workmen, and then Mr. du Pont stands up and says: 'I violate the law and I'm proud of it. That is contemptible treason.

Education of Children Urged.

"We have to have a plan to educate the younger generation against alcohol. We have to teach them that alcohol is a poison; that a habit-forming beverage is slavery; and that to manufacture and sell poison is a crime."

Dr. Wilson declared there is less law violation now than formerly, when the saloon held away.

"Local option is too local and too optional to be effective," he continued. "Government ownership means that Uncle Sam puts on the white apron. That will not do. We are not going to let the wet propaganda jar us from our position. As an instance, we put all our wet senators in a taxicab—Senators Edwards, Bruce and three others, whose names I forgot—and took them for a ride, and sent them back home from whence they will never return."

Federal Judges Denounced.

Mr. Wilson declared: "With the new Jones law, the Federal judges can stop bootlegging if they wish. Maybe that's in contempt, but if the judges don't want contempt of court they ought not to be so contemptible."

Dr Cherrington in his address, advocating education, said that the "Old Soak" is no longer a menace to prohibition. "But he has been supplanted by a new danger, the social drinker, the man who takes one drink or a few and apparently is sober."

He pointed out an added danger when that man tries to drive his automobile, or take the stick of an airplane, or dispatch trains, and, he said, science has determined that after one drink a man is not fit for such tasks for at least four hours afterward.

Ordination Is Tomorrow.

Candidates accepted for ordination into the ministry, which will take place tomorrow at 3 o'clock at the church, were announced by the committee as follows:

Deacons—Edward B. Wilcox, Melvin A. Baker, Raymond H. Brown, Stanley J. McFarland. Elders—Douglas R. Chandler, Philip C. Edwards, Frederick R. Barnes, G. Custer Cromwell, William R. Ogg, Lloyd G. Davis and Paul Harris.

The Laymen's Association voted affirmatively upon the question as to whether they should be allowed to meet "for a day or two" with the ministers in the ministerial conferences. However, the vote has to go to the general assembly and the results will be announced later when votes are in from all the assemblies of the United States.

Rural Pastors Hold Meeting.

Personal contacts in Christianity and "Miraculous Christianity" were two phases of religion presented in addresses to the Rural Pastors' Association at the afternoon session.

Receptions were also features of the session. Mrs. William Fraser McDowell entertained Mrs. Herbert Welch, wife of Bishop Welch, with a reception for her at the Episcopal residence, 2107 Wyoming avenue. The Methodist Home Board also received, at Connecticut avenue and Ellicott street.

William Knowles Cooper, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., of Washington, in speaking on "Men and the Church," advocated personal contacts.

He declared the responsibility for Christianity lies in the pew rather than the pulpit.

Mr. Cooper also advocated that the selective system of vocational determination in industry be applied to the church and that men be selected to function in the church in the capacity for which they are particularly fitted.

The Rev. J. T. Wardle Stafford, D. D., of Bristol, England, cautioned all to cry "stop thief" if any one else tried to rob one of his belief in the miracles of the Bible, in his address on "Miraculous Christianity."

Drum Corps Played at Dinner.

It was stated inadvertently in The Washington Post yesterday that the Fife and Drum Corps of Victory Post of the American Legion played at the Reserve officers' dinner, whereas the musical organization was the Overseas Drum and Bugle Corps of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

SIX TRAFFIC DEATHS IN MARCH SHOW RISE

Three Times as Many Killed by Autos as in February, Says Police Report.

246 PERSONS ARE INJURED

Traffic accidents caused six deaths in March, according to figures made public yesterday by Maj Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police. The total of deaths was three times the number reported in February, but was two less than the eight in January, the report showed.

There were 246 persons injured in traffic accidents in March, as compared with 202 in February and 242 in January. For the same period last years the figures were, March 200, February 156, January 198. Death totals were, for March, six, February, five and January, seven.

The total number of accidents reported in March was 503, as compared with 417 in February and 519 in January. The figures for the first quarter of this year continue to run consistently ahead of the same months last year, when the total of accidents reported was 321 in March, 301 in February and 304 in January. Traffic officials explain the increase in the number of accidents shown in their monthly reports with the statement that police are making a more careful check and comprehensive reports than they made in the past.

Traffic Arrests 5,149.

Arrests for violation of the traffic law in March numbered 5,149, as compared with 5,403 in February and 5,286 in January. Last year the arrests were 4,123 in March, 3,472 in February and 3,358 in January.

There were 736 arrests last month for speeding, 114 charges of reckless driving, 13 of driving while drunk, 7 for dazzling lights, Eighteen hit-and-run drivers were arrested.

The arrests for traffic law violations were more than half of the total of arrests for all offenses in March. The grand total of arrests last month was 9,880, as compared with 9,944 in February and 10,189 in January as compared with the following figures for the same period last year, March, 9,898, February, 8,194, and January, 8,094.

420 Volstead Act Charges.

Violations of the liquor laws ranked next in number to the traffic arrests. There were 420 charges of violations of the Volstead act and 873 arrests for violations of the Sheppard law. There were 865 arrests for intoxication and seven for drinking in public. There were 233 arrests for illegal possession, 88 for selling, 86 for transportation, 7 for manufacturing and 5 arrests for illegal possession of stills.

Arrests for violations of the Volstead act numbered 512 in February and 570 in January as compared with 703 in March last year, 406 in February and 537 in January. Violations of the Sheppard law brought 1,112 arrests in February, and 1,076 in January, as compared with 1,192 in March last year, 1,048 in February and 1,002 in January.

Of the total persons arrested in March, 319 were under 17 years of age and 974 were less than 21 years old, while 2,058 were women.

"Murder" Rumored As Man Falls Dead

Police, Firemen and Doctors Find William Collier Heart Victim.

Police, members of the Fire Department rescue squad and physicians from Emergency Hospital, responding to a telephone report that a murder had been committed at 2616 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, yesterday afternoon found William F. Collier, 42-year-old employe of the Union Station, dead from a heart attack.

Drs. I. Rutkoski and Leon R. Gordon, of Emergency Hospital, pronounced Collier dead when members of the rescue squad failed to revive him after working over him for 20 minutes.

A crowd of several hundred persons, attracted by the arrival of the ambulance, fire apparatus and police machines, and by the screams of the widow, Mrs. Jennie Collier, almost caused a traffic jam. Police of the Third Precinct gave chase to an alleged rum running automobile that sped past during the excitement but lost it in downtown traffic. Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt issued a certificate of death from natural causes.

Five-Year Term in Jail Imposed in Theft Case

A sentence of five years in the penitentiary was meted out to William A. O'Neil, colored youth, yesterday by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy in the District Supreme Court on a charge of grand larceny, to which the negro pleaded guilty.

He was charged with stealing a watch and household articles from the home of Beatrice Davis, colored, of 1764 U street northwest, where he boarded last August. A record of previous convictions in Police Court was shown the magistrate before sentence was pronounced.

MORE COMMITTEES NAMED BY CHAMBER

Personnel Will Push Anacostia Flats and Great Falls Improvements.

LONG FAVORITE PROJECTS

The new personnel of two standing committees of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, on reclamation of Anacostia Flats and on the development of Great Falls, were completed yesterday.

Chairman of the committee on reclamation of Anacostia Flats is Robert F. Bradbury, with Albert Schulteis vice chairman. G. Manson Foote was appointed chairman of the committee on the development of Great Falls and Frederick Buchholz vice chairman.

Members of the committee on reclamation of Anacostia Flats include Robert F. Bradbury, Albert Schulteis, Walter C. Balderston, R. H. Dalgleish, Allan Davis, Clarence W. DeKnight, I. H. Entwisle, William H. Ernest, A. G. Herrmann, Martin D. McQuade, Robert Marshall, John G. Meinberg, Marcus Notes, Maurice Otterback, John Poole, Charles A. Robinson and Joseph I. Weller.

Members of the committee on the development of Great Falls include G. Manson Foote, Frederick Buchholz, Harold C. Anderson, H. A. Brooks, Charles I. Beavens, Louis G. Carl, Harry R. Carroll, A. P. Clark, jr., William L. Clarke, W. B. Clarkson, L. H. Charles, Allan Davis, J. V. Davis, Clarence W. DeKnight, John T. Doyle, I. H. Entwisle, Milton Fairchild, Jerome Fanciulli, Edward T. Fenwick, George S. Fraser, C. W. Freitag, Adam H. Gaddis, F. P. Guthrie, George A. Harris, Mitchell Hanson, E. Frank Heim, W. S. Hoge, jr., Joseph D. Kaufman, Edgar D. Kay, Cyrus Kehr, Lieut. Col. J. Miller Kenyon, Hallock P. Long, E. Lydia Martin, Harvey P. Miller, Mrs. Ruby Lee Minar, Alfred G. Heal, Hugh J. Phillips, Meredith H. Polen, T. S. Settle, Miss Elizabeth P. Sheppard, John H. Small, Elmer N. Snider, J. Clinton Tribby, George A. Wick and Oscar T. Wright.

Both committees are of long standing, interest in both projects having been displayed by the chamber since its organization. The Anacostia committee under the chairmanship of Albert Schulteis succeeded about 1910 in securing an appropriation of $100,000 for reclamation of the flats.

Four subcommittees were appointed yesterday by the parks, playgrounds, highways and bridges committee of the chamber to investigate the four major sections of the city to determine highway needs for 1931. This action was taken at the request of Capt. Herbert C. Whitehurst, chief engineer of the District Engineering Department.

The committees appointed are: For the Northwest section, Jefferson L. Ford, jr., and S. T. Cameron; Northeast, Wilbur Gray and John B. Dickman; Southwest, Edward S. Hine and George S. Braser; Southeast, T. T. Taylor and Harvey P. Miller.

The four subcommittees will tour their respective sections of the city, survey the major highway needs and possibilities and submit their reports April 19. At that time, the four will be combined in a single committee report, adopted and forwarded to Capt. Whitehurst.

Students and Alumni Of A. U. Produce Play

A musical comedy in three acts, eight scenes and a prologue was presented last night by students of the American University in the university gymnasium. The show, which was entitled "Nice Goin'," was written, acted, directed and produced entirely by students and alumni.

There were nine musical numbers, all portraying college life; a cast of 4 and a chorus of 23 persons. The play was written by John M. Houston, adapted from a story by S. Carlton Ayers. Betty Jacoby wrote the prologue. Clair S. Aitland produced the music and Houston the lyrics.

16 CANDIDATES SEEK SIX BOARD POSITIONS IN CITIZENS COUNCIL

Federation Holds Election Tonight as Two Factions Race for Posts.

FOUR OF ASPIRANTS NOW ARE ADVISORY MEMBERS

A. P. Thom, Solicitor for the Railway Association, Is Included in Group.

With sixteen candidates in the running for the six places on the Citizens Advisory Council, the Federation of Citizens Associations will hold the annual election of the council at its regular meeting in the boardroom of the District Building at 8 o'clock tonight.

Four of the candidates—William A. Roberts, F. Tracy Campbell, Thomas E. Lodge and Charles I. Stengle—are members of the present council.

Alfred Pembroke Thom, general solicitor of the American Railway Association, is one of the candidates seeking to unseat some of the present members, preferably Roberts or Campbell. Roberts has been one of the outstanding figures in the street car merger fight and, with William McK. Clayton, brought about material modification of the merger agreement which the companies first proposed and which various conservative members of the federation were perfectly willing to see approved by Congress. Campbell has won the name of siding with Roberts in utilities matters in council meetings.

Stengle Is Procompany.

Stengle, of course, belongs with the procompany merger group and is being supported by that faction for reelection. Thom also is said to have that faction's support. The other candidates mentioned as being on their slate are Hugh P. Prampton, George S. Fraser and Andrew F. E. Scheer. This leaves Lodge out, although he has been a willing worker with the group in the past. Prampton distinguished himself in the federation in the past by joining with Clayton Emig in indorsing the Hansel merger agreement, which was subsequently torn to shreds as being all for the utilities and nothing for the public.

But the campaigning this election has been conducted more under cover than it has in the past, and Dr. George C. Havenner, president of the Federation and as such exofficio chairman of the advisory council, last week angrily demanded to know "who talked" about a slate-making and bargaining meeting which was held in his territory recently. He denied, however, that he participated in the meeting, declaring that he left before it was called to order when he discovered its purpose.

Thom Election Sought.

Thom, direct representative of the railroad interests, is the one man for whom the procompany merger group is working hardest to have elected. They believe that with Thom, Stengle, and Havenner, together with almost any one of the other candidates they have agreed upon, they can defeat Roberts even if he should be elected.

Roberts has considerable support, with several delegations instructed to vote for him, including the American Association of Engineers, the Mount Pleasant and Conduit Road citizens associations. Campbell has the endorsement of the Anacostia, Randle Highlands and Hill Crest associations. Scheer has the endorsement of the Brookland, Rhode Island Avenue, Michigan Park and Dahlgren Terrace associations.

Citizens' Advisory Councilors Named

W. H. Lewis and Dr. G. H. Richardson, Unopposed, Are Reelected.

Dr. George H. Richardson, president of the Federation of Civic Associations, and William H. Lewis, president of the Garfield Association, were reelected last night members of the citizens advisory council at a special meeting of the federation in the board room of the District Building. Despite the fact that there was no competition, and only two nominees before the body, the regular election procedure was carried out.

After speeches and proxies had been ruled out of order, a secret ballot was taken, delegates being called in groups to vote individually. The first ballot showed 42 votes for each candidate, the result being announced by John E. Bowles, judge of the election. H. H. Banks and George W. Jackson served as tellers and Miss Corinne E. Martin and J. G. Logan as clerks.

Associations qualifying to vote included Benning-Glendale, Northwest Brightwood, East Central, Deanwood, Garfield, Georgetown, Howard Park, Ivy City, Kingman Park and Public Interest. Hilladale delegates, although their tax had been forwarded, were disqualified because it had not been received by the treasurer. Other associations disqualified included Northwest Central, Capitol View, Lincoln, Northeast Boundary and Pleasant Plains.

Contract on School Awarded to Hyman

Contract for the construction of the Ben W. Murch Public School was awarded yesterday by the District Commissioners to the George Hyman Construction Co. for a total of $183,000. The company's full bid was $218,000 with alternative provisions reducing it.

The school is to be an eight-room extensible building and is to be located on the southwest corner of Thirty-sixth and Ellicott streets northwest and its construction is to be completed in 240 days.
